MAHARAJAS LOSE RIGHTS

NEW DELHI (AP) — The upper house of the Indian Parliament gave final legislative approval today to Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's bill stripping the nation's maharajas of their annual pensions totalling $6.4 million and such princely privileges as tax exemptions on their properties, duty-free imports and free utilities.

The constitutional amendment also provides that a maharaja will no longer be called "his highness" but will be addressed as plain "mister."

The amendment now goes to President V. V. Giri for routine signature into law. It passed the upper house 167 to seven and the lower house last week 381 to six.

A year ago, the Supreme Court overruled an executive decree eliminating the princely class, saying the government could not tamper with their pensions and privileges because they were a form of property.

There were no indication whether the maharajas would go to court again to fight the new legislation.

Voters Will Decide Land Buy—Mayor

Central Saanich Mayor A. M. Galbraith said Wednesday the proposed Brentwood land purchase will be approved or rejected at the Dec. 20 Council meeting according to voter opinion in Saturday's referendum

Chairing an all-candidate meeting in Brentwood, Mayor Galbraith made this promise after admitting the referendum was really an opinion poll and did not bind council to specific action.

The one-acre waterfront property is available for municipal purchase at $53,100. Questions on recreational facilities and parkland in Central Saanich occupied most of the discussion period following statements by eight aldermanic and five school board candidates.

Several residents were critical of what they termed a failure on the part of council to supply necessarry information to back up the Brentwood purchase.

Mayor Galbraith told E. T. Martin, 7116 Brentwood, that operating costs for the building on the Brentwood waterfront property in question were difficult to estimate because council had not as yet decided on specific uses.

After questuoning school board canadidate Gordon Ewan on the chances of more community use of school facilities, ratepayers were told that the present Saanich school board policy in this respect is, in Ewan's opinion "barren and unworkable."

Ideally, added Ewan, use of schools should be part of a municipal recreation program. "The municipality of Saanich works closely with school board" commented Ewan, referring to a combined-use building recently completed at Royal Oak Senior High. "But I would like to see North and Central Saanich take advantage of school facilities."

'Join Skagit Protest'

The federal government was urged Wednesday to join the state of Washington in opposing the flooding of the Skagit Valley.

William Hartley (NDP — Yale-Lillooet) said the federal government should lead the fight against the proposal on the Canadian side of the border.

"It is rather ironic that the state of Washington puts a greater value on recreational lands than does the province of B.C." Hartley said.

The Washington state ecology department Tuesday opposed the project which would flood 6,000 acres in B.C.

Hartley has been one of the leaders in the fight against Seattle City Light and Power's proposal to raise the dam levels to generate more power for that city.

The B.C. government agreed to the flooding in 1967. The area to be flooded, south of Hope, is in Hartley's riding.

MADRAS, India (Reuter) — A British-designed Avro aircraft of Indian Airlines crashed today about 30 miles from the southern Indian town of Madurai, a spokesman for the airline said.

The Avro, carrying 27 passengers and four crew members, was on a flight from Trivandrum in Kerala state to Madurai in Tamil Nadu state.

First reports said there were casualties, but full details were unavailable.

Passengers Using Air Charters Up Sharply

OTTAWA (CP) — The number of travellers using charter air service rose 24.4 per cent in the first six months of this year over the same period of 1970.

The federal Aviation Statistics Centre reported today the 1971 six-months total was 144,573, compared with 116,209 in the previous period.

The increase was in dramatic contrast to declines or generally-slight rises in the number of passengers on scheduled airline services at Canada's four major airports. But the charter total is still only a small fraction of total passenger volume.

The statistics also show slight declines in the total number of passengers handled at Montreal and Vancouver airports.

At Montreal, 1,318,259 passengers arrived in the first half of this year compared with 1,321,921 in the first six months of 1970. Arrivals at Vancouver were down to 620,999 from 627,168.

Total Calgary arrivals were up 3.6 per cent to 400,126 from 386,086. Toronto arrivals were up 3.1 per cent to 1,705,166 from 1,653,419.

U.S. Papers Unhappy

NEW YORK (AP) — The chairman of the American Newspaper Publishers Association says the price structure being sought by newsprint producers "utterly fails to meet the needs of either the newspaper publishers or the self-interest of the manufacturers themselves."

Richard H. Blacklidge, publisher of the Kokomo, Ind., Tribune, said in a statement issued by the association Wednesday that the price schedules being sought by some manufacturers are "highly discriminatory" and "of questionable legality."

Blacklidge said some newsprint producers had announced price increases of $5.25 a ton for southern states but had raised prices $8 a ton for Canadian-made paper sold to Northern state newspapers.

NDP Chief Sees Steuart as Top Grit

REGINA (CP) — "If you're a betting man," says Premier Allan Blakeney, "then I would say Dave Steuart is a good horse to back."

Although the New Democratic Party leader won't give odds, he figures Mr. Steuart, the 55-year-old acting leader of the Saskatchewan Liberal party, is almost a certain winner in the party leadership race that begins Friday in Saskatoon.

Mr. Steuart, a pint-sized and crusty political veteran, is running against former welfare minister Cy MacDonald and George Leith, a legislature member defeated in the June 23 general election that saw the Liberals swept from power by the NDP.

Whether Mr. Blakeney's suggestion is wishful thinking — hope for a Liberal leader he is familiar with—isn't really known but observers say he'd prefer Mr. Steuart or Mr. MacDonald over Mr. Leith, a relatively unknown factor.

That Mr. Steuart has the inside track is obvious. He was Premier Ross Thatcher's right-hand man during the Liberals' seven years in office.

It was Premier Thatcher's death July 23, exactly a month after their disaster at the polls, that prompted the leadership contest.

Mr. MacDonald a 43-year-old former teacher who projects a young image, is openly soliciting the youth vote while Mr. Leith, 48, offers himself mainly as a "viable alternative" to the other two.

All three have been active campaigning for Saturday night when an estimated 900 constituency representatives cast their ballots.

The campaign was climaxed by a series of six public meetings featuring the three candidates.

From the questions asked, it has been evident the party rank-and-file is worried about the future of the Liberals in Saskatchewan.

A good financial base was necessary if the Liberals were to regain power from the NDP in the next election, possibly in 1975, but Mr. Steurt warned he wouldn't be "an easy leader" if elected.

"If we are to run, we must mount a crusade . . . to tell the people about Liberalism. That's how we will win back this government."

HAS OWN IDEAS

Although he was Premier Thatcher's most devoted lieutenant, he says he won't necessarily follow the Thatcher doctrine. "I've got some ideas of my own."

Mr. MacDonald agrees with Mr. Steuart's assessment of the NDP.

"We must be prepared to change our ideas and approaches. We got the living daylights kicked out us last June."

Mr. Leith, a farmer who pilots his own aircraft, said he felt he had to seek the leadership to give the constituencies a reasonable choice.

He was asked how, without a seat in the legislature, he could be effective as party leader.

Thatcher wasn't an MLA for "eight or nine months after he was elected leader," he replied.

If only one ballot is necessary Saturday night, the new leader will be known by about 4 p.m. CST; about 15 minutes being allowed for voting and a half hour for counting the votes on the stage in full view of the delegates.

If two ballots are necessary, it might be 5 p.m. before the outcome is known.

The party presidency, an unsalaried position, also is open and is being sought by four men.

They are Wilbert McIvor, a farmer and former MLA for Arm River; John Rowand, a Regina businessman; Jim Weber, a Saskatoon life insurance underwriter and Garry Wilson, a Regina lawyer.

UNIFARM ELECTS LEA

EDMONTON (CP) — W. Dobson Lea, 58, of Jarvie, Alta., was re-elected president Wednesday of Unifarm, Alberta's largest farmer organization.

Drug Query Proper

EDMONTON (CP) — There is nothing wrong with an undercover policeman asking a youth if he has any drugs to sell, district court Judge J. S. Cormack said Wednesday.

The judge told high school students that the public makes too much of so-called entrapment of drug traffickers by police.

It might be legally unjustified for a plainclothes policeman to put excessive pressure on a youth to sell him some drugs but there was nothing wrong with a simple request to buy drugs.

"To say that this is entrapment is "to underestimate the intellegence of the person trapped," Judge Cormack told the students visiting the courthouse.

"If a person knows it is not right to sell drugs, then he shouldn't sell them no matter what. He can't be entrapped."

Sales Tax Eyed

EDMONTON (CP) — The possibility of some form of sales tax for Alberta was mentioned by provincial Treasurer Gordon Miniely Tuesday night in a speech to the monthly meeting of the Industrial Accountants of Alberta.

He declined to say when such a tax may be imposed but indicated it won't be in his first budget next spring.

Credit Proposal

SASKATOON (CP) — A special credit union for people on welfare or with low incomes was proposed Wednesday night.

Theodore Prefontaine, a member of the Saskatoon Coop Credit Union, was addressing a meeting of the Unemployment Citizens' Welfare Improvement Council. The union would be started with $1,000 each from existing credit unions and an initial membership fee of $5 per person. It would eventually be operated entirely by members of the group.

Grain Pact Seen

MOOSE JAW (CP) — A new international grains agreement soon was predicted Wednesday at a meeting sponsored by the Palliser Wheat Growers' Association.

Arthur Thompson of Pense, Sask., association president, said he had no qualms about making the prediction and added that the new arrangement would be more realistic and workable than the old one.

Teachers Stay Out

CALGARY (CP) — Teachers and trustees in the Bow Valley school districts remained at an impasse Wednesday as a strike by 613 instructors stretched through its eighth day.

The sides have not talked since negotiations stopped Sunday night and the only recent action has come from taxpayers in two of the seven districts involved. A petition was circulated which opposes the teachers' salary demands and urges use of supervised correspondence courses for the remainder of the year rather than allowing an unfavorable settlement.

Motorists Overcharged By Millions

B.C. motorists may have been overcharged by several million dollars in no-fault accident benefit premiums over the past two years.

This was revealed Wednesday when the provincial automobile insurance board requested car insurance companies to reduce the premium for the compulsory coverage from the current $20 to $22 rate to a rate of not more than $14. The board has told the companies that anything above that would be "excessive".

Premier Bennett said today he is "confident" the insurance companies will go along with the request, but said it was up to the board to decide whether any past overcharges on motorists should be rebated.

The amount of over-charging in the two years since the compulsory no-fault coverage was introduced by the government two years ago is in dispute.

$15 MILLION

Brian Rudkin, who runs Wesco Insurance Co. in Vancouver, said today the overcharge on the $20 or $22 premium might amount to $15 million in the two years since the no-fault coverage became compulsory.

But another source connected with the insurance board said there may have been an overcharge of about $1.3 million at the current rates.

The government board estimates the one-year saving if the new rates go into effect next year at $5 million.

Rudkin said his company was the only one to charge less than $14 for the no-fault package since Jan. 1, 1970, when it went into effect.

But the insurance board source said it appears that most companies offset the $20 or $22 rate by a reduction in liability insurance premiums, bringing the net cost to around the lower level.

In addition, insurance companies had to give the no-fault coverage free for about half of 1970, on average, because the no-fault premium wasn't charged until policies came up for renewal.

The Canadian Underwriters' Association announced on the weekend that companies affiliated with it are planning a 5.9 per cent increase in liability insurance rates in B.C. next year.

SAME PROBLEM

The insurance board circular to insurance companies announcing the request for a reduction was dated Monday of this week. It was signed by J. F. K. English, chairman of the insurance board.

The circular asked whether companies would go along with the reduction or whether formal hearings into the matter would be necessary.

The insurance board source said any future increases in benefits under the no-fault coverage would create the same problem as was faced at the beginning of the program — the companies would have to offer free service until policy renewals came in.

He stressed that the request to the insurance companies for a reduction was made on the basis of projections about the performance of the plan in 1972 and simple calculations of past over-charges were impossible.

Wesco Insurance Company insures about 10,000 vehicles, Rudkin said, and has made money on its $13 rate.

Rudkin said other companies have increased liability rates in the past two years in spite of the much-discussed $9 offset which the no-fault coverage was to bring.

His calculation of the overcharge was based on a figure of about one million vehicles being charged about $7 or so too much for two years.

CANADIAN DOLLAR ABOVE PAR

Times News Services

MONTREAL — The dollar continued showing strength in relation to the U.S. dollar near the close of money market here.

The U.S. dollar was quoted by the Royal Bank of Canada at 99 31-32 cents Wednesday and at 99 15-16 (Canadian).

Finance Minister Benson freed the Canadian dollar May 31, 1970, and today it was quoted at par with the U.S. dollar on foreign markets.

Postmen Ignored: Report

OTTAWA (CP) — The post office is accused of acting to break the Letter Carriers Union of Canada in a report prepared for the union by Carleton University economist Richard Vanderberg.

The 35-page report, commissioned by the union and released today, says "the post office department has failed to live up to its obligations, both in spirit and in the legal obligations it agreed to as set forth in . . . the agreement" with the letter carriers.

"For the government to break an agreement is a large step towards the destruction of the system of collective bargaining and industrial relations which has been painstakingly developed in this country."

The report is called "an appraisal of attitudes that are destroying a vital public service."

DON'T CONSULT

IRA GUNS MAN DOWN IN FRONT OF FAMILY

BELFAST (CP) — A Roman Catholic member of Northern Ireland's part-time defence regiment was murdered in front of his five children Wednesday night in what police described as an "execution" by the Irish Republican Army.

Sean Russell, 32, was watching television with his children when several gunmen burst into his home, asked his name and then shot him, police said.

One officer said "this killing has all the hallmarks of an IRA execution."

Police said one gunman walked up to Russell and asked: "Are you Sean?"

"Yes," said the startled militiaman.

Two shots rang out. Russell fell dead with a bullet in the head. His daughter Geraldine, 10, collapsed crying with a leg wound.

SECOND SLAIN

Russell was the second member of the Ulster Defence Regiment to be murdered in two days.

Tuesday, in Caledon, near the border with the Irish Republic, three armed men burst into the home of Denis Wilson, 31, forced him out of bed and then shot him to death.

Russell was a private in the defence regiment, a group of part-time soldiers generally used in border patrols in Northern Ireland. Between five and 10 per cent of the regiment's members are Catholics.

In Belfast's Royal Victoria Hospital, British Army Maj. Jeremy Snow died of head wounds suffered in a gun battle near Paddy McGurk's bombwrecked bar at the weekend. Fifteen persons were killed in that explosion.

The latest deaths brought the fatality toll to 188 in 28 months of violence sparked by Catholic resistance against the Protestant-based Northern Ireland government.

The money will come under a local initiatives program — separate from an earlier program under which Victoria was refused funds.

The total cost of seven possible projects is $232,000.

The city will have to pay about $133,000 from its own funds to take advantage of the Ottawa grants.

In a press release, Haddock said five out of seven projects are now approved "and it is anticipated that confirmation of the remaining two will follow shortly."

The projects include replacing acoustical material on the ceiling of the Memorial arena and building a waterfront comfort station, at a cost of $81,000.

Haddock said the approval is "another example where the taxpayers of the city have benefitted from the improved relations and close co-operation that has been developed with the federal and provincial governments during the past two years."

The city is awaiting the result of money bylaw referenda around the province to cash in on another federal make-work project.

The city was late in applying for financial aid on two larger projects, but Haddock has said he expects the money to come in later. If money bylaws elsewhere are turned down by voters, money will be released for use by the city.

Tax Bill Survives

OTTAWA (CP) — The 707-page government tax bill, the biggest piece of legislation in history, survived its first Commons vote Wednesday after 10 years of preparation.

The vote came when the first use of the 1969 guillotine rule stopped debate at 5:45 p.m. — the end of 32 days of clause-by clause study and an earlier 12 days of second-reading debate.

It took three hours and 26 minutes for MPs to vote on 293 clauses and amendments.

After a day of third-reading debate Friday, the government is expected to poise the guillotine blade again Monday, dropping it the day after to kill Commons debate by Friday, Dec. 17.

In the first of 29 standing votes Wednesday, Opposition leader Robert Stanfield's last request in the debate-to delay imposition of most of the bill was defeated 149 to 54, with Liberals and New Democrats siding against the Conservatives and Social Crediters.

Living Costs Set New High In November

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Canada's consumer price index soared to a record high of 135.4 in November, up from 134.9 in October and 130.3 in November 1970.

The chill winds of late autumn brought higher prices for clothing, housing and hockey sticks, Statistics Canada reported today.

Previous peak for the index was 135.0 in August. Last month's 135.4 means that the cost of goods and services worth $10 in 1961 had increased to $13.54.

Although clothing and housing costs were the main components in the November increase, housing and transportation showed the greatest price increases over the 12 months ending with November. Clothing costs showed the lowest increase over the 12 months.

Higher prices for new houses and house repairs and increased property taxes were the main factors in bringing the housing component index to 139.6 from 138.6 in October. There was only a minimal increase in rents.

The clothing index rose to 131.0 from 130.3 mainly as a result of price increases associated with the introduction of new winter lines. Higher prices for men's overcoats and sports shirts, women's winter cloth coats, sweaters, suits and undergarments and boys' parkas and slacks were large factors.

An increase in costs of personal health care offset scattered reductions for pharmaceuticals, bringing the health and personal care index to 143.8 in November, up from 143.6.

Higher newspaper subscription rates in some cities combined with price increases for ice skates, hockey sticks and camera film brought the recreation and reading index to 136.8 from 136.3.

Indian Troops Ring Dacca

Times News Services

India said today it has a virtual ring of troops around the East Pakistani capital of Dacca and that Indian aircraft are inflicting heavy casualties on fleeing troops.

Indian troops were reported holding their ground in Kashmir on the western front. Heavy fighting is continuing.

A direct bomb hit on a Dacca orphanage killed perhaps hundreds of children and buried their broken bodies under tons of rubble. By mid-morning rescue workers had recovered only 30 bodies but authorities said 350 to 400 orphans were asleep in the brick and concrete building when the bomb struck.

Invading ground troops had closed in to within 20 miles of Dacca after crossing the mighty Meghna River, one of the last major water barriers protecting the city. An Indian spokesman said their planes had sunk a fleet of 100 boats carrying Pakistani troops into East Pakistan.

The Indian air force and navy also bombarded the ports of Karachi and Chittagong in West and East Pakistan today, inflicting heavy damage to shipping. The Indian navy reported a new strike by its warships which it said sank or heavily damaged four Pakistani ships in Karachi harbor.

Pakistani's eastern command in Dacca countered with reports of fierce fighting on most fronts in the east and said "enemy thrusts are still being successfully countered by Pakistani troops."

Pakistan said its forces were fighting "brilliantly" and were giving Indian forces "a good hammering" in East Pakistan.

An army spokesman in Rawalpindi, the West Pakistan capital, denied Indian forces had captured the strategic town of Jessore, 85 miles southwest of Dacca, and the town of Sylhet near the East Pakistan border with Assam.

When asked about the Indian claim that Sylhet had been captured, he said "that too is a fantastic bloody lie."

But foreign correspondents who visited Jessore Wednesday said it definitely was in Indian hands.

ADVANCES

In the western sector, Pakistani troops had made further advances in Kashmir and in continued fighting in the Lahore and Sailkot sectors inflicted heavy casualties on the Indians, Radio Pakistan said.

Pakistan also said its air force had downed a total of 102 Indian aircraft and in the Chhamb sector of Kashmir knocked out 40 Indian tanks. The Indians claim to have destroyed more than 150 Pakistani tanks in the same area.

Yahya ordered all post offices and banks to serve as collection points for collections from the public in cash and defence savings certificates.

'Dunkerque' Operation Under Way

Thousands of Pakistani troops, threatened with encirclement by Indian forces, are trying to reach safety in an armada of sampans, barges and river steamers, the commander of India's eastern front reported.

Indian air force jets bombed and strafed the Pakistanis as they fled, making more than 100 sorties during the day, said Lt.-Gen. Jagjit Singh Aurora.

The Indians now have complete mastery of the skies over East Pakistan. The last enemy fighter planes in East Pakistan was shot down, Aurora said.

Ottawa to Act on Heroin Crisis

By JEFF CARRUTHERS

Special to the Times

OTTAWA — Recognition of a heroin crisis in Canada is forcing the federal government to take action to stamp out the growing problems of the new heroin user and the increasingly younger people involved with the drug.

Dr. Maurice Leclair, deputy minister in the federal health department, says the heroin and the related methadone problem are so bad that the government cannot wait until the final report of the LeDain commission before acting.

He said federal Health Minister John Munro and provincial health ministers will grapple with the problem of how to bring together national, provincial and private resources to focus on the problem at the federal-provincial health ministers' meeting in Ottawa Dec. 16-17.

A major topic of discussion then will be the report on a secret meeting held in Ottawa by the health department bringing together some 60 persons, professional and volunteer, associated with the heroin problem.

HEROIN ON WHIM

Dr. William Craig, head of the health department's Drug Abuse Group, describes a new type of heroin user, the member of the "Sunday afternoon experimentation group."

This "controlled user" can take heroin one day and then seemingly not have any need to take it after that, as a heroin addict would, until the whim hits again.

Craig said health officials are particularly concerned about such users and about how long such individuals can remain without being "hooked" on heroin.

The other aspect of particular concern is the recent appearance in Eastern Canada of a "wild fire" heroin problem during the past year or two.

Craig thinks the problem has been imported from the United States.

AGE DROP

The age of heroin addicts and users there is dropping, and the economic and geographic backgrounds are also changing radically.

Foreign Aid Bill Passes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives passed Wednesday a $3-billion foreign aid bill bearing $400 million for Israel and none for India, Pakistan and Ecuador — with Senate leaders still saying they will refuse to consider it.

Aid for India and Pakistan was barred as long as they are at war. The ban on $15.5 million slated for Ecuador was voted Wednesday because of that country's seizure of U.S. fishing boats.

'Operation Cleanup' Follows Storm's Fury

Greater Victoria residents and the rest of Vancouver Island were mopping up and assessing the damage today after a 30-hour storm that threw just about everything their way.

Snow, torrential rain and later gale-force winds was the order of things Wednesday.

As if that wasn't enough the bad-to-worse progression continued, as the slush froze overnight to turn the roads this morning into one big skating rnk.

"Yes, it was quite a storm," weatherman Allen McQuarrie said, noting that it had been a little different from most storms in that it had moved extremely rapidly and covered the entire province.

"It will no doubt be responsible for blizzards on the Prairies tonight," he added.

LONGER STAY

McQuarrie said the snow was mostly melting as it fell but even so the covering in most parts of Greater Victoria was three to six inches.

This stayed around longer than it would have normally he explained, because low night temperatures preceding the storm had cooled the ground considerably.

The main storm went past Victoria about 6 p.m. Wednesday, but in its wake came steadily-rising winds.

In just over three hours, from about 6 p.m. to 9 p.m., the wind readings at the Gonzales station rose from south-south-east 25 m.p.h., with gusts to 33 m.p.h., to south-west 46 m.p.h. and gusts to 65 mp.h.

But Victoria residents who considered that a rough evening should have changed places with the families of the two keepers at the Sheringham Point lighthouse west of Sooke.

At 8 p.m. Wednesday night the wind there was blowing at a steady 75 m.p.h., with gusts to 85.

TORRENTIAL RAIN

The biggest problem locally as the rain came down in torrents Wednesday afternoon and evening was caused by flooded drains, basements and backed-up septic tanks.

Saanich public works department handled about 250 calls, mostly plugged drains, and the city engineer's department dealt with about 45 calls which a spokesman described as "not especially busy after that kind of heavy rain."

Saanich was a general problem area for motorists crawling cautiously along ice-covered roads this morning, but police in other areas reported a general improvement on the conditions Wednesday.

A Saanich police spokesman said despite sanding and salting operations there were "lots of minor accidents" this morning, with cars waltzing into ditches and into each other.

CREWS OUT

"Interurban is a real trouble spot; we've had lots of calls from there," he added.

B.C. Hydro maintenance crews were out until midnight repairing lines brought down by falling snow-covered branches.

There were power interruptions in the Ardmore-Saanich Road areas, on McTavish Road near the airport and at Brentwood, a spokesman said.

Ladysmith school buses were not running today because of the slippery roads but the town's schools were open for students within walking distance.

Cowichan and Lake Cowichan buses ran as scheduled

Over 700 loggers who have been idled by the snow are expected to return to work as the weather clears.

MacMillan Bloedel's Chemainus logging division said crews are plowing and they hope for an early return to work.

Crown Zellerback at Nitinat said operations may resume Friday but probably not before Monday — as long as there is no change in the weather.

The Cowichan logging division of B.C. Forest Products at Caycuse and Western Forest Industries' Gordon River logging operations both said they will return to work when the weather clears.

What lies in store? The weatherman says it will be mostly cloudy with a few showers today, with some clearing possible tonight but with cloud cover still present on Friday.

SHREDDED TAX BILL DEPICTS HOUSE MOOD

The line caught one of Parliament's vivid moments as the government, using a 1969 time-limit rule for the first time, brought an abrupt halt Wednesday night to committee-stage debate on its tax bill.

"As the guillotine falls," Mr. Paproski said, "on behalf of all the taxpayers in Canada, I want to show what I think of what is happening here."

So Mr. Paproski, veins standing out and teeth gritted, gave the four-inch-thick volume the old telephone-book tear, a physical effort to accomplish what Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield had been unable to do parliamentarily.

This was to split the bill, passing those sections such as reductions in basic personal income taxes but putting the rest over for further consideration.

Even the mighty Paproski had trouble with this piece of legislation the Commons hadn't been able to digest after more than two months of chewing.

'Take Your Own Legal Action' Anti-Mill Petitioners Told

Petitioners complaining about a two-shift mill in Langford will have to take their own legal action, Capital Regional District was told Wednesday.

The district's executive director, Dennis Young, said Van-Isle Moulding and Millwork Ltd., 2871 Jacklin, is complying with all local bylaws.

Residents complained to the board about "indiscriminate sounding" of whistles and noise, use of machinery and trucks, including night-time, and air pollution.

Young said the problem stems from two "incompatible land uses" and noted that the industrial and residential zoning, side by side, occurred before the district was responsible for zoning.

"You just can't have a mill and a person trying to sleep alongside each other," he said.

The local works committee agreed to pass along an opinion that the complainants may have a private action for nuisance against the company and should seek their own legal advice.

It was also agreed that a committee of the board try and meet both complainants and the mill to discuss the matter.

In other business, board committees:

- Will ask the lands department that if mining claims elapse on 77 acres of crown-owned land adjacent to East Sooke Park, the claims would not be capable of being re-registered;
- Recommended delegation of authority to Saanich for certain truck sewer work, including Finnerty Cove, for design and calling of tenders, subject to review and approval by the district;
- Recommended award of tenders for almost $250,000 of sewer work in Central Saanich to LaFarge Cement, Ocean Cement, Atlas Asbestos and Norsemen Construction.

WARNING ISSUED ON NATURAL GAS

Oak Bay council's zoning committee was warned Wednesday that the introduction of natural gas into the area could turn municipal streets into "battle areas."

Municipal engineer-planner Geoffrey White said:

"If natural gas becomes popular here the existing lines will not be big enough. The extra work will make absolute battlefields of our streets."

Warning that the additional costs of road repair and maintenance would have to be borne by the taxpayers, White added:

. . . HEROIN

average heroin user's age has dropped to the low 20s, compared to the 35 to 40-year-old heroin stereotype of the "old school."

The federal government admits it doesn't know how many users there are in Canada, though Leclair says his experts' estimate of 6,000 is "conservative." The proportion of users to addicts is similarly unknown.

It is known, however, that heroin is "highly available" in Canada and that the price is dropping.

Most of it comes from France through Montreal — even to the West Coast.

The federal health department meanwhile is considering ways of controlling the growing methadone problem. Methadone is widely used in some cities as a replacement for heroin as part of a treatment for heroin addiction.

But a recently-published Food and Drug Directorate-Canadian Medical Association study has indicated that some 25-30 doctors have been prescribing methadone in a "permissive" fashion and a larger number have been inappropriately prescribing methadone out of ignorance to persons claiming to be heroin addicts. The report urged the methadone be used only under controlled conditions, perferably in a clinic.

Health Minister John Munro Wednesday night told reporters he will discuss possible disciplinary action with provincial health ministers.

LEGAL AID PLANNED

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister John Turner said Wednesday he will submit to the cabinet in the next few days recommendations for a national legal aid system.

He added in a commons reply to Jack Marshall (PC—Humber - St. George's - St. Barbe) that he has consulted all the provinces.

In percentage terms, prices in general rose four-tenths of one per cent in November and 3.9 per cent over the 12 months ending with November.

The Economic Council of Canada has said price increases should average no more than two per cent a year if reasonable price stability is to be attained.

The 12-month percentage increases for components of the price index were: Food 4.2; housing 4.7; clothing 2.0; transportation 4.1; health and personal care 2.1; recreation and reading 2.3; tobacco and alcohol 2.6.

The index is based on a survey of more than 300 consumer goods and services which bulk large in the spending of urban families living on low to moderate income.

Montreal Bankers Find Wives Much in Demand

MONTREAL — A kidnapper with a marked preference for banker's wives struck for the third time in two days Wednesday. The manager of a west-end branch of the Toronto-Dominion Bank received an anonymous phone call demanding $50,000 for the safe return of his wife, but laughed the incident off as a hoax.

Less happy about his caller was F. J. Guy of the Bank of Montreal who left $50,000 "ransom" in a subway train to save his wife's life. Mrs. Guy was having her hair done, completely unaware of her "kidnap."

A similar kidnap hoax was tried on another bank manager earlier Tuesday but was ignored, police said.

VANCOUVER — The satisfaction some citizens might get from seeing five policemen criminally charged as a result of the Aug. 7 disturbance in the renovated Gastown waterfront district could be costly for the city, Mayor Tom Campbell said Wednesday.

He said in an interview it could mean that the next time the city faces a mass disturbance, the police might be reluctant to quell it.

"I'm sure any officer will be reluctant to act for fear that he might be charged with an unlawful act even if he acts under orders."

LOS ANGELS — The Eastman Kodak Co. was upheld Wednesday in its refusal to return to a photographer pictures that Eastman said showed "intimate dalliance."

Tony Cook, San Bernardino, brought a $1 million suit against the film company, charging it had wrongfully assumed the role of a censor in refusing to return 12 color photos he sent them for developing.

Kodak said the photos showed a nude couple in "intimate dalliance" performing acts that violate state laws, and that to give Cook his pictures would expose the company to the risk of being charged with aiding in the production of lewd photos.

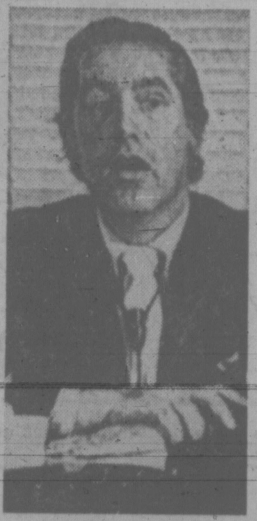
Superior court Judge Michael Brown refused to issue an injunction against Kodak, and scolded Cook's attorney for "irresponsibility," saying: "This type of thing could cause serious embarrasment to a lot of people."

GAINESVILLE, Fla. — Jolly Jim Dean, an 825-pound wrestler turned Santa Claus, has converted his log cabin home into a toy factory. With the help of neighbors, Dean is repairing cast-off toys for underprivileged children this Christmas.

"There's nothing I can't fix with nail polish, glue and a little paint," Dean declared.

His Christmas project also includes tours of hospitals, juvenile homes and other institutions as Santa Claus. It took 15 yards of flannel to make his red suit and he cinches his 128-inch waist with an elephant's harness.

Come Christmas Eve he will forego the reindeer for wheels — a car reinforced with four-by-fours.



CAMPBELL . . . . costly pleasure

JERUSALEM — President Nixon reportedly has asked Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir to use her influence to keep aid for Israel from becoming an issue in next year's U.S. presidential election.

The request was said to have been made during the 90-minute talk Nixon had with Mrs. Meir in Washington last Thursday.

"I don't want every candidate to have to ride on the nose of the phantom," the president is said to have told the Israeli leader.

UN's Bunche Dies in Hospital

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Dr. Ralph Johnson Bunche, whose impact on the United Nations was perhaps greater than that of even its secretaries-general, died early today in hospital after a long illness.

Bunche, 67, retired as an undersecretary-general in June for technical reasons related to his pension and other financial rights. But officials still hoped he would be able to return to duty.

The ranking American in the secretariat, he was a principal adviser to secretaries-general Trygve Lie, Dag Hammarskjold and U Thant and the UN's leading authority on peacemaking and peace-keeping operations.

The grandson of an American slave, Bunche rose to world prominence in 1949 when he hammered out armistice agreements between Israel and the Arab nations that ended the Palestine war.

He later oversaw both the UN military and civilian operations in The Congo when the organization went into the African nation in 1960. He also played a key role in 1956 negotiations that led to the stationing of the UN Emergency Force in Palestine after the Suez crisis.

At the time of his death, Bunche was the highest-ranking American on the UN secretariat and had charge of special political affairs.

Bunche's hand in settling the 1949 Palestinian war came at a crucial time in the history of the then-fledgling United Nations.

He took over as acting mediator of the dispute after assassins gunned down the UN mediator, Swedish Count Folke Bernadotte, in Jerusalem and also killed the man at his side, wrongly assumed to have been Bunche.

Refusing the protection of an armed guard, Bunche gathered all parties on the Greek island of Rhodes and wrote the settlement that finally ended the fighting after seven weeks.

May, June UVic Classes Okayed

The senate of the University of Victoria Wednesday night approved a policy whereby students can take regular academic courses in May, June, before the regular summer session begins.

Senate was told there have been recent case where students have had to make up only one course to obtain their degrees, but have to wait for as long as a year to complete the course, since it was not offered until the winter session.

The new policy would prevent such delays, but would restrict the privilege to "superior" students.

It was argued by philosophy department head Dr. Kenneth Rankin that students who were taking courses in the summer session, which runs through seven weeks in July and August, would need the months of May and June to prepare for the courses.

Rankin also said superior students get only mediocre results from such substandard courses as could be offered in the restricted time of May and June.

Acting dean of education Dr. Hugh Farquhar, who has been named to replace resigned president Bruce Partridge, said it has been traditional for students to take two courses in the summer session, and that students did not start to study for their summer session courses until the session actually began.

Rankin replied that he hoped students would get in more study than that.

Dr. Alexander Kirk said the load on students taking one course in the two-month period of May and June would not nearly be so heavy as the load on the average student taking five courses in the normal school year, which runs just over six months.

Graduate student senator David Dunsmuir said the policy for studies in May and June would be beneficial and that time would be a "good catch-all term for students.

SABRY SPARED DEATH COUNT

CAIRO (AP) — Former vice-president Aly Sabry was sentenced to death by hanging for plotting to overthrow President Anwar Sadat, but Sadat has commuted the sentence to life in prison at hard labor, the revolutionary court announced today.

Two former cabinet ministers implicated in the plot last May, former interior minister Sharawi Gomma and presidential affairs minister Sami Sharaf, also were found guilty and received the same commuted death sentence.

The verdicts were reached after trials behind closed doors that lasted two months.

Three other cabinet ministers and four top officials of the government party were found guilty and received sentences ranging from 15 years in prison to one year suspended.

Shoe on the Other Foot

In recent years China has been vying with Russia as the champion of oppressed peoples and protector of the underdog. The late Mr. Khrushchev summed up his policy as one of support for people anywhere who were struggling for their freedom — perhaps one of the most ironic utterances on the public record. China, too, has been publicizing such intentions, particularly in Africa, and took occasion more recently in the United Nations Assembly to remind everyone that there would be aid for minorities who felt the weight of injustice.

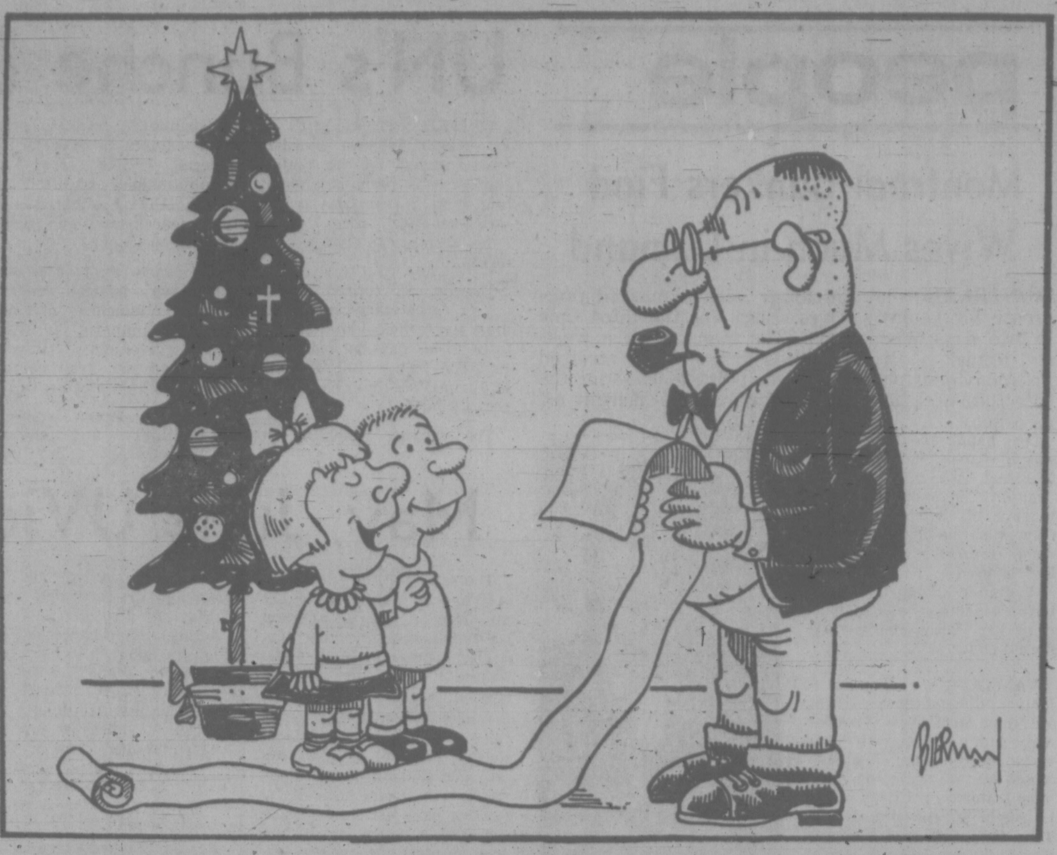
The Pakistan-India confrontation, therefore, has placed Peking in an embarrassing position that would be comic if it were not so tragic for the people concerned. As a peacetime supporter of Pakistan, China had naturally to proclaim itself as an ally when armed conflict broke out with India. This position was particularly necessary in view of the fact that Russia was aiding India by word and weapon.

Now China announces that if India gains a foothold on Pakistani territory and Pakistan has to stop fighting, then China will move in to drive the invader out. The irony comes in the fact that China's encouragement to the Pakistan government, and the threat to intervene with force, is directed against the oppressed minority that was fighting for political freedom against the Pakistan government.

If any group qualifies for Chinese assistance, under Peking's definition of people who should be helped, it surely must be the men and women who are struggling for Bangla Desh — their freedom from injustice under the Pakistan government. But Peking now finds itself supporting one of Asia's dictatorial governments against a large section of the population that wants freedom to enjoy the East Pakistani administration the people had elected.

This is not the first anomaly to occur in the global ideological struggle, of course. Some of the world's greatest democracies on occasion find themselves fighting to preserve authoritarian governments they would never have tolerated at home, or sought as friends. And Moscow's operations against Czechoslovakian, Hungarian and Polish patriots demanded very special interpretations of the Party line respecting peoples wanting to assert the rights of the common man.

The Communist powers, in fact, emerge in the showdowns as a close image of all that they have denounced in rightist regimes over the years. It's hard to decide whether Lenin would cheer or jeer them.



"We want you to surprise us this Christmas, so we made a list of what we've already got . . ."

Curing Addiction or Causes?

In a dramatic campaign to find a cure for heroin addiction, Florida's Democratic Senator Claude Pepper has asked Congress to give the priority to emergency research for that purpose it gave to the Manhattan Project that produced the first atomic bomb.

As chairman of the U.S. House Select Subcommittee on Crime, he refers to advances reportedly made by pharmaceutical manufacturers in their efforts to find non-addictive drugs which would replace methadone, the heroin substitute which is also reportedly addictive, and he mentions progress being made by U.S. Army chemical warfare scientists who may have already developed an effective heroin-blocking agent.

Senator Pepper makes a strong case in his call for broader and more intensive research.

That approach could be highly productive, if he wins support. It may, however, have restricted value only in the eradication of heroin addiction. Provision of a cure, if one can be found, could be effective in the treatment of those who want the cure. Others, who are uninterested in a cure, might be required to take one. But in the surreptitious use of narcotics, finding and proving addiction could be difficult.

Moreover, if a satisfactory substitute drug were found, still to be remedied would be the causes which led to drug use in the first instance. Determining how to eliminate those causes might call for a further research project also rivaling the Manhattan Project.

Stretching Fish

From Zurich comes word that a leading automobile tire firm is going to support a U.S. project to process used auto tires and float them out to sea, where fish would feed on them. Fish, it appears, are mad about the diet and could ease a disposal difficulty.

Fish from old tires? Why not? Where do you suppose the banquet circuit gets its rubber chicken?

HAROLD GREER

Ontario Hand on the Wheel

TORONTO — If the scenario for the U.S.-Canadian autopact negotiations ever gets reduced to script form, the text will read at intermittent points: "Alarums and excursions afar off from Ontario." Every suggestion from Ottawa of possible Canadian concessions has the Ontario government expiring in the wings.

Ontario's fretting is understandable. Some 85 per cent of Canadian motor vehicle production, and 97 per cent of the automotive parts industry, is sited in the province and together they provide about 70,000 jobs. One out of eight Ontario jobs is directly or indirectly related to the automotive industry.

Any changes in the autopact which hazard the maintenance and improvement of these employment levels will therefore affect the Ontario economy very seriously, and Premier William Davis has ample reason for urging Ottawa, by telegram, speeches and delegations, to make no concessions.

But surely the federal government is well aware of the economic importance of the automotive industry and it doesn't need any Sunday quarterbacking from Queen's Park? Isn't Davis simply horning in on a federal responsibility, namely the negotiating of treaties with other countries?

Yes to Both

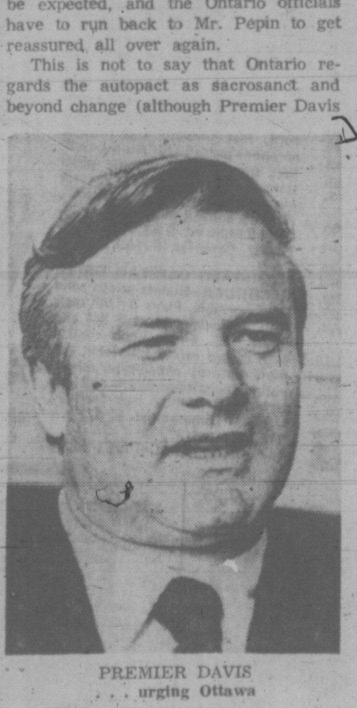
The traditional answer, of course, is yes to both questions. But the modern and practical answer is that such provincial prompting is both politically necessary and procedurally advisable, if for no other reason than that it is better to be safe than sorry.

It is politically necessary because provincial governments have come to be regarded (rather unjustly) as almost as responsible for economic conditions as the federal government. If a revised autopact should cause unemployment in Ontario, Mr. Davis will be blamed for not protecting Ontario interests and he wants to be able to say that he told Ottawa so.

It is procedurally advisable because, in a situation like the autopact negotiations, one can never be sure that one Minister in Ottawa knows what another Minister is doing. As a matter of fact, this is distressingly true of all governments in all situations encompassing more than one government department; the only practical way to beat it is to deal with the man at the top in the hope that some co-ordination will result.

In the autopact situation, for example, Ontario officials have been making their pitch to Jean-Luc Pepin, the federal minister of trade and of industry. Mr. Pepin's responses have been quite reassuring and the Ontario government is satisfied he agrees with its position. At the same time, however, External Affairs Minister Mitchell Sharp and sometimes Prime Minister Trudeau continue to excite the press with suggestions that concessions to the U.S. point of view must be expected, and the Ontario officials have to run back to Mr. Pepin to get reassured all over again.

This is not to say that Ontario regards the autopact as sacrosanct and beyond change (although Premier Davis has no objection if that impression is created) but simply that concessions may be made which are greater than they need be, beacuse of the context in which the negotiations have recently been taking place.



PREMIER DAVIS
. . . urging Ottawa

The autopact has been under review by Canada and the U.S. for almost two years and Queen's Park had no worries about the Canadian position until Washington imposed its 10 per cent surcharge on dutiable imports in August. Immediately, of course, the question arose as to what concessions Canada would have to make on the autopact—and other things — in order to get the surcharge removed. In this larger context, Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Sharp have given every indication that they are not prepared to be as tough as Mr. Pepin was when negotiating the autopact in isolation.

The prime protection for the Ontario automotive industry in the autopact, for example, is the requirement that vehicle production in Canada must be maintained at least at the level of the 1954 ratio of Canadian production to Canadian consumption — generally, 92 per cent. This guarantee has been more than met and indeed the Canadian production of cars is running at about 110 per cent of consumption, with the balance being exported to the U.S.

It is one thing, however, to agree that this is too high and could be reduced to, say 100 per cent, provided offsetting concessions were obtained in return, and quite another thing to agree the guarantee is either no longer necessary or can be suspended until the U.S. gets out of its balance-of-payments difficulties. "Suspension" in international treaties often turns out to mean "permanent." Without a guarantee of Canadian production, the industry will surely gravitate to the U.S., just as the agricultural machinery industry has done since a free trade agreement in that area was signed in 1946.

Not Satisfied

Perhaps Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Sharp agree with this. Perhaps not. Certainly the Ontario government is not satisfied that they do, nor is it satisfied with having to try to persuade them by sending telegrams and officials to Ottawa. It wants to be part of the negotiating team, at least on the working level.

There is considerable precedence for this, not only in arrangements Ottawa has worked out with Quebec, but in respect of Ontario's interest in Great Lakes pollution. The negotiation of a new International agreement on this matter has involved the organization of various working groups and subcommittees on which Ontario officials (and Quebec officials as "observers") have worked along with federal personnel. The subcommittee on water quality objectives for the Great Lakes, in fact, was chaired by the chairman of the Ontario Water Resources Commission and the Ontario Minister, George Kerr, was a member of the Canadian negotiating team in Washington.

The justification in that case was, to put it bluntly, that Ontario experts knew more about water pollution than either the Canadian or the American federal officials. Perhaps the same cannot be said about the autopact, although listening to Mr. Trudeau and Mr. Sharp, one may be permitted to wonder.

Brentwood: Objective Report?

A few weeks ago Central Saanich Council considered how best to inform ratepayers on the current recreational land acquisition issue. The mayor was accordingly charged by council to present a clear and objective report of the matter through a letter to the ratepayers.

Mayor Galbraith's letter read by even the most neutral of observers is an endorsement for acquisition of the Brentwood Bay property. Thus, he denies his openly declared neutrality. His letter is vague and therefore misleading. Council minutes substantiate that September 27 was the first time all of council could have been aware of the Brentwood property proposals. Yet the mayor's letter says that the "Stanlake, negotiations" were in August and goes on to say, "prior to and during these negotiations other park sites were viewed." The official record shows council did not view the "alternatives" until October 2.

These "alternatives" were more in the nature of initial suggestions, brought out at a meeting near the end of September after about an hour's consideration by only six of seven council members, Alderman Michell being away on holiday. In essence, they were temporary alternatives to the Brentwood property proposition that was apparently bought in early August and with an apparent offer of first refusal to the municipality.

To my knowledge, reference to an official written proposal has never been included on the official record. It is pertinent to mention that the Turgoose Point 12-acre property was sold, apparently for $175,000. A week later the mayor published and mailed his letter, fully aware of this fact.

Three members of council declared that they would "stand or fall" on this issue. Already, two have declined to stand for re-election.

It has been my consistent appeal to council that a more thorough and complete investigation be considered for recreational property acquisitions than has been given. A lot of time has been spent on one proposition but very little on the remaining and other alternatives; hence, the decision needed is based on poor data. In any case, why the rush?

I urge ratepayers to vote as they see fit, but please bear in mind that the mayor's letter that you paid to have mailed to you, is neither neutral nor a completely accurate account. — W. E. Clayards, Alderman, Central Saanich.

Cadboro Bay Planning

In response to Mrs. Katherine B. Suttill's question, (Letters, Dec. 6) "What plans do Mrs. Edith Gunning and Saanich council have in mind for the redevelopment of the Cadboro Bay Village area?" I would state specifically . . . NO PLANS.

My comment at the All Candidates' Meeting was made in the context of repeated requests from the Cadboro Bay Ratepayers' Association and other residents for involvement in planning, with a view to the preparation of an official community plan for the area. I pointed out that citizen involvement in planning is not an easy process; it requires dedication and willingness to become well acquainted with all possible alternatives. Hopefully, the effort in Gordon Head to involve the residents in development area planning will be a success. If so, I suggested, council might be encouraged to work similarly with the residents of the Cadboro Bay area. — Mrs. Edith R. Gunning, Alderman.

Something We Are Not Told?

We have been told it's a time for decision; but what choice do we have? All four mayoralty hopefuls appear to be against the Reid development. The Reid proposal and ultimately the development itself was contingent upon the city purchasing the Ocean Cement property. The city has now done this. The talk now is that the city buy the Reid property. With what? Had it not been for the McPherson Estate, there would be no McPherson Theatre and certainly no swimming pool in Central Park.

Is there something about this development and the developer that we are not being told? I am not aware of the man on the street starting all this controversy. The fence-jumping started in City Hall. Sometimes they even sat on the fence. Apparently, it wasn't a picket fence.

It was even suggested and probably put forth to Hugh Curtis that he enter the race in Victoria. My answer to that is, "Thank God he didn't." Why should Saanich suffer due to the ignorance of Victoria?

It's too bad the entire City Council isn't up for re-election. Well, take heart Mr. Reid; maybe someday Victoria will come of age. — W. K. Bisson, 331 Arnot Ave.

Tourist Grants

May I be permitted to point out the lack of public knowledge pertaining to the Saanich Municipal grant to the Greater Victoria Visitors and Convention Bureau and the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau. The Provincial Government, under its Bill No. 10, pays directly into Saanich municipal coffers, $1 per capita expressly for, and I quote "the encouragement of tourism," thus, approximately $66,000 is received in Saanich for this express purpose, to-wit: Promotion of Tourism. A percentage of the $3,500 Saanich grant is transferred to the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau for the purpose only of "external advertising." To this sum of money the Provincial Government adds for every 40 cents transferred, a further 60 cents.

It would appear, possibly, that His Worship Mayor Curtis has not taken this fact into consideration in the financing of tourism when he states that the home owner contributes directly 1/27 of a mill towards tourist promotion.

Further consideration should be given to the fact that when approximately $50,000 from tourism is poured into the economy of an area, such as Greater Victoria, that all must benefit: home owner, retired resident, businessman, tradesman, alike.

The tourist dollar is a lucrative dollar and competition for this tourist dollar is very keen. It is unfortunate that many of our local residents take the tourist industry for granted. Tourism creates jobs! — M. E. Heppell, Commissioner, Victoria Visitors Bureau.

Colwood Cemetery

The Times and Bruce Yemen deserve thanks for bringing the cemetery mess into the open and telling it like it is.

Some of us who have loved ones in Colwood cemetery and have paid for perpetual care have been trying for years to get something done about the disgraceful condition of the place but all efforts have been in vain.

Numerous requests to interview Hagel have always found him unavailable. A talk with the P.U.C. has gotten nowhere. Radio hot line discussion by diatribe brought no results. There seemed to be no remedy at hand.

Perhaps a contributing factor to the Colwood state of shame is that the cemetery is not within sight of the highway. The view of Colwood from Hatley Memorial Gardens is well screened. It is necessary to go in and inspect the place to understand what all the screaming is about. I guarantee you will come away angry and heartsick.

Looks like some action is needed to make both the public body and the ambitious monopolists more responsible.

I agree with Alex Macdonald and others that a royal commission is needed here. — Mrs. N. Magraw, 647 Michigan St.

Place for Sanctuary

Thank you for publishing the letter from Mr. M. Vanton this week titled "A Place for People to Walk." He expressed so well his affection for Victoria, his hope of keeping it a place where people can move and breathe as individuals rather than as automatons in a great ticky-tacky mess of developers' abominations.

When someone refers to this city as "garbage," I feel they do not deserve the privilege of living here, let alone representing Victoria as mayor.

If a person must be crass and soulless with no appreciation of mellowed, time-honored things together with natural beauty (sea, wind, rain, hills, trees, etc.) why can't they take themselves off somewhere else? Heaven knows there are innumerable dreary places that would suit them to perfection.

The sensitive human must have some place for sanctuary — refuge from the "rat-race." We had one here. Are we going to sit back and allow — nay encourage — its destruction by greedy, mercenary intruders? — Peggy Walton Packard, 1885 Lansdowne Rd.

A Privilege to Serve

Once again it has been my privilege to serve as a canvasser for the Kiwanis building fund. I wish through your paper to thank all those people on Munro Street, Clifton Terrace and Plaskett Place for, first, their generosity and secondly, the sincerity and warmth of their greeting when I appeared at their doors. Their kindness really brought home to me that it is an honor and a privilege to serve. — Daniel F. Paine, 454 Fraser.

60 Years Ago

From the Times of Dec. 9, 1911:

Leo Pallitter, keeper of an Italian restaurant on Pandora Street, near Government, was this morning fined $100 for selling liquor in his restaurant to customers who dined there. The accused had the option of two months in jail and left the court with the intention of obtaining a lawyer to advise him what to do under the circumstances.

The sale of liquor in the restaurant with meals was noticed by Detective Murray, who made an investigation which resulted in the prosecution.

Prairie Leaders Teaming Up—What About B.C.?

By PETER DESBARATS

Prairie politics have been unusually volatile since the New Democratic Party formed its first Manitoba government under Ed Schreyer in the spring of 1969. This year the NDP returned to power in Saskatchewan, under Allan Blakeney, and Peter Lougheed led the Conservatives to an upset victory in Alberta, ending 36 years of Social Credit administration.

Now that the dust has settled, it has become clear that the changes involved more than transfers of power from one political party to another. There was a shift of power from an older political generation to a younger. This is embodied in the three men who now lead the three prairie provinces. The ideological differences which separate them seem to be far less important than their similarities of temperament and approach to government.

This is particularly striking when you talk with the three of them, as I did, in the space of a few days.

They belong to the same generation. Schreyer, at 35 years of age, is the youngest. Blakeney is the oldest at 45. Lougheed is 43. Blakeney and Lougheed, the two lawyers, received part of their education in other countries, Blakeney as a Rhodes scholar at Oxford and Lougheed at Harvard. Schreyer has a master's degree in economics and political science and lectured at the University of Manitoba early in his political career.

All three are men of intellectual ability and confident physical presence. Schreyer is moodier than the other two and probably the most brilliant.

Impressions of Blakeney differ widely. There are many who consider him a cold man. If this has been true in the past, my own feeling is that his new political authority has made him more outgoing.

Lougheed is by far the most attractive of the three from a television producer's viewpoint. His most obvious political characteristics so far have been ambition and an ability to work incredibly hard.

There is a more substantial comparison to be made. The main political objective of all three appears to be sound government management. In this, they resemble premiers of their own generation in other Canadian provinces; but this is the first time that politicians of this type have coincided in office on the prairies.

It is evident from talking with the three premiers that this is going to have a marked effect on relations between these provinces, on their relationship to British Columbia (where W. A. C. Bennett is the last "old style" provincial leader still in office) and on the influence that the prairie region exerts on the rest of Canada.

The three premiers agree in principle that this is likely to happen. In practice, they are working toward much closer administrative relations between their provinces.

None of the premiers', significantly, show much interest at this stage in discussing political prairie union or other grand strategies in the style of W. A. C. Bennett.

"I still have an interest in it" said Schreyer, who is on record as supporting prairie union, "but I think there's more prospect of a functional approach than a constitutional approach."

"I think its worth a look," said Blakeney, "since every Canadian problem appears to be a constitutional problem. In that context, prairie union is a good idea. But in fact, there is a great deal to be said for smaller units of administration."

"I just don't see political union at all," was Lougheed's reaction, "but I think there will be a greater number of times when a combined western approach, hopefully including British Columbia, will occur more frequently.

"I think that will be a foreward thing for Canada: that the balance between Quebec and Ontario will be to a degree offset by, perhaps, a growth towards political union in the Maritimes and at the same time, a stronger and more united western view."

In Blakeney's opinion, any substantial alliance of western provinces has to start at administrative rather than political levels.

"All the politicians can do is smile benignly and give their blessing," he said. "If it's going to work, it has to be done by the people even below the deputy minister level, at the branch head level."

This kind of co-operation depends not only on the philosophies of the different governments, but on the capabilities of the various civil services.

"I think, for instance, that we'll get a prairie economic council as soon as we have a civil service that is geared to do that sort of thing," said Blakeney. "I didn't inherit one and I'm having to build it. I don't know what kind of civil service Lougheed has got. The previous Social Credit government of Alberta kept a very tight ship. Their public servants didn't mix with the others at federal-provincial conferences.

"Schreyer has now built a good civil service and the links between the Schreyer government and our own are really getting quite close in many, many areas. We hope to do the same with Lougheed and far as I can see, Lougheed hopes to do it with us."

"I don't anticipate any problem in dealing with Schreyer or Blakeney," agreed the premier of Alberta. "Even though we may have some ideological differences, I think that we approach things pragmatically. I sense that we'll be able to get along very well."

Schreyer said that he was closely following moves to integrate departments of agriculture, forestry and fisheries in the maritimes.

"If they manage to do this, I think its a tremendously logical and rational thing to do," he said. "We could, in the prairie provinces, do the same with respect to university building and construction, curriculum and expansion. I think there's room for it in resource development as well.

He cited, as a small example, a common program of testing farm machinery which will come before the Manitoba and Saskatchewan legislatures this winter.

The unanswered question, in this drift toward some form of prairie union, is the position of British Columbia.

Blakeney said flatly, "I don't see British Columbia fitting into this just that neatly. At any rate, nothing is going to happen in B.C. while the present administration is there. In administrative terms, it's not going to happen, but I don't see a great deal of affinity anyway."

Lougheed, on the contrary, believes that any western alliance would be immeasurably strengthened by the presence of British Columbia.

British Columbia is certainly included in the plans of a high-level private group which is working now in the western provinces to create a Canada west council.

At a "private union" conference in Alberta last year, the idea of such a council was supported strongly by James A. Richardson, Minister of Supply and Services and the only Manitoba member of the federal cabinet. Since then a fair amount of quite preparatory work has been underway.

As now envisaged, the council would be a private non-political organization devoted initially to research and funded primarily by government. Preparations have advanced to the stage where a leading western Canada business has been asked to head the council but no formal approaches have yet been made to the provincial governments.

In recent years, a great deal has been written about western separatism and prairie union. Separatism is not a serious question in the west; political union at this stage is of little more than academic interest. But a potent combination of new political types, common economic interests and pressures from central Canada are creating, at this time, conditions for a far greater degree of western unification than anyone would have believed possible only a few years ago.

Psychiatric Wards Taking Place of Prisons

By NICHOLAS VON HOFFMAN
The Washington Post

On May 29th, 1970, three Russian cops and two psychiatrists forced their way into an apartment in the city of Obninsk. The apartment's occupant was Zhores Medvedev, a biochemist of considerable renown who has been active in trying to get the government there to live up to the free speech guarantees in the Russian constitution, an admirable although largely ignored document.

The two psychiatrists informed Medvedev they'd had reports he'd been acting crazy, and when the scientist replied he'd never felt saner the cops forcibly dragged him off to the loony bin. There a committee of Russian shrinks proved that they are as adept as ours in thinking up fancy names for imaginary diseases.

After a review of Medvedev's career, they found him to be suffering from "paranoid delusions of reforming society," a "split personality, expressed in the need to combine scientific work in his field with publicist activities," a "lack of sense of reality," and "a poor adaptation to the social environment" and diverse other symptoms which in some other country might lead people to think he was a rather valuable citizen, (for the rest of this sad story you might want to read "A Question of Madness" by Zhores Medvedev and his brother, Roy, Alfred Knopf, New York, 1971, $5.95).

But before you congratulate yourself for being smart enough to live in a country where nothing remotely like that could happen to you, read this:

"Mrs. Anna Duzynski was a recent Polish emigrant; neither she nor her husband had learned to speak English. They were living on the northwest side of Chicago when on Oct. 5, 1960, Mrs. Duzynski discovered that $380 in cash was missing from their apartment. Suspecting that the money had been stolen by the janitor who was in possession of a spare key, Mrs. Duzynski rushed to his flat and demanded the return of the stolen money. The janitor called the police, complaining that both Mr. and Mrs. Duzynski were insane and should be put in a mental institution.

"Without further examination the police seized both Anna and her husband, Michael, and took them, in handcuffs to Cook County Medical Clinic . . . the Duzynskis were pronounced mentally ill and were committed to Chicago state hospital. Six weeks later, Michael Duzynski still knew less about why he had been denied his freedom than he had when thrown into a Nazi concentration camp in World War II. Finally, in complete desperation, he hanged himself. The very next day, the hospital officials released Anna Duzynski." (Quoted from "The Right to be Different: Deviance and Enforced Therapy" by Nicholas N. Kittrie, the John Hopkins Press, Baltimore, to be published 1972, $15).

Kittrie, who's a professor of criminal and comparative law at American University, has got a lot of equally gruesome stories in this carefully documented book, but none of them should blot out the main point, which is the degree to which we now live under a "therapeutic state."

His study limits itself to the use of medicine, psychiatry, social work, and other mandatory human rehabilitation programs. Just in criminal offences Kittrie estimates that about 54 out of every transgressors' cases are no longer handled by judge and jury trial but by some form of involuntary therapeutic process.

Some may see in this statistic that we're coddling the crooks instead of punishing them. That's a mistaken notion. Kittrie demonstrates that you are likely to spend far longer being locked up and cured in a hospital for the criminally insane than if you'd been tried, found guilty and sentenced to the penitentiary. Thus the therapeutic state satisfies both the rock hard lawnorder crowd by keeping people out of circulation longer and the heart hemorrhagers who sleep better knowing that our malefactors are incarcerated in treatment centres rather than jails.

It's only fussy traditionalists like Kittrie who worry that thousands upon thousands of people can and do get institutionalized without any of the protections that are afforded them under the constitution, as they are afforded to Zhores Medvedev under his.

"In many states, the commitment laws now specify that the prospective patient's 'need for treatment' is a condition sufficient to justify commitment," writes Kittrie with prissy concern for the Bill of Rights. "Some states have even made the welfare needs of persons other than the patient, such as members of his family, a sufficient criterion for commitment."

The scope of the therapeutic state's activities keeps growing. Now it's up to only juveniles who play hooky and risk being clapped up somewhere to be rehabed by the shrinks, now it's drug addicts and alcoholics. In more and more places, the humanitarians are having the laws changed so that junkies and winos are regarded, not as law breakers, but as sick people. And as such, they can be entombed against their wills and without trial in a place of therapeutic confinement.

This would be bad enough if the state hospitals, homes and treatment centres did offer help and the promise of cures for these alleged diseases, but often they don't, both because they're starving for funds and also because as psychiatrists like Thomas S. Szaz never tire of repeating, these are not problems for which medicine has any answers.

Kittrie doesn't even begin to deal with other forms of therapeutic coercion, such as the use of psychiatry in the armed forces or in our school systems from kindergarten up. There is also the equally pernicious but less well documented use of shrinks on their employees by large business corporations.

Those of us who're still running around loose and out from under the butterfly nets had better do something to protect ourselves fast. Kittrie wants a therapeutic bill of rights, but if that fails, what we might do is take a leaf from the people who certified Medvedev and decare the humanitarians and the therapists guilty of "paranoid delusions of reforming society" and lock 'em up in their own hospitals for treatment.

Big Litterbugs Get Away

By RUSSELL BAKER

Is anyone else tired of hearing about the evils of litter? Litter may be a nuisance. All right. Litter may be bad in a minor way. So what? Who among us is not?

Should we, for that reason, be reviled on the radio between Mozart and Mahler? Be the object of police warnings beside every highway great and small? Be denounced on television, in subway and bus, on vast illuminated billboards, in newspaper ads? Be legislated against by state and local governments?

The excesses of the attack on litter are worthy of the Pentagon. B-52's of public relations are launched into battle to kill a mouse. Litter. Half the male population of the country is going spongey in the brain with football and what the great engines of public alarm warn us about is litter.

It seems suspicious, this disproportionate concern for the trivial. Can the forces behind it be trying to distract us from something really terrible which they are up to? If we back off and take a fresh look at litter, ignoring for the moment all the propaganda against it, we may get a sniff of what the game is really all about.

* * *

What is this litter we are urged to fight? An empty beer can on the lawn. Discarded chewing-gum wrappers. Crushed and empty cigarette packages. A banana peel beside the turnpike. A page of newspaper in a gutter. The fragments of a non-return bottle hurled in maniac surrender to violence. In short, the small chaff of ugliness.

Litter is the material with which the masses — the common man, if you want to get mawkish about it; the great silent majority; the middle American; the little fellow — the material with which the overtaxed and underfinanced make the country uglier.

The attack on litter is, therefore, a pretty obvious example of the way the moneyed crowd, which controls the great engines of public opinion, uses power to discriminate against the rest of us.

What do you and I have to help make America uglier? Very little. A few empty beer cans, some chewing-gum wrappers, the peeling from that banana which we ate right here in this automobile a few miles back up the turnpike.

* * *

It's not much, but we are willing to give it for our country. We roll down the car window and lift a beer can. "Fight Litter!" commands the radio, which has just finished Mozart. "The penalty for littering this highway is $500 and five years in prison," declares a billboard composed by a state legislature on the very same day it authorized the truck lobby to run an eight-lane highway through the historic old dome of the state capital.

It takes a brave citizen to dispose of that beer can and banana skin in the American way.

People with access to large sums of money are not bullied in this fashion when they set out to uglify a place. To the contrary, their efforts are applauded as progress.

If, for example, you threw away a chewing-gum wrapper on a typical street in downtown Washington, the radio, television, billboards and newspaper ads would immediately attack you.

Dump a piece of architectural litter of the sort nowadays called an office building, however, and the radio will remain pleasant. So will television. Anyone who accuses you of littering will be dismissed as one of those creeps who don't believe in progress, and hence, will not have to be answered.

If turning a country into an eyesore is progress, why can't everybody participate. In Washington, architects and real estate speculators are encouraged to go ahead and dump litter all over the downtown streets to a height of 12 stories.

* * *

If the rest of us were given similar encouragement to litter, uglification would be just as inevitable, and far more interesting. This is because only minor variations exist in the hundreds of glass file-cabinet office buildings that are turning Washington into a futuristic facsimile of the old Warner Brothers warehouse district. (Remember those grim, lifeless canyons where all the hellishness took place between midnight and the last gasp of Edward G. Robinson?)

A pile of beer cans, butts, chewing-gum wrapers, old newspapers and banana peels that was 12 stories high would at least have the merit of shifting with the winds and changing color with the seasons.

Someone will say that this would turn the city into a dump. This is true, but we are turning cities into dumps in any case. Why not give the public a hand in shaping them?

Better yet, why not shut down those half-witted great engines of public alarm long enough to make them stop shouting about litter? We all know now that litter is not neat, and it is galling to be made to feel like a traitor for throwing a beer can while people who create ugliness on the monumental scale are destroying whole countries and being cheered for it.

There is a great joy in exchanging Christmas greetings by telephone. So much so, in fact, that thousands and thousands of Canadians do so each year.

It isn't possible to reserve specific times for long distance calls but you can minimize delay by following these tips.

FIRST — Make a list now of the phone numbers (including area codes) of the people you plan to call. Get these, without charge, through your operator or by following instructions in your telephone directory for dialing direct. Do this now and avoid battling heavy holiday traffic just to get your numbers.

SECOND — Don't wait until Christmas Day itself, when circuits across Canada will be overloaded, to place all your calls. Spread them over the holiday season.

Your family and friends will enjoy your calls just as much and you'll be more certain of getting through without delay.

REMEMBER — Most long distance rates are lower after 6 p.m. daily and all day Sunday. Check your directory for full details.

Ships Hurry To Beat Freeze

DETROIT (Reuter) — The chill winds of winter are breathing down the necks of 173 sea captains and their crews as they try to sail their oceangoing ships out of the Great Lakes before freeze-up.

The number of vessels now in fresh water above Montreal has set an all-time record for the end of the navigation season.

All the skippers are worried because they know that only two freezing days in Montreal will lock them in the lakes until spring.

Docks are crowded in a dozen Great Lakes ports, including Detroit where some salt water ships are riding at anchor in the middle of the Detroit River every day, waiting their turn at the Gantry cranes.

In most ports where loading and unloading are done outside, rain and snow have slowed the job and delayed ship movements.

Because of the East Coast dock strike, many of the ships were diverted to the Great Lakes, and because of this, the number of vessels still in the lakes Dec. 1 is double that of most years.

Of the 173 ships in the Great Lakes, 133 were in the Welland canal between Lakes Ontario and Erie or above them, some of them as far north or west as Duluth, Minn.

DEC. 12 DEADLINE

The theoretical deadline for the closing of the Great Lakes system is Dec. 12—the day on which the St. Lambert lock in the St. Lawrence canal west of Montreal is scheduled to close until spring.

The date can be postponed if weather permits. Current water temperature at the St. Lambert lock is 37.1 degrees. If this drops below 32 degrees for two days, water gates will not work in the canal system, and it will close.

Ice forms in the St. Lawrence canal system far sooner than it does in the Sault Ste. Marie locks which are much further north. Cold water from the Ottawa River flowing into the St. Lawrence accelerates ice formation there.

For fresh-water ships, including the 600-foot iron ore carriers, navigation is expected to continue this year into January because of the longer season at the Sault. These ships do not go east beyond Lake Erie and do not use the Welland and St. Lawrence canals.

Some salt-water shipping company managers are telling their captains to dock their cargoes wherever they can find a berth, then turn and run for the Atlantic.

Mitsui Seeks Ties

TORONTO (CP) — The sky is the limit when it comes to the involvement in Canadian business opportunities sought by the giant Mitsui group of Japan.

So says Shinichi Funasaka, the new president of Mitsui and Co. Canada Ltd., who is no stranger to this country. He first came here in 1953 as a travelling salesman for Mitsui nylon fishin nets.

In 1956 he returned to Canada on a full-time basis, setting up a one-man branch office in Montreal and seven years later, after the Montreal operation had grown to 15 persons, he left for Hong Kong as general manager of Mitsui's Asian import-export activities.

Now he's back in Canada working out of a posh modern office in Toronto's Royal Trust tower, and supported by a large bilingual staff and branch offices in Montreal, Calgary, Edmonton and Vancouver.

The giant parent companyy in Japan wants him to expand Mitsui interests in Canada, which have so far concentrated on export and import trade.

NO LIMIT TO CAPITAL

He has been told there is no ceiling on the Japanese venture capital available through him he said in an interview.

"We want to look at joint ventures using Canadian labor, parts and materials in combination with Japanese technology," said Funasaka, who has been with Mitsui since he graduated from school.

He added, however, that such matters can't be expected to proceed immediately, since "we are waiting for the international monetary situation to settle."

The 300-year-old Japanese company is deeeply involved in joint ventures and other connections with some of Canada's leading mining companies, and is also engaged with other Canadian partners in automotive assembling and sales.

Mitsui's other activities in Canada are mainly training and have been so since the company opened a small Toronto head office in 1955.

Mitsui imports uranium ore, copper concentrates, lumber and coal from Canada to Japan and also sells Canadian non-ferrous metals to other nations.

'We Want More'

REGINA (CP)— Potash producers in Saskatchewan may seoon be faced with higher taxes and royalties because the Saskatchewan government wants a "reasonable share" of the profits, says Mineral Resources minister Ted Bowerman.

He said prorationing of producion in the last two years has, in some cases, doubled the profits of potash companies.

The announcement came after a meeting with mining company representatives at whch prorationing, taxes, producers' associations and a potash marketing board were discussed.

Bowerman said government revenues of approximately $2.1 million annually from royalties, land taxes and other fees have not increased despite the increse in company revenues.

"We believe that because of our assistance through prorationing and price-stabliization legislation, the province is entitled to some increase in revenues."

Prorationing was introduced in 1969 after negotiations with the government of New Mexico, the other major producer of potash in North America.

The New Mexico producers had charged Canadian potash companies with "dumping" their product in the U.S. — possible because Canadian potash is more accessible and of a higher quality than its American counterpart.

Bank of B.C. Gets Credit Link to U.S.

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Bank of British Columbia will receive $3 million credit from the U.S. Export-Import Bank to finance imports from the U.S. by Canadian buyers.

Peter Darling, assistant international general manager of the Bank of B.C., said Wednesday the credit will be available to support 45 per cent of purchases from the U.S.

The Bank of B.C. will cover another 45 per cent of financing and the purchaser will pays 10 per cent in cash.

Darling said the credit will be a valuable aid to his bank, providing "ways and means of handling transactions that are a little too large for us to go alone."

Mafia Can't Infiltrate B.C. Stock Firms—Irwin

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Someone with criminal links might be able to get a securities licence elsewhere in Canada, but B.C. superintendent of brokers William Irwin claims it couldn't happen here.

He was asked to comment on the investigation of underworld infiltration of the securities industry in Montreal by Quebec Minister of Financial Institutions William Tetley.

Tetley said important but not grave irregularities had been turned up, and there was "no evidence of any widespread Mafia or underworld infiltration." The inquiry has not been concluded.

One of the allegations is that stock salesmen employed by a Montreal brokerage house had previous connections with a New Jersey underworld figure.

"I can't say what the other provinces do," said Irwin. "Anyone who is registered as a securities representative in B.C. is vetted by the RCMP in Ottawa."

In addition there is a practice of the B.C. Securities Commission at least two years old requiring similar clearance by the RCMP fraud division for promoters, vendors and company directors involved in new stock issues.

Promoters are not required to be licensed if they operate through a broker, Irwin points out.

But there are brokers, and brokers, he said.

"Without promoters — call them entrepreneurs if you like — we would have a pretty sterile economy." Their efforts raise new capital for high risk ventures in a resource-oriented economic climate.

Mining companies are among the easiest types to establish, and in the development of B.C. the securities industry is going through a period much like the growth experienced by Ontario in the 1950s.

In fact, B.C.'s securities legislation draws heavily on the Ontario law and control practices.

"There is more than a tacit understanding between certain provinces that if you crap out in Ontario, you don't get registered," Irwin said.

Undesireables are informed that they do not conform to requirements or are denied the privilege of working in the industry.

Frequently, since the new B.C. Securities Act of 1967, people have left the business in B.C., and some were from Ontario, "although I don't think you'd get the Ontario Securities Commission to admit it," Irwin said.

Of those who left the business, "95 per cent" also left the province.

The securities industry is under constant surveillance by the commission with a large body of qualified inspectors, investigators and staff at its disposal, unlike the 1966-67 period when the last mining boom took off.

Prospectuses and new issues were coming out thick and fast, while Vancouver Stock Exchange posted record sales and volumes. But Irwin's small department was sorely pressed to cope with the responsibility.

"Time has taken care of that," he notes, expressing confidence that better service could be expected if history should repeat itself.

Tax Benefit Said Unlikely

HALIFAX — Nova Scotia Light and Power Co. Ltd. said in a news release today the facts "do not bear out" the contention that it would be to the tax advantage of its shareholders to accept a takeover bid by the provincial government.

Premier Gerald Regan announced last Friday that the Nova Scotia Power Commission, a provincially-owned utility, would move to take over the privately owned NSLP with an offer of $13 per share.

In its statement today, Nova Scotia light and power says "there has been a great deal of confusion" surrounding the tax situation "with the strong inference" that it would be an advantage taxwise to accept the takeover bid prior to Dec. 31, 1971.

NSLR says it would not be advantageous to shareholders.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

Robert J. S. Dupont was annoyed at the behavior of some friends at a local pub Oct. 28.

He went out to the parking lot, climbed on the roof of one of their cars and jumped up and down, caving in the roof.

The accused was sentenced to a day in jail, fined $250 and ordered to pay $313 damages.

You may have thought you were completely sober but you couldn't have been, jumping up and down on top of the car like a monkey," Ostler said.

A policeman testified that the incident took place at the Red Lion Motor Inn, 3366 Douglas, about 10:45 p.m. Oct. 28.

He said Dupont first tried to kick out the driver's window of the vehicle but missed. He then climbed on the roof.

Norman J. Thomas, 18, of 2606 Dowler Place, was given a suspended sentence and placed on a year's probation for attempting to take an auto without consent.

Thomas earlier pleaded guilty.

Court was told that the accused with another man were caught trying to take a car from a car lot at 597 Hillside about 7:15 p.m. Nov. 20.

The two were apprehended in the front seat of the vehicle.

The other man was also charged and convicted.

Paul V. Scrivener, 23, of 614 Avalon, was fined $250 when he pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana.

Glen M. Mckay, 37, of 2915 Douglas, was fined a total of $800 by Judge E. F. N. Robinson for driving with a blood alcohol content over .08 per cent and driving while suspended.

Robinson also put the man on two years probation, banned him from driving for two years and stipulated he abstain from alcohol.

Air Embargo At Montreal

MONTREAL (CP) — Air Canada and CP Air announced today they have applied an embargo on all domestic air freight into and out of Montreal because of unusually heavy cargo traffic.

Air Canada first announced the embargo also applied on overseas flight shipments passing through Montreal, but later said it applied only to domestic traffic.

A spokesman for the airline said the embargo became effective noon Wednesday. Its purpose is to give Air Canada a chance to clear up a backlog caused by heavy Christmas shipments and orders resulting from the East Coast dock strike in the U.S.

LSD Dealer Jailed Seven Years

Ronald S. Porter, 23, was sentenced Wednesday to seven years in prison for conspiracy to traffic in LSD.

Judge William Ostler described the accused as in the "nefarious business up to his eyebrows."

Porter, 2852 Inez, pleaded guilty Nov. 30 to the conspiracy charge, an offence involving large quantities of LSD tablets, vials of "pure" LSD and tablet-making machines.

Ostler said a pre-sentence report exposed Porter as a young man in the recent past trafficking substantially in drugs. He noted that the man had a previous conviction for trafficking in marijuana.

The judge said the accused "and those of like persuasion were throwing down a gauntlet to law and decency."

He added that these people were "thumbing their noses" in contempt at parents and society in a conflict which sometimes took on "the aspects of a civil war."

Defence counsel Dermod Owen-Flood noted that his client had taken "the complete blame" for the offence.

Two other persons were originally charged jointly with Porter for several conspiracy offences but all other charges were dropped when the accused pleaded guilty.

Owen-Flood said Porter intended to get married and adopt a child and was settling down.

He said the accused had purchased the house where he lived and was renovating it. He added that Porter was also taking night school courses.

Teachers Defend Accused

Two documents from two former school teachers of Porter were entered by the defence.

One said the accused was an "interested, capable student" whole science exhibits were of "superior quality." The other noted that Porter was an A and B student during Grades 11 and 12.

An RCMP officer at an earlier appearance said that a 24-year-old American was apprehended at the Victoria International Airport last May with a vial containing two grams of "pure" LSD.

The pure LSD could be made into 15,000 "hits" of LSD, the officer said.

The American had Porter's phone number on a card with him when he was caught. James Dale Mitchell, of Albany, Calif., was sentenced to five years in prison.

Mitchell told police that he learned of Porter's drug dealing in San Francisco and paid $50 to another man for his phone number in the fall of 1970.

During the fall a year ago, Mitchell came to Victoria and made a deal with Porter involving 7,000 tabs of LSD.

The RCMP officer said Porter paid $1,000 in Canadian funds with the $700 balance to be paid later.

Porter later sold Mitchell a tablet-making machine he had built for two grams of pure LSD, 5,000 doses of synthetic mescaline and $700 cash.

The Mountie said Porter sold a second tablet-making machine to a United States federal bureau of narcotics agent Oct. 21. The machine was capable of producing 10,000 tablets an hour.

At the time Porter had three other machines near completion.

The U.S. agent paid $500 down for the machine with the balance of $2,000 to follow the next day.

Weigh scales, powdered milk and orange powder was found by police at the accused's address on Inez. A tablet machine was found set up in the basement "with powder being fed into the machine by a funnel."

Police also found other gears and dyes in the search of a basement on Balmoral Oct. 22.

TRAILER TRUCK TANGLES WIRING

A loaded tractor-trailer unit played havoc with overhead wiring, street lights and telephone poles on Government Street Wednesday evening.

City police said the truck, owned by Doman's Transport Ltd. and driven by Raymond Chamberlin of Cobble Hill, was travelling north on Government about 7:45 p.m. The vehicle was loaded with a fork lift.

At Government and Discovery, the high load pulled down numerous overhead wires and two B.C. telephone poles.

Unions Launch Major Drive To Woo Breakaway Members

Several British Columbia unions have launched a drive to bring back "breakaway" members who have joined other unions.

More than 10,000 pamphlets have been distributed to members of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, Canadian Electrical Workers Union, Canadian Association of Mechanical and Allied Workers and United Metal and Mine Workers.

"The poor performance of these breakaway groups and the need for unity in the difficult bargaining expected in 1972 has led to this campaign," said Tom Gooderham of Vancouver, regional director for the Canadian Labor Congress.

Gooderham is chairman of the B.C. Organizing Committee, composed of representatives of the CLC, B.C. Federation of Labor, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, United Steelworkers, International Association of Machinists and International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

He said fragmentation of unions "serves only the employers' interests. The labor movement needs these workers back in the house of labor and they (the workers) need to be back in the house of labor."

The biggest of the independent Canadian unions is the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, with 6,500 members including mills at Crofton and Harmac on Vancouver Island. They were formerly in the pulp-sulphite union.

MDs' Fee Talks Continue

The president of the B.C. Medical Association said today negotiations are still under way with the provincial government on a new fee schedule for doctors.

Dr. Walter Anderson declined further comment on that issue but said a modified cabinet order relating to doctors' hospital privileges had been accepted in draft form by the association.

He said he did not know whether the draft the doctors had approved has also been accepted by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark.

The original cabinet order, passed in July, gave Loffmark "the ultimate authority to grant, restrict or deny a doctor hospital privileges.

After a prolonged protest by doctors the government agreed to modify the order after a series of secret meetings with BCMA representatives.

Terms of the proposed new order were detailed by Loffmark several weeks ago but it has not yet been passed by cabinet.

NIMBLE STEEL WORKERS make a rare appearance in Victoria as they work on skeleton of the Wilson Centre. Six-storey office building rising on Broughton at Blanshard is scheduled for completion by Feb. 28.

'Explicit' Sex Scenes Ground Stewardesses

The Stewardesses, a three-dimensional film, was barred from the screens Wednesday afternoon in Victoria and Vancouver by Famous Players Ltd. management.

In Victoria, after a well-attended four-week run at the Capital, the show was cut at 2:25 p.m., 40 minutes after the film began, and senior manager Martin Cave made an on-stage announcement to the 100 patrons that they could collect refunds on the way out.

J. W. Anderson, Victoria provincial court chief prosecutor, and two Victoria police detectives were in the audience but their presence had nothing to do with the sudden cancellation.

PEOPLE ANNOYED

David Gow, regional manager of Famous Players, said company headquarters in Toronto and Astral Films of Canada mutually agreed to withdraw the film because "people were annoyed" with its "explicit sex scenes."

Gow said the appearance of the police in the Capitol was "coincidental" since instructions from Toronto had come around noon.

One of the police present, Staff Sgt. Walter Calwell, said they had attended because of a number of complaints made to the department.

OTHERS OPEN

The film was seized earlier by police in Saskatchewan and Manitoba and obscenity charges are pending against two theatres there.

The film was passed for "adults only" viewing by the B.C. film classification director, with a "completely concerned with sex" warning in newspaper advertisements.

With the disappearance of The Stewardesses in Victoria, a welter of sex-oriented films open today in other theatres.

For instance, at the Coronet, there's Kama Sutra, "photographed where 500 million people use Kama Sutra mystic marriage techniques to improve their love life." On with it is The Ideal Marriage, "an intimate chronicle."

And at the Haida, film viewers are offered The Minx and Aroused, which are heralded as "a blast of desire" and "incredibly imaginative" and which draws a warning from the censor as having "excessive nudity and sex."

Meanwhile, Odeon I is introducing Out of Touch, where the doctor "undresses his patients to discuss their problems." The B.C. censor calls it "a documentary on psychiatric group therapy with swearing, nudity and coarse language."

UVic Enrolment Down

Enrolment figures released Wednesday by the University of Victoria show that the number of full-time undergraduates at the university is down 312 from last year, a decrease of 6.3 per cent.

The figures show 4,624 students registered as of Dec. 1, compared with 4,936 a year ago.

The number of part-time students at UVic increased from 655 last year to 827 this year. Likewise the number of graduate students has increased by 10 from last year, when there were 285 graduate students.

This means total enrolment at UVic, counting full-time and part-time undergraduates and graduate students, decreased this year from a 1970 total of 5,876 to 5,746 on Dec. 1, a drop of 2.2 per cent.

The registrar's office is conducting a study to determine why so many students who applied to return to UVic, and were approved, did not actually come back.

New Deal Seen By UVic Head

The new president of the University of Victoria said Wednesday night he plans an extensive overhaul of academic planning and government of the university and hopes to see a new tenure document for UVic within six months.

Farquhar said two "task forces" will be commissioned to study the issues of academic planning and university governance and that the tenure document committee has resumed efforts to overhaul the system of tenure at the university.

FAR-REACHING

"I propose to take some action which could have far-reaching implications for the future of the university," Farquhar said.

He said the task force on academic planning will be charged with "making an intensive study of the academic development of the university . . . to include such areas as the place of graduate studies, the place of research, the role of summer session and of the division of Continuing Education.

"The study group will consider the feasibility of new types of programs and new areas to be explored . . . and all aspects of academic growth and development," he said.

SIX MONTHS

Farquhar said this task force should make a six-month study "culminating in a blueprint for the future of the university."

The group's report would be submitted to the president and would not be binding. The president "will use it as he sees fit — possibly referred to the senate, to the board of governors or other interested groups for action."

FARQUHAR
. . . task forces planned

The group would be composed of members who have "a broad view of academic needs in the University," he said, and added that appointment of a director would be possible.

RIGHTS, DUTIES

The second task force would deal with the issue of government of the university, he said.

This group will deal with "the inter-relationships that exist between senate, board of governors, faculty association, joint faculties, students, etc."

It will examine alternative structures of organization and governance, he said, and will look at the place of the departments, their heads, and their powers and responsibilities. Rights and duties of individuals within the organization would also be considered.

Farquhar said the tenure document committee "is making a fresh start in a complete study of the concept of tenure."

"This should culminate in a new tenure document by the end of six months," he said.

"It is my sincere and optimistic hope that out of these studies will come the kind of knowledge and wisdom that will provide us with a sense of direction and purpose."

TOUGHEST JOB

Farquhar said he was chairman of a committee which studied the matter of academic planning at UVic nearly 10 years ago, "and that was one of the toughest jobs I ever undertook."

"I am aware of the enormity of this task," he said. "I believe that the climate is more favorable now than it was at that time."

"With the proper attitudes and with full co-operation I think that we can produce classic reports that could pave the way for an exciting future," he said. "I am convinced that we have the potential to achieve greatness in this university. I think these three studies will provide the guidelines we need for future development."

Public Court Martial Begins For Serviceman on Drug Counts

A 19-year-old serviceman is charged with four counts of trafficking and one of possession of drugs in a standing court martial that began at CFB Esquimalt today.

Pte. Tyler Anthony Weselak of the navigator directional school at Naden is accused of:

- Delivering to Pte. Richard Wilson between Oct. 8 and Oct. 12 a quantity of 3,4-methylenedioxyamphetamine, commonly known as MDA, an hallucinatory drug.
- The second charge is that he delivered to Wilson between those dates "a substance held out to be a restricted drug," namely MDA.
- Delivering a quantity of a restricted drug, MDA, to Miss Katherine Anne McDonnell on Oct. 24.
- As in the second charge, this charge is an alternative that he delivered to Miss McDonnell "a substance held out to be a restricted drug," namely MDA.
- The fifth charge is that of being in possession of MDA between Aug. 27 and Oct. 24.

Weselak pleaded not guilty on all counts.

The standing court martial, open to the public, is the first of its kind to be held on the west coast.

Court martial president, Lt.-Col. Clive Rippon of the judge-advocate's office explained today that Weselak was being tried by this means because:

"This is purely a criminal type of offence —not a military type of offence."

He added that in such cases it was more appropriate to have "someone who knows the law" rule on the court martial.

For the Voter . . . Sky-Pie and Ho-Hum

LOCAL ELECTIONS rarely generate much heat on this favored peninsula, and that's not as it should be. In theory at least, what happens or is likely to happen in our home parishes should be of prime importance to those who inhabit them.

Yet this year as in others when a December trip to the polls is in prospect, the campaigning has been as lukewarm as its reception by the voters it's aimed at.

What should be a vital process of democracy has become scarce more than a casual exercise to be shuffled out of the way before city and municipalities return to business as usual.

As a result, this important matter of choosing those who will conduct the peoples' business has acquired an aura of unreality.

It is customary to blame the voter for this state of affairs. He isn't interested . . . He doesn't really care who governs him . . . Where civic government is concerned, he's apathetic.

I'm by no means sure that such glib criticisms apply. The opinion I've formed is that the voter is less apathetic than just plain bewildered.

He isn't interested in pie-in-the-sky promises. Personality clashes between this candidate or that may entertain him, but they don't provide him with the firm answers that he needs and should be getting from those who would have a part in the levying and spending of his tax money.

All too often, those who avail themselves of the opportunity to lay their intentions on the line seem incapable of coming out flatfooted with firm and unambiguous statements that would provide the voter with the wherewithal on which to base his polling-day decisions.

Platitudes, sky-pie and waffling are poor substitutes for plain speaking. If more candidates could bring themselves to an awareness of that fact, I suspect we'd have fewer apathetic absentees from the polling stations on election day.

Let us consider the case of Lionel Duperry of Ottawa, a cook who seeks to better himself. With this in mind, Duperry hung up his apron after five kitchen years and embarked on an education program aimed at boosting the academic standing needed before the province of Ontario would certify him.

But Duperry has a beef.

"I can see the need for a subject like math," he has declared. "But tell me — how in hell can Shakespeare's poems help me in the kitchen?"

Good question! It points up a perfectly ridiculous situation in which others besides this irked cook find themselves when sufficient distinction isn't made between education and job training. It also indicates the need for a wholesale return to an apprenticeship system that would offer the bored potential dropout an escape-hatch from the classroom into a trade.

May he soon exchange his present double, double, toil and trouble for fire burn and cauldron bubble!

With certification, naturally.

It remains now to explain the disappearance of this column from its accustomed place for over a week.

First, though, a thank-you and a reassurance to many kind readers who remembered my reference to a slight, roving ache, and jumped to the conclusion that all was not well with my innards.

Nothing like that — merely an out-of-season holiday to allow time for an unhurried reassessment of a feature now in its tenth year.

With that taken care of, I've picked up tools on a new working schedule, and with a new agreement with the Times which makes me very happy.

From here on, it'll be three columns a week, to run each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

When Racing in Victoria Was a Sporting Holiday

"All Vancouver racetrackers looked forward to the annual meetings at the Colwood and Willows tracks on Vancouver Island. Racing in Vancouver they regarded as a business. But the late season weeks in Victoria were regarded as a sporting holiday. The purses were small; the officiating was rather casual; the horsemen left their wives behind in Vancouver and everyone made the eighty-mile voyage across the inland sea with the express purpose of have a hell of a good time."

Besides, Jim Coleman tells the delightful tale of a gregarious soul called "The Flea," who once had his ear lobe pierced by a conductor's ticket punch. The attack took place while "The Flea" was serenading his inamorata, a Victoria laundress, with his harmonica. His assailant, a pugilist of slight repute, one of Deacon Allen's boys, was in turn knocked cold by the enraged lover with one blow to the head by the mouth organ. Whereupon Allen wryly commented: "This bum is a born loser; that's the second time tonight he's been knocked out."

Yes, Jim Coleman, author, columnist, and a man who generated a life-long love affair with the sport of racing, tells all this, and much more in a hilarious book, "A Hoofprint on My Heart," a sentimental story deeply steeped in racing folklore.

Jim was hooked on horses early, even before he was banished to a "maximum security" institution known as University School. And if all his early education isn't completed there, he had his childish vocabulory deeply enriched by attending the shoeing of a race horse named Col. Boyle at the Willows race track.

'No Better Than God Intended'

A son of a former president of the CPR, D. C. Coleman, Jim declined to heed his family's advice to become a surgeon, quit or failed at McGill, and took up newspapering. Later he owned, and raced hores; once won $2,200 in a single day of bets; and almost throughout his career waged a spirited battle with the grape, and lost. Now he espouses for A.A.

Jim made many friends, some of whom were "no better than God intended them to be." There were the bums, the drifters, the touts, and such characters, as Whittlin' Knifey . . . High-Ball Kelly . . . The Caviar Kid . . . Seven Dollar . . . Irish Davy . . . Acie Smith . . .

"Seven Dollar" was a train conductor who got his nickname by negotiating his own price for the train ride from Saskatoon to Winnipeg. The regular fare was $14. The story is that "Seven Dollar" would throw this found money into the air, and all that landed, and stuck, on the emergency cord that ran down the centre of the car, would be turned over to the proper authorities. The rest he would keep.

Smith was a bandy-legged ex-jockey whose wife was the proprietor of the Colwood Inn. While Acie campaigned on the track, Mrs. Smith stayed where the money was. Acie also was known as "Cougar" Smith for, by his own boast, he was the monarch of all cougar hunters.

He was the Baron Munchasen of his time, too, and on his good days, which were numerous, he would give some of the credit to his good mare, Bee's Wing, for his cougar-hunting prowess.

'Getting to Colwood Half the Fun'

"Smith used to tell the story of how two cougars invaded his barn one winter night. Bee's Wing used her teeth to open her stall door. Then the old mare trapped the cougars in one corner of the barn, turned her back to them, and kicked them to death. When Acie went to the barn in the morning, he found the two dead cougars. Bee's Wing had gone back into her stall, and had used her teeth to re-lock the door."

"Getting to Colwood was half the fun in those days," Jim says, recalling the feats of Winnipeg Chilton, that amazingly fat taxi driver who used to cling precariously to the sides of the open sightseeing bus operated by Speed Olson, while collecting the fare of 50 cents.

Nostalgic? A bit. Because in part of that time zone between 1924 and 1939 when Colwood was a race track, I resided less than a quarter mile from that particular area on the backstretch where horses and jockeys disappeared from view behind a mound in the infield.

I can still hear the jocks yelling: "Move over, I'm coming through." Or as Jim says: "There was some strange shuffling of positions."

He mentions too the forgotten fact about the farmer who raised turkeys in the infield, and the apocryphal story of a jockey who once won a race with a Tom Turkey perched on his shoulder, and was disqualified for carrying more than the statutory five pounds of overweight.

It's all in the book and even if you're not a horse fan, you should enjoy it. It's about people, like ex-jockey Morris Fishman, "a man so strong he could stop an elephant going for a bale of hay."

Bisons Continue To Beat Wesmen

WINNIPEG (CP) — University of Manitoba Bisons won their fifth league game against no losses with a 66-54 decision over University of Winnipeg Wesmen in Western Canada basketball play Wednesday.

It was the 16th consecutive win for the Bisons over the Wesmen in league play.

A First for Pierre Keeps Habs on Pace

By Canadian Press

Pierre Bouchard scored his first National Hockey League goal Wednesday night in his 75th game. That leaves him just 48 goals and 710 games behind his illustrious father.

The elated youngster of Butch Bouchard, long-time NHL all-star defenceman with Montreal Canadiens, could recall every second of the momentous occasion.

The goal padded the lead for the Canadiens to 2-0 en route to a 4-2 victory over the troublesome Detroit Red Wings and kept Montreal in a second-place tie with Boston Bruins in the East, one point behind division leading New York Rangers.

The Rangers were held to a 2-2 standoff by Chicago Black Hawks while Boston Bruins broke out in the third period for a 5-3 win over Los Angeles Kings.

In other games, Toronto Maple Leafs upset Minnesota North Stars 3-1 and Pittsburgh Penguins pulled out a 1-1 tie with California Golden Seals.

READY FOR CHECK

"I was moving into the Detroit end to check Mickey Redmond," recalled Bouchard later in the dressing room, "when the puck came to me off the boards.

"I had plenty of time to take the shot and though I backhanded it I had quite a lot behind it."

While the score ended Bouchard's career-long drought, it ended a somewhat frustrating year for another Canadien defenceman, all-star J. C. Tremblay.

The skilful Canadiens' blueliner, held scoreless throughout the season, opened the scoring, then notched the winner near the end of the second period after scores by Detroit's Doug Volmar and Red Berenson evened the count at 2-2.

SCORES TYING GOAL

Another centre, Boston's Phil Esposito, the league's other 20-goal scorer, didn't hit against the Kings but padded his points' lead to 47, one ahead of Ratelle, with three assists.

Boston's Derek Sanderson faced a possible three-game suspension and fines totalling $150 after a third-period confrontation with referee Bryan Lewis.

Money Does Talking, And Causes Confusion

In the Great Hockey War

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

First there was the report quoting centre Derek Sanderson of Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League as rejecting an offer of $250,000 for two years' employment with the Miami entry in the World Hockey Association.

Then came a report that the Winnipeg franchise in the WHA had $1 million it would part with for Bobby Hull of Chicago Black Hawks. For a multi-year contract, of course.

And still later came the story out of Minneapolis that at least four members of the North Stars had been approached by someone attached to the WHA.

"Somebody has been having pipe dreams," retorts Hull.

". . . No offers were made and no agreements entered into," says Bob Woolf, lawyer for Sanderson, among others.

Woolf claims Sanderson did not receive an offer to reject.

"A man from the WHA, Herb Martin of Miami, phoned me the other day to talk about Derek and mentioned that figure $250,000," Woolf said.

"I mentioned it to Derek and I guess he mentioned it to some newspapermen and now the whole thing has been blown way out of proportion."

He said Martin and others would journey to Boston Dec. 18 for talks and "I owe it to all my clients to listen."

Hull, responding to reports that Ben Hatskin of Winnipeg had made the $1 million, five-year offer, said:

"I don't know anything about it and I've never been approached."

Hatskin was reported as backing up Hull's position.

"What I said was that I would give a million dollars to have Hull, but I have not made any direct offer to him or talked to him about any deal."

On the other hand, Goldsworthy, Jude Drouin, Cesare Maniago and Barry Gibbs, all of the North Stars, were reported as saying they have been approached by the WHA.

According to reports, Goldsworthy reacted this way:

"It doesn't cost a dime to listen. If the money is right and if I could get a three-or-four-year contract with money in escrow, why not?"

Is there any fire at all behind all this smoke?

"All I know now is that many of the WHA people also helped start the American Basketball Association," Woolf said.

Soccer Changes

All scheduled games for Sunday in the Victoria and District Soccer League have been postponed because of poor field conditions but matches postponed from last weekend will be played on dryer pitches at Beacon Hill Park.

Labatts take on Gorge in a second division tussle Saturday on the lower field. On Sunday, Cosmopolitan Royals meet Duncan Village Green in a first division match on the lower field while Lake Hill is battling Prospect Lake in a second division match on the upper field.

All matches start at 2:15 p.m.

KING OF SOCCER BLAMED FOR FAILURE OF SANTOS

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Pele, sometimes called the King of Soccer, is having his worst season ever, and even his own team seems to be down on him.

The sports newspaper Jornal dos Sports reported Wednesday that directors of the Santos Club hold 31-year-old Pele directly responsible for the team's failure to make the final in this year's Brazilian national pro tournament.

Club officials and even some teammates accuse Pele of "trying to solve all the team's problems by himself," the paper said.

They reportedly feel Pele takes too long to make passes and that this is why Santos had trouble setting up effective scoring plays.

Pele, who has made only one goal — from a free kick — in Santos' 22 tournament starts, has retired from the Brazilian all-star team but plans to play a few more seasons with Santos.

Bruins Perform In Coach's Style

By ERNIE FEDORUK

Times Staff

As coach does, players do.

Which, in part, explains why the Bruins were able to skate to an easy 5-2 victory over the Cougars and stretch Victoria's Western Canada Hockey League losing streak to a ninth game Wednesday at Memorial Arena.

McLean flaunted his defiance early. He bucked hockey regulations by refusing to order his players to wear protective headgear.

The helmetless players carried their bravado onto the ice. They intimidated the Cougars at every turn, even defied officials, and the results all turned out in New Westminster's favor.

STRUCK LINESMAN

Bruins took eight of the game's 12 penalties to challenge Victoria's power play. Although the Cougars struck for one goal with the extra man, the challenge went unanswered.

Bruins' Les Jackson hurled the defiance at the officials. Miffed because he was bodily parted from a bear-hugging match with Victoria's Greg Robinson, Jackson turned on linesman Brian Cross. He hit Cross with one solid blow, grazed the linesman with a second punch.

Jackson was tagged only with a fighting major and escaped any penalty that might have suspended him from hockey.

IN COMMAND

The Bruins, jumping into a 5-0 lead, were in complete charge.

Goals by Len Chalmers and Wayne Bianchin salvaged some degree of respectability, but came too late to offer any serious threat.

The line of Lorne Henning, Bernie Lukowich and Grant Casper powered the brazen Bruins, Henning and Lukowich each scored twice and tacked on an assist each. Don Martineau counted Westminster's other goal.

The Bruins enjoyed early-jump benefits from a sos-so performance by Victoria goalie Dave Maynard. Both of Lukowich's shots, though well directed, were from far out. Martineau scored from a face-off situation that Maynard appeared to have covered, until the puck dribbled between his legs into the net.

BROKE OUT WELL

If the Cougars deserve any credit, it must be directed at their breakout efforts. They came out of their own zone with a positiveness that had been missing in recent games.

On attack, it was a different matter. The Cougars threatened only in the late stages. They displayed a reluctance to shoot and to bodycheck.

Cents Crack Tiger Streak

Times News Services

Good offence may often be the best defence, but that wasn't the case Wednesday at Medicine Hat.

Calgary Centennials, the Western Canada Hockey League team with the best defensive record, took a 4-3 overtime nod over Medicine Hat Tiges, the team with the most prolific attack.

The victory hurled Calgary into sole possession of first place in the Western Division, one point ahead of the idle Edmonton Oil Kings.

Elsewhere, three consecutive goals by Dan McCarthy and Henry Durkin's steady netminding sparked Swift Current Broncos to an easy 8-0 romp over Flin Flom Bombers.

CALGARY HERO

Winger Russ Weichnik was Calgary's hero, scoring at 1:42 of sudden-death overtime to sink Melicine Hat and snap Tigers' six-game undefeated streak.

Doug Horbul, Bob Nystrom and Ron Homenuke also counted for Cents while Stan Weir, Tom Lysiak and Bruce Greig counted for Medicine Hat within an eight-minute span in the third period.

At Medicine Hat, a penalty shot helped McCarthy score three consecutive goals. Terry McDougall added a pair while singles went to Kelly Pratt, Alex Kogler and Brent Leavins.

Finley Silent On Move Plan

CHICAGO (AP) — Some major league baseball executives are manoeuvring to help Charles O. Finley break his long-term lease on the Oakland, Calif., Coliseum, and move his baseball and hockey teams to Washington, D.C., says the Chicago Sun-Times.

The newspaper Wednesday quoted a "highly-placed National League executive" as saying that the league is anxious to relocate Oakland because "it's obvious that the Bay area can't support two major league baseball teams."

The San Francisco Examiner, meanwhile, quotes Finley as saying: "I don't want to say anything about it. I don't want to get into hot water here with the people of Oakland."

Robert T. Nahas, president of the Oakland-Alameda County Coliseum board, said Finley has "a firm" contract to keep his Athletics at the stadium for another 16 years. He said Finley's California Golden Seals of the National Hockey League have a contract running another three years.

The Sun-Times however, said, "some major league baseball moguls in both the American and National leagues already have begun behind-the-scenes discussions of ways and means to help Finley break his long-term baseball lease."

The paper did not identify any of the executives or owners.

Many Steelhead Caught From Commercial Boats

Should steelhead trout be allowed in the commercial salmon fisherman's catch?

This question has been debated for many years by steelhead sports fishermen with one obvious conclusion — NO!

To all steelheaders the concept of such a trout being caught and sold on a commercial basis is extremely distasteful. This is particularly so when the steelhead is recognized throughout the world as the most exalted trophy trout available for the stream angler.

In actual fact, however, steelhead have been and continue to be a commercial fishery in B.C., even though the catch is excused on the naive basis that it is an "incidental catch" by commercial salmon fishermen. These incidental catches are justified, so the argument goes, on the basis that the majority are taken by commercial gill net fishermen working the waters near the mouths of rivers or inlets.

Just how incidental is this commercial catch and how does it affect the steelhead angler's sport and success?

Using complete figures for 1967, that year had a total of 25,000 steelhead recorded in the commercial catch. That same year 48,000 steelhead were estimated as being caught by approximately 25,000 sports fishermen. Thus we see a commercial catch of over 50 per cent of the total sports fishermen's catch.

Since 1967 the commercial catch has fallen almost to a half, 13,000 in the 1970 total. The estimated sports catch has also dropped to 37,000, even though steelhead licences and angling pressure have almost doubled — from 25,000 in 1967 to 46,000 in 1970.

In 1970, sports fishermen took a greater share of the total catch. However, the commercial catch was still 36 per cent of the sports catch.

Using the generally accepted 11 hours of actual river time per beached fish, these commercially caught steelhead could have added over a quarter of a million angler recreation hours.

Using an economic yardstick these commercially caught steelhead (1970 standards) had a wholesale value of $5.50 per fish. Their recreational value on the other hand in monies by the licensed sports fisherman was more than $150. The commercial catch in 1970 had a wholesale value of $71,000. In the angler's creel this same catch in 1970 would, theoretically, have had a value of almost $2 million.

Vancouver Island figures related to the commercial catch show clearly why steelhead anglers are being shortchanged in many of the rivers.

For example the commercial catch for steelhead in Area 23, the head of Alberni Inlet, in 1967 was 1,099 fish. These are the fish which frequent the Somass-Stamp-Ash system. The total estimated sports catch for the rivers in Alberni Inlet in 1967 was 2,859 steelhead.

Another area subject to high commercial steelhead catches is Area 12, the northeast section of the Island above Johnson Strait. These are the steelhead which migrat through the Nimpkish and Salmon River systems. In 1967, 3,000 steelhead were taken from this area by commercial fishermen.

In 1967, Vancouver Island and approximately 10,500 steelhead licences and the total sports catch was estimated at 18,500 steelhead. The total commercial catch for that year in the areas surrounding Vancouver Island was 5,150 fish.

Like the 12-inch grilse regulation for salmon sports fishermen, commercial salmon fishermen should return all steelhead caught "incidentally" to the water, undamaged. Commercial catches of steelhead should be banned and it should be illegal for a commercial fisherman to have a steelhad on his fishing vessel.

Baseball Fate Deals Denny Sad Bounce

VIDA BLUE.
. . . most shutouts

BOSTON (AP) — If you want to know about the funny bounces a baseball can take, you might try talking with Denny McLain.

In 1968, McLain won 31 games for Detroit Tigers. No baseball player had won that many games in 36 years.

Three years later, McLain, now with Washington Senators, is once again in the American League record books. This time, though, it is for the most consecutive losses in 1971—nine. The dubious achievement, along with other highs and lows, was announced Wednesday by the American League office.

Dave McNally of Baltimore Orioles had the most consecutive victories, 13, while Vida Blue of the Oakland Athletics led the league with eight shutouts and also struck out the most players in a game, 17 in 11 innings against California Angels. Sam McDowell of Cleveland Indians and Mickey Lolich and Joe Coleman, both of the Tigers, were tied for most strikeouts in a nine-inning game, 14.

Graig Nettles of Cleveland Indians had the longest hitting streak, 19 games, and also was one of five players to get five hits in a game.

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Football League's annual draft of college seniors will be held in New York City beginnig Feb. 1, the league announced Tuesday.

Italian, English Clubs Rolling

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Clubs from Italy and England looked well placed to dominate the final stages of the European Football Association Cup after third-round matches Wednesday night.

Italian teams won through to the quarter-finals while England should be represented in similar strength when Tottenham Hotspur completes its tie against Rapid Bucharest of Romania.

Tottenham won Wednesday night's first leg, 3-0, with England striker Martin Chivers scoring twice, while fellow English First Division team Wolverhampton Wanderers beat East Germany's Carl Zeiss Jena, 3-0, to complete a 4-0 over-all victory. Irish international Derek Dougan scored twice for Wolves.

Favorite Juventus won, 4-1, against Rapid Vienna for a 5-1 aggregate victory with Roberto Bettega, scorer of the only first-leg goal, adding three more Wednesday night. But Juventus's Italian league colleagues, AC Milan, only scraped through on a 3-2 aggregate after losing, 2-0, to Dundee United of Scotland.

Zeleznicar Sarajevo of Yugoslavia also loomed as a dangerous contender after crushing Scotland's St, Johnstone, 5-1, to win 5-2 on aggregate. Bukal slammed three goals for Zeleznicar.

HUNGARY WINS

Hungary's Ferencvaros was an equally impressive 5-2 winner over Eintracht Brunswick of West Germany. Balint and Branikovivts each scored twice for Frencvaros, which won, 6-3, on aggregate.

Romania's Unizale Textile Arad also reached the last eight despite loosing, 1-0, to Vitoria Setubal of Portugal. Their 3-0 first-leg victory was enough to give Unizale a 3-1 over-all triumph.

Belgium's Lierse SK, surprise first-round conqueror of England's Leeds United, claimed another highly-rated victim when it thrashed PSV Eindhoven, 4-0, to win 4-1 on aggregate.

West Ham United scored a 2-1 win over Stoke City in the first leg of their English Football League Cup semi-final.

Peter Dobing gave Stoke the lead in the 14th minute. Geoff Hurst tied it for West Ham from the penalty stop in the 28th minute and Bermuda-born Clyde Best hammered in the winner after 62 minutes.

Red-Hot Lakers Run 18 Straight

By The Associated Press

"As we win more games, we become more confident, we work harder and hopefully play better," said Los Angeles coach Bill Sharman.

If Sharman's philosophy is correct, the Lakers have to be supremely confident.

The rampaging Lakers tied the second-longest winning streak in National Basketball Association history, holding off the surprisingly stubborn Houston Rockets 125-120 Wednesday night for their 18th consecutive victory.

The triumph enabled Los Angeles to equal the 18-game winning skein compiled by New York Knicks two seasons ago and put the Lakers within two of the NBA record of 20 set last season by Milwaukee Bucks.

The Lakers can move within one victory of tying the Bucks' mark by beating Golden State tonight at Oakland. The Warriors were the last team to beat Los Angeles, edging the Lakers 109-105 on Oct. 31.

Elsewhere, Boston Celtics whipped Cleveland Cavaliers 126-107, Philadelphia '76ers downed Cincinnati Royals 115-109 and Baltimore Bullets walloped Portland Trail Blazers 115-97.

The Rockets, whose 6-22 record is the second worst in the NBA, led 105-104 with 7:38 remaining and were not beaten until the Lakers' Jerry West hit six three throws in the final two minutes.

West finished with 33 points, but yielded game-scoring honors to team-mate Gail Goodrich, who poured in 42 points.

Kevin Loughery scored 11 straight last-period points for Philadelphia, enabling the '76ers to stave off Cincinnati.

Baltimore, behind Archie Clark's 30 points and 10 assists, ended a three-game losing streak in beating Portland.

BADMINTON MEET STARTS FRIDAY

Judi and Bruce Rollick of Vancouver are top-seeded singles entrants in the B.C. Festival of Winter Sports badminton tournament which begins Friday at 7:30 p.m. in the Racquet Club, not tonight as originally scheduled.

Opening games were postponed one evening because of the high proportion of out-of-town players to local entrants, who were scheduled to start play tonight while visitors were to begin Friday.

Toronto Council Asks Second Mod Sod Look

TORONTO (CP) — Metropolitan Toronto council has asked for a second look at artificial turf before approving it for the Canadian National Exhibition Stadium.

The council's executive committee, after witnessing soggy conditions with artificial turf during the Grey Cup football game Nov. 28 at Vancouver, has appointed a five-man sub-committee to conduct the investigation.

Two weeks before the game, council approved the turf in principle for the stadium at a cost of $400,0000.

The sub-committee will look at the advantages and disadvantages of the turf in view of drainage, injuries and whether it can be used for other events at the stadium.

FOOD PERMIT YEARLY MUST

All operators of restaurants and catering businesses will be required to have an annual permit from the local medical health officer after April 1, 1972, Health Minister Ralph Loffmark announced.

Loffmark said such operators must be able to satisfy the health officer that they have the "ability to handle foods safely."

This will involve demonstrating "sufficient knowledge of his business" and "adequate equipment to ensure the safety of the public."

Vending machines are covered by the regulations which will go into effect April 1, 1972.

Loffmark said voluntary caterers such as church supper organizers will be covered by rules governing personal hygiene.

"The increasing incidence of food poisoning outbreaks has made these regulations necessary," Loffmark said.

Youth Suspected

ST. WALBURG, Sask. (UPI) — RCMP spokesmen said Wednesday they were holding a 15-year-old suspect in connection with a triple slaying which took place Tuesday.

Few details of the incident were released but police did say 53-year-old William Kidd and his 18-year-old son James William Kidd were shot and Mrs. Lily Kidd, 47, was bludgeoned to death. The murders took place in the Spruce Lake district, 300 miles northwest of Regina. The suspect, whose name was not released, is a resident of St. Walburg.

'Militants' Slam Munro for Cash Cut

HAMILTON (CP) — John Munro, federal minister of health and welfare, has cancelled a $35,000-a-year grant to a local welfare rights group because it is too militant, an organizer of the group said Wednesday night.

William Freeman, a New Democratic Party candidate in the Oct. 21 provincial election and one of the 400-member group's two paid organizers, said in a telephone interview from Toronto the decision was politically motivated.

The group, the Hamilton Welfare Rights Organization, is in Mr. Munro's federal riding of Hamilton East.

It was to receive $35,000 a year for three years but in a letter dated Dec. 1, Mr. Munro stated the grant would be cut off Dec. 31, the end of the first year.

"He said in the letter that the group was too militant and he cut us off," Mr. Freeman said. "That was his only reason . . .

"There's a group in Calgary that's a lot more militant than our group. They haven't been cut off. There's the Black Coalition in Halifax. They haven't been cut off."

Mr. Freeman said the group still plans to carry on but without paid staff.

The group has been critical of the local welfare board and the Hamilton Housing Authority which is the local agent for the Ontario Housing Corporation.

Another protest was a picket line that demonstrated against facilities at a men's hostel run by the Salvation Army.

Quaife Wants Retraction

DUNCAN — Mayor Jim Quaife said today Ald. Martin Lukaitis owes him a retraction because of some "inaccurate and misleading statements he has charged to me."

Lukaitis, who is running against Quaife in Saturday's election, charged Monday evening at an all-candidates' meeting that Quaife would not release a $3,500 city administration survey, that he was withholding financial statements from council members, and that the city now faces "thousands of dollars in legal suits" regarding a contract for a new water tower.

"I do not intend to become involved in a mud-smearing campaign," Quaife said. "I will not commit character assassination in order to retain my seat on council. However, I do feel that the actions charged to me are inaccurate and misleading and a retraction is in order."

Quaife said that a motion to make the city administration survey public in its entirety was defeated by council " on the basis that it had not received proper discussion by council both with and without the administrator and any public release at this time would be premature."

He said a motion to have the administrator issue an accounts list to each member of council of the accounts paid from general funds, showing in particular the cheque number, the payee and the amount, was also defeated by council.

"Council defeated it on the basis that public accounts are available to all council cembers and the public now, and it does not require a special motion. Copies are available upon request," Quaife said.

Quaife said that no legal suit is pending in regards to the construction of the city's new water tower and none is contemplated.

Bill Scott Cool Aid's Choice

Scott walked off easily with top spot in a poll taken after a mayoralty all-candidates meeting Wednesday night in Cool Aid's hostel at 1900 Fernwood.

Ald. Peter Pollen was second with eight, Mayor Courtney Haddock got three and Foster Isherwood was last with two. There were two write-in votes. "Jesus Christ" got one, as did an expression signified by "B.S."

The real ballots for mayoralty and aldermanic contests will be cast Saturday.

Scott sang from Ave Maria to describe to the audience "for these sounds I was arrested," referring to an incident Monday evening after which Scott was arrested by city police.

Scott said he wanted to "pass on to you some of my stupidities." He added he has more of these because he is older than the predominantly young members of the audience.

Scott said "foreign landlords" have the wealth that is rightfully that of Victoria citizens, and promised "I will be sitting on Premier Bennett's doorstep" demanding laws to retrieve this wealth if elected mayor.

A major topic of the evening was the voter list which presented problems for Isherwood when he said he did not think apartment tenants should be allowed to vote on money bylaws.

Pollen followed Scott, saying everyone is obsessed with raising money when they should be concerned with the way it is spent. The fact that 60 per cent of the city's $6.3 million worth of capital works plans are geared for "accommodating the automobile" was an example of bad spending, Pollen said.

Haddock was kept waiting until close to 10 p.m. and at one point put on his coat to leave, but was persuaded to return.

He said Cool Aid had contributed to good relationships between police and youth.

He said he hoped the city could remain orderly.

NOT-SO-SAFE WEEK IN CAPITAL REGION

One person died and 26 were injured in a total of 119 accidents in the capital region district Safe Driving Week, Dec. 1 to 7.

The Capital Region Safety Council reported that last year, with fewer cars on the road, there were 125 accidents and 32 people hurt during the same period.

Sidney, one minor, injury-free accident; Colwood, nine accidents with two injuries; Sooke, two accidents with one death.

ONE VOTE ONLY FOR TRUSTEE POSTS

Persons who vote in the Saturday elections for trustees on the Greater Victoria school board will be allowed to vote in one polling place only, even if they are qualified to vote in more than one municipality.

Trustee elections in School District 61 are held on an at-large basis, with voters in Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and the district 61 portion of Saanich allowed to vote for a maximum of four candidates from the total of seven.

Polling places are the same as those used for voting in the municipal elections.

Pantie Case Bared

VANCOUVER (CP) — The pros and cons of frilly red panties as part of an airline stewardess' uniform were argued before a three-man arbitration board Tuesday.

Two Pacific Western Airline stewardesses asked for a ruling from the board after they refused to wear the uniform and subsequently were suspended without pay for six weeks.

"I feel it is not one of the requirements of my job to be undressed by passengers," said Sharon Gray in describing to the board the incident which caused her to refuse to wear the uniform.

Mrs. Gray was serving coffee on the Port Hardy to Vancouver run last June when a logger reached out and grabbed her bloomers.

"I didn't know whether they were going to pull them down," she said. "I backed away, went to the back of the aircraft and refused to serve them."

PWA lawyer Duncan Shaw said Mrs. Gray and co-worker Ursula Warnat "took the law into their own hands" by refusing to wear the uniform, which was withdrawn two weeks after the incident. It included white stetson and cowboy boots and a miniskirt.

Shaw said the airline's order to its stewardesses to wear the bloomers was legitimate and refusal to obey it would lead to "anarchy."

Lawyer Alex MacDonald, representing the stewardesses, said the individual should have the right to live within his own moral standards or sensibilities.

McCarthy In Race

BOSTON (AP) — Eugene McCarthy has signed a document ensuring that his name will be on the ballot in the Massachusetts April U.S. presidential primary. Secretary of State John F. X. Davoren said Wednesday his office has received a signed statement from the former U.S. senator from Minnesota.

More Support For Triangle

The executive of the Association of Vancouver Island Municipalities as well as Island regional district chairmen favor incorporating Hobitan-Tsusiat and Squalicum lakes into the Pacific Rim National Park.

This was disclosed Wednesday by Mayor Archibald Galbraith of Central Saanich at a meeting of the Capital Region District parks committee hearing submissions for and against a Sierra Club proposal to include the three wilderness lakes in the park.

The committee was expected to make a decision but tabled the matter for further study.

Galbraith said the decision to support the proposal to include the lakes adjacent to the West Coast Trail and near Nitinat Lake was taken at a recent informal meeting in Duncan.

His announcement apparently took some committee members by surprise and Galbraith was asked for more information on the meeting.

He said the executive of ACVI called the meeting and invited Island regional district board chairmen, the planning directors of the Capital Region and the Alberni-Kyuquot Region to be present for a discussion on the park issue.

'MY STAND'

"No vote was taken but the consensus was that the watershed of the three lakes should be included in the park," he said. "That is also my stand."

However, he noted, those present at the meeting urged a compromise with regard to a second Sierra Club proposal that the half-mile buffer zone along the West Coast Trail be enlarged to one or three miles where necessary.

The provincial and federal governments have tentatively agreed to a half-mile wilderness strip along the coastal trail between Port Renfrew and Bamfield.

SELECTIVE LOGGING

Galbraith said the opinion is that the buffer zone should remain a half-mile in width, but that selective logging be carried out along the boundary of the national park.

This means that a second buffer zone would be created where only selective logging would be permitted.

He explained the proposed addition to the park was raised at the ACVI meeting because he believed the question should involve everyone on Vancouver Island.

Galbraith, who is chairman of ACVI, was the only member of the regional committee to take a stand on the controversial park proposal.

Environmental societies, fish and game clubs, naturalist clubs, alpine clubs and Boy Scout groups have recommended over the past year that the three lakes be included in the park. Ten thousand Victorians have signed a petition in favor of the plan.

The board decided to defer the matter for further discussion after Harold Elder said expansion of the park boundaries might hamper the construction of a west coast road if, and when, such a highway is built.

Earlier, Rick Careless, president of the Victoria Sierra Club, told the committee the area requested represented only .01 per cent of B.C. forest lands.

He also noted the use of the wilderness trail is more than doubling each year.

In 1967 there were 150 hikers on the trail and in 1971 about 5,000, he said. (The figure is based on counts made of people who walked the whole or only part of the trail.)

"It was said that only a few people would ever use such a trail," he said.

"The lakes form the last wilderness watershed south of the Alberni Canal," he said.

Careless added the park addition would benefit the tourist industry.

He disagreed with the forest industry that at least 190 jobs would be affected by the removal of the land from forest use.

Joe MacKinnon, director of public affairs for the Council of Forest Industries, said if the lakes are included in the national park, all types of motor equipped vehicles would be prohibited in the park.

"There would be no vehicles and no access roads permitted if the proposed area is added to the park," he said. "This would prevent all types of people enjoying the park.

The logging companies subscribed to a multiple use policy for the area, he said, and by next summer a road would be completed to Hobitan Lake, where camping facilities would be provided.

Howard English, spokesman for the 13,000-member B.C. Wildlife Federation, denied MacKinnon's claim that there would be no access roads to the park.

"The national parks branch would certainly have roads to the lake area," he said. "It would only seek to protect the environment of certain sections of the park and who would disagree with such a policy."

MAHARAJAS LOSE RIGHTS

NEW DELHI (AP) — The upper house of the Indian Parliament gave final legislative approval today to Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's bill stripping the nation's maharajas of their annual pensions totalling $6.4 million and such princely privileges as tax exemptions on their properties, duty-free imports and free utilities.

The constitutional amendment also provides that a maharaja will no longer be called "his highness" but will be addressed as plain "mister."

The amendment now goes to President V. V. Giri for routine signature into law. It passed the upper house 167 to seven, and the lower house last week 381 to six.

A year ago, the Supreme Court overruled an executive decree eliminating the princely class, saying the government could not tamper with their pensions and privileges because they were a form of property.

There were no indication whether the maharajas would go to court again to fight the new legislation.

Voters Will Decide Land Buy—Mayor

Central Saanich Mayor A. M. Galbraith said Wednesday the proposed Brentwood land purchase will be approved or rejected at the Dec. 20 Council meeting according to voter opinion in Saturday's referendum

Chairing an all-candidate meeting in Brentwood, Mayor Galbraith made this promise after admitting the referendum was really an opinion poll and did not bind council to specific action.

The one-acre waterfront property is available for municipal purchase at $53,100. Questions on recreational facilities and parkland in Central Saanich occupied most of the discussion period following statements by eight aldermanic and five school board candidates.

Several residents were critical of what they termed a failure on the part of council to supply necessarry information to back up the Brentwood purchase.

Mayor Galbraith told E. T. Martin, 7116 Brentwood, that operating costs for the building on the Brentwood waterfront property in question were difficult to estimate because council had not as yet decided on specific uses.

After questuoning school board canadidate Gordon Ewan on the chances of more community use of school facilities, ratepayers were told that the present Saanich school board policy in this respect is, in Ewan's opinion "barren and unworkable."

Ideally, added Ewan, use of schools should be part of a municipal recreation program. "The municipality of Saanich works closely with school board" commented Ewan, referring to a combined-use building recently completed at Royal Oak Senior High. "But I would like to see North and Central Saanich take advantage of school facilities."

'Join Skagit Protest'

The federal government was urged Wednesday to join the state of Washington in opposing the flooding of the Skagit Valley.

William Hartley (NDP — Yale-Lillooet) said the federal government should lead the fight against the proposal on the Canadian side of the border.

"It is rather ironic that the state of Washington puts a greater value on recreational lands than does the province of B.C." Hartley said.

The Washington state ecology department Tuesday opposed the project which would flood 6,000 acres in B.C.

Hartley has been one of the leaders in the fight against Seattle City Light and Power's proposal to raise the dam level to generate more power for that city.

The B.C. government agreed to the flooding in 1967. The area to be flooded, south of Hope, is in Hartley's riding.

31 Aboard Crash Plane

MADRAS, India (Reuter) — A British-designed Avro aircraft of Indian Airlines crashed today about 30 miles from the southern Indian town of Madurai, a spokesman for the airline said.

The Avro, carrying 27 passengers and four crew members, was on a flight from Trivandrum in Kerala state to Madurai in Tamil Nadu state.

First reports said there were casualties, but full details were unavailable.

Air Charters Up Passengers UsingSharply

OTTAWA (CP) — The number of travellers using charter air service rose 24.4 per cent in the first six months of this year over the same period of 1970.

The federal Aviation Statistics Centre reported today the 1971 six-months total was 144,573, compared with 116,209 in the previous period.

The increase was in dramatic contrast to declines or generally-slight rises in the number of passengers on scheduled airline services at Canada's four major airports. But the charter total is still only a small fraction of total passenger volume.

The statistics also show slight declines in the total number of passengers handled at Montreal and Vancouver airports.

At Montreal, 1,318,259 passengers arrived in the first half of this year compared with 1,321,921 in the first six months of 1970. Arrivals at Vancouver were down to 620,999 from 627,168.

Total Calgary arrivals were up 3.6 per cent to 400,126 from 386,086. Toronto arrivals were up 3.1 per cent to 1,705,166 from 1,653,419.

Pot Smokers Face Early Senility

By ALFRED FRIENDLY

LONDON (WP) — Pot may blow a smoker's mind to a far greater extent that he dreams —to irreversible and serious brain damage, in fact — four doctors suggest in the current issue of The Lancet, a leading British medical journal.

Their examination of 10 heavy smokers of cannabis, average age 22, matched against 13 controls (non-smoking subjects showed evidence of cerebral atrophy of the kind often associated with old age, Parkinson's disease or sleeping sickness, and with symptoms of the last-named such as loss of memory, reversal of sleep rhythms, hallucinations and mental changes.

The four doctors, from Bristol and Cardiff hospitals, point out that cerebral atrophy — a wasting away of portions of the brain — is rare in young people, and ususlly only after physical injury to the head, a few kinds of severe infections in childhood or hereditary disease. None of these factors was significantly present in the series of 10 drug addicts examined.

HEAVY SMOKERS

All had been heavy pot smokers for from 3 to 11 years. In no case did the examiners find the occasional or prior use by the subjects of alcohol, amphetamines, LSD or hard drugs significant enough to account for either the physical symptoms of brain atrophy or their ominous mental state of depression, loss of memory, inability to concentrate or to work effectively, apathy and irritability.

The research, by a physician, neurologist, radiologist and psychiatrist, was not in itself a proof that the brain damage was caused by cannabis.

But, the authors pointed out, for a long period brain damage in professional boxers was not identified and "we would suggest that a similar state of affairs is happening in relation to drug abuse. Far to much attention has been paid to psychological and behavioral disturbances without relating these to the possibility of permanent damage to the brain."

The damage, in the form of enlargement or distortion in the ventricles, or cavities, of the brain, has revealed by air encephalograms. The subjects studied were alll males who had presented themselves at various hospitals for treatment of severre mental and behavioral problems.

In an accompanying editorial, The Lancet agrees with the authors' description and diagnosis but cautions against drawing too sweeping conclusions on the basis of a very small sample. The formal notes that ventricular dilation can be due to many other causes and — along with the reasearchers themselves — calls for much further research.

The editors point out, reinforcing the researchers' point, that in 97 per cent of cases of cerebral atrophy, however caused, the patients showed intellectual deterioration, and most showed prominent mood changes, emotional instablility anl inability to work.

Physicians interviewed in London over the weekend in regard to the article pointed out the smallness of the sample; the fact that the subjects were abnormal to begin with (being in need of hospital treatment) and that some had used alcohol, LSD and "speed" as well as cannabis.

But in general they were inclined to take the Lancet report as a very serious and disturbing document.

Alcoholic Bums 'Ignored' Part Of Social Fabric

EDMONTON (CP) — An expert says the skid-road alcoholic is an ignored segment of society and he has greater problems than other alcoholics.

Albert R. Charles, day clinic supervisor for the Alberta Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Commission, said many attempts have been made to help middle and higher-class alcoholics to solve their problems, but few people want to get involved with the seemingly-hopeless skid road "bums."

"Counsellors seem to invest themselves where the rewards are greatest," he said in an interview, adding that treating skid-road alcoholics is frustrating work requiring infinite patience.

"He is a difficult person to treat because his needs are so different to the middle- or higher-class alcoholics," he said.

Mr. Charles said it is much more difficult for a skid-road alcoholic to give up drinking than an alcoholic who has a home, a family that cares, and a certain amount of job security.

LACK MOTIVATION

"Skid-road people have nothing anyway—they have nothing to motivate them to give up drinking.

Drinking for them is a defence and an escape and they feel that if they can't really be happy, maybe if they drink they can at least pretend they are, he said.

When they stop drinking, they are rejected by the skid-road society and at the same time they are not accepted by the rest of society.

"Such alcoholics face a terrible loneliness," said Mr. Charles. "They wander for hours on end, with no money, nowhere to go and no one to talk to."

This is where Mr. Charles feels he and the commission can and should be helping.

NEEDS BUILDING

The commission has submitted a request to the provincial health and social welfare department for a suitable building in Edmonton's skid-road area.

The centre would aim at providing an atmosphere of growth to alcoholics trying to give up drinking. The idea is that it would be a stepping-stone from skid-road society into the mainstream of society.

"We have to supply a place where help is available in a place they know and feel comfortable in," Mr. Charles said.

People working with skid-road alcoholics cannot expect spectacular success, he said.

"The amount of success we get is so minimal—but here we have to consider what is success."

Digitalis Weakness Revealed

NEW YORK (AP) — An accidental discovery at Harlem Hospital has led to research findings that some digitalis pills are many times less potent than others—too weak to carry out the prescribed treatment for heart patients, doctors involved in the study said.

The discovery was contained in a report published Wednesday by a group of Columbia University researchers and Harlem Hospital physicians.

Their study concerned a type of digitalis known as digoxin and involved four lots from three manufacturers.

As a result of the study, the doctors said they would not suggest that patients discontinue use of digoxin, but urged the Food and Drug Administration to put the drug on the list of those for which proof of pharmacologic activity "is considered critical."

War Wounded Still on Payroll

OTTAWA (CP) — Seventeen years after the end of the last war in which Canadian troops fought, war disability pensions are still being paid to 125,180 veterans, a Commons return showed Wednesday.

The annual amount paid out in pensions is $157,116,149. The figures, tabled by the government for Kenneth Robinson (L—Toronto Lakeshore), are for Sept. 30, 1971.

Wrapping Presents Takes Time, Patience

TORONTO (CP) — If you always feel a little fumble-thumbed when it's time to wrap presents, there are a few rules that help.

In the first place, says Olive Kugler, you should approach the problem with time to spend, patience to work step by step and with a little bit of love.

Mrs. Kugler spends much of her time teaching people how to make Christmas decorations and produce beautifully packaged gifts.

"When you wrap boxes, use no more paper than is necessary, and look at the paper that will be on top to be sure you make the best use of the pattern.

"Cut the width so you have an overlap of about 1½ inches and the length so that the paper comes up about three-quarters of the way on the ends.

"Instead of putting strips of tape on the outside of the paper, make small rings of tape with the sticky side out, and put them under the overlapping edges of the wrapping paper so it closes with no tape showing.

"When you are ready to do the ends of the package, run your hand down the side firmly to take bubbles out and crease the paper at the edge of the box. Fold the bottom edges first, put the reversible tapering on, then overlap the top of the paper. When you look at the end you should have a straight line and two inverted Vs.

"If you want to wrap the lid and bottom separately, measure paper and the length of the box. You want to turn the paper in almost an inch on the inside of the lid. Then tape it on the inside of the box and use the same technique to fold the ends. You can work pleat of paper into the corner. Then tape it all with colored tape to give it a finished look."

You can trim a package with more things than bows. Mrs. Kugler glues ribbon in stand-up loops for a chain effect or in the shape of a Christmas tree.

Wooden spoons and popsicle sticks painted gold can be glued together, layer on layer, to make the shape of an angel or a tree or bell.

Mrs. Kugler puts together silhouettes with poster board, twine and foil.

"Use poster board as your base, and draw the shape of a figure, a king, a star, a cradle. Then draw in a few interest points and detail, such as the fold of a gown, a cat's whiskers, the outline of a beard or crown.

Food Claims Mislead Public

NEW YORK (UPI) — Two nutrition experts said this week the public is being misled by exaggerated claims of the benefits provided by health and organic foods.

An organic food proponent, however, said organically grown food can provide significantly better nutrition than food that has been grown with pesticides.

The testimony was given at a hearing on health and organic foods held by the New York Consumer Affairs Department.

Little Difference

Dr. Charles Glen King, a professor at the Columbia Institute of Nutrition, said health foods were "not significantly different from other foods to justify the title or term health food "basically misleading to the public."

Dr. Jean Mayer, former White House adviser on nutrition, said the real problem in the health food boom was the "exaggerated claims." Mayer suggested nutritional labelling for health and organic foods.

"If we had adequate nutritional labeling and adequate content labeling then the consumer could make his choice" of whether to buy food in "the natural food store or in the supermarket," Mayer said.

King said the term organic "really means foods containing carbon — and all foods except a few minerals such as salt contain carbon."

But Robert Dale, the organic food proponent and a publisher of literature on organic agriculture, said "there is no doubt that organically grown food can be of significantly better Nutritional value."

Without Pesticides

Dale defined organically grown food as that "grown without pesticides and artificial fertilizers . . . (and) has not been treated with preservatives, hormones, antibiotics" or other chemicals.

City consumer affairs commissioner Bess Myerson, who presided at the meeting, said that many health foods were the same as items sold in supermarkets "except for one thing — the price is inflated."

Weaving On Large Scale

A job that usually requires two men is no problem for Shirley Plater.

Mrs. Plater, 25, weaves textiles to her own design on a big two-metre Mexican serape loom. She learned to weave at the Instituto Allende in Mexico.

"Weaving is an exclusively male occupation in Mexico," Mrs. Plater said. Two weavers usually work the looms in the interest of faster production, she added.

Her husband Darryl built the loom from drawings and measurements he took in Mexico. Using the loom, Mrs. Plater can make fabrics 30 feet wide.

"Most handwoven fabric is only 29 inches wide," Mrs. she said.

Mrs. Plater buys handspun wool for her textiles: "I have no trouble getting the wool but it is very expensive buying the quantity needed for such a large loom," Mrs. Plater said. Because of this, she buys her wool wholesale from suppliers in Prince Edward Island and on Salt Spring Island.

She is already teaching her daughter, Sonya, 7, and son, Paul, 6, to weave on smaller looms. A second son, Dylan, is still too young at 18 months to learn to weave.

Highrises, Pollution Control Concern Victoria's Voters

By ANN DUNSMUIR
Times Staff

Highrises and pollution were uppermost in the minds of Victoria voters surveyed this week at a local shopping centre.

If the actual vote Saturday corresponds to the views expressed, candidates who are down on highrises and up on pollution control should win easily at the polls.

Mrs. Christopher Hawks, a resident of Victoria for 20 years, says pollution is the biggest problem now facing Victoria.

"When you drive downtown you hit the smog," she said. "It cleared up for a while, but now it's back."

Mrs. Hawks is also worried about sea pollution and its effect on water birds. "The candidates all talk about pollution before they get elected," she said.

Mrs. Hawks thinks "the middle of the city is the wrong place for high rises." She says there are plenty of other places available for these types of buildings.

Waterfront Park

James Birch, another resident voter, says the waterfront "should be a park or group of low shops where people can walk."

Birch thinks the city should be concerned with "pollution and sewage disposal."

Mrs. Gertie Kahn, a newcomer to the city, agrees the pollution is terrible: "Victoria is trying to fight pollution but needs to spend more money."

Mrs. Kahn also opposes highrises: "It would spoil the image of Victoria."

Mrs. Margaret Hoyle thinks the health of candidates should be considered by voters.

"Being mayor is quite a job for a healthy person," she said. "If someone is worried about his health, can he make the right decisions?"

Mrs. Hoyle said she comes from Blackpool, England, where the waterfront is "for the public — we have eight miles of walks along the waterfront."

Method Practical

Another Victoria woman has her own practical method of selecting a candidate: "They are all businessmen," said Mrs. Gary Cooper. "I'm voting for the one who will gain the least financially by becoming mayor."

Mrs. Cooper is not opposed to highrises but doesn't think they bring as much money in taxes as they take out in services.

David Morton, another citizen, doesn't want highrises in the city centre: "Highrises should be contained in other areas."

Morton doesn't believe the argument that such buildings mean more tax money.

"They also mean more police, lights, sewers and parking facilities."

The fact that the candidates are all businessmen doesn't bother Morton. "This is a business world — city hall is a business. It's picking the right businessman for mayor that's the problem.

"You are gambling no matter whom you choose when you don't know the candidates personally," Morton said. "All you can go by is past experience."

Married Women Should Be 'Mrs.'

Mary Margaret Gaye, 21, is one of them. She is finding that as a student teacher of Grade 5 children, and being six months pregnant, it is not all that easy.

He students have their doubts, said Miss Gaye. Although introduced by her single name, at the end of the week she found herself being called Mrs. Gaye.

The whole idea is perfectly legal. But the Vital Statistics Act says a legitimate child must have the father's name, so Mary Margaret's baby will have the surname of her husband Doug Halverson.

Halverson doesn't seem to mind his wife's decision, but 21-year-old Carol Hemrich said her husband is not entirely happy about it.

Bruce, 25, a teacher who didn't want his surname used, said he feels that Carol should take his name.

"I wanted a more equal marriage, not one with male-female roles," she said.

Carol, too, is having problems.

When she registered for Ottawa Teachers' College this fall, she was told her certificate would have to be issued in her husband's surname. It took a legal battle before it was discovered there is no law which says a woman must change her name.

"Even when we explained the circumstances and showed him the marriage certificate, he was still thoroughly convinced we were living in sin, and couldn't understand why we wanted to advertise it," Carol said.

Carol had originally been classed as dependent under Bruce's medical insurance policy. But rather than be referred to as "Mrs." she took out her own policy.

Parents Unfair

DEAR ABBY: I am a 20-year-old girl, I have a good secretarial job, own my own car and I live at home and pay room and board.

My parents frequently go away on weekends, and my boy friend comes over, and sometimes stays until after the late show on television. Everything is on the up and up, and I never lie about what time he goes home, but now my parents say I can't have him over unless they are home.

Abby, this is ridiculous. Dad says it "looks bad" for the neighbors Mom says in a few years I'll be married and gone, but they will have to face the neighbors and all that gossip.

I told my parents if I couldn't have my boy friend over unless they were home, I'd move out, and they said if I moved out, I could never set foot in their house again.

DEAR HAD IT: I think you should be allowed to entertain your boy friend at home whether your parents are home or not. And for them to have laid down such a rule because of what the neighbors might think is narrow-minded and shortsighted. As well-intentioned as they are, they are literally driving you out of the house.

DEAR ABBY: About two years ago, an older male relative started taking a great deal of interest in our little girl. It never entered my mind that something could be wrong because this man is a well-known, well-liked prominent citizen.

After putting four or five little incidents together, they all added up to one thing. Child molesting! WHen it finally dawned on me I didn't know who I hated more. The man, or myself for having been so stupid.

Because I never actually caught him, we decided the best thing to do would be to watch him very carefully, to make sure he never was alone with our child for even a minute.

I hope he reads this. I will be happy when he dies, then I won't have to worry anymore. Please print this so other mothers will be on the lookout for sick people who are around them every day. — dozed.

DEAR DAZED: Waiting for him to "die" is no solution. (He may outlive you.) And making sure he isn't alone with your child "for even a minute" isn't the answer either. What's to stop him from molesting other children? Confront him with the facts as you know them and insist that he get professional help. He is sick, sick, sick.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "DISGUSTED" When you find out what is "normal" in sexual behavior, please let the world know. It remains debatable.

West German women seek abortion law reforms

German Women Urging Abortion Law Reform

BONN (AP) — Hardly a week goes by without a demonstration somewhere in West Germany for a reform of the country's laws against abortion.

The protests are part of a heated public debate. Under the penal code, a woman who has an abortion can be imprisoned up to five years. Whoever performs it can be jailed for up to 10 years.

Despite these penalties, the government estimates there are 400,000 to 500,000 illegal abortions a year.

Legal abortions are possible only if a commission of doctors ruled that continuing the pregnancy would endanger the mother's life.

The overwhelming majority of those who have illegal abortions are not caught. Since 1953, only 62,000 illegal abortions have been traced by the police.

Justice Minister Gerhard Jahn, working on a reform for nearly two years, favors making abortion legal if the woman's doctors and an independent expert decide there is a danger to the mother's or the child's health.

Women activists and the Free Democratic party, Chancellor Willy Brandt's junior coalition partners, favor making all abortions legal during the first three months of pregnancy.

FDD Takes Action

OTTAWA (CP) — The health department's food and drug directorate is preparing a recommendation to doctors on the use of the bacteria-destroying chemical, hexachlorophene.

Dr. A. B. Morrison, head of the directorate, said this week he was not ready to say what that recommendation would be.

Earlier this week the United States Food and Drug Administration warned against the use of hexachlorophene for total body bathing of infants and adults.

The administratiin cited studies showing the chemical caused brain damage in monkeys and rats. In addition, other studies showed the chemical had little effectiveness as a vaginal douche or deodorant ingredient.

Hexachlorophene was, according to the U.S. studies, effective as a face cleanser but should be thoroughly rinsed away after use.

The planned Canadian advice on the use of hexachlorophene is to be published about Jan. 15 in Rx, the health department's monthly bulletin to physicians.

Repeat Abortions Increasing Rapidly

EDMONTON (CP) — More abortions could be followed by more newborn deaths in Alberta, an Edmonton doctor said this week.

The number of women, especially teen-age girls, who have had more than one therapeutic abortion is increasing rapidly, Dr. R. J. Ostolosky, chairman of the Alberta Medical Association's committee on newborn mortality, said in an interview.

Repeaters who get pregnant are more likely to have premature babies because an abortion reduces a woman's ability to "produce a healthy full-term child," he said.

Dr. Ostolosky, also president of the Society of Obstetricians and Gynocologists of Alberta, said that as a result, more premature babies will be born "facing a rough road to survival."

Alberta's therapeutic abortion rate was more than 10 times higher now than before the last change in the law in mid-1969.

"We must be aware of the kind of consequences which future if women continue . . . having a therapeutic abortion every year, or use abortion as a means of birth control."

These young girls could have difficulty carrying babies for the full nine months in later years when they wish to raise a family, Dr. Ostolosky said.

Dinner Dishes . . . And Girl Stacked

Last night, after combing the sofa cushions and the pockets of a couple of pairs of trousers destined for the cleaners, we discovered that we had enough money to go to the movies. If our sitter would accept credit.

After reading the theatre guide, my husband announced, "Well, we could see Carnal Knowledge, The Virgin and the Gypsy, or The Love Machine."

"What about the wildlife movie at the Strand?" I asked.

"What wildlife movie?"

"You know, The Fox," I said.

"The Fox isn't a wildlife movie," he snickered, and proceeded to explain the general theme.

"You're kidding," I gasped. "They make movies about that?"

"Those things happen," he countered.

"Not to Ginger Rogers and Fred Astair they didn't," I grumbled.

Hero Named Jake

The hero, an adenoidal young man named Jake, spent most of his time lying under the dining room table, picking his teeth with a number three crochet hook, and mumbling about finding his place in the universe.

Every time his mother invited the Baptist minister to Sunday dinner, Jake would leave off picking long enough to shriek, "Migod, the Anti-Christ!" and bite him on the left ankle.

"Well, that sure wasn't worth stacking the dishes for," I exclaimed as the lights went on. "I didn't understand half of it, and the half I understood I hated."

"What didn't you understand?" my husband asked, amazed.

"I'm a bit hazy about why the girl with the red hair took off her clothes, put a paper bag over her head, and sat in the bathtub stroking the stuffed moose head."

"She was showing her contempt for the contemporary value structure."

"She was showing a lot more than that. Couldn't he just say 'I think that the contemporary value structure stinks' with her clothes on? Why I'll bet that she can't even tap dance!"

Leukemia victim Billy Nugent, 2

Victim's Mother Tries Anything

SALISBURY, Mass. (AP) — Mary Nugent has watched two of her children die from leukemia. Now she's told a third has the incurable disease.

"After the first one died, they told me I could go back and have other children," she said.

"After the second one, they said it was very unusual, that it would never happen again.

"Then when I went in with this one, the doctor said, 'There's no reason for it, no answer.' "

But, Mrs. Nugent is not relying solely on doctors for answers anymore. Her home is filling with religious articles and she's taken two-year-old Billy to a faith healer. She's sprinkled his head with "miracle water" sent in the mail and tried pinning a lock of a dead nun's hair to the boy's bed.

Mrs. Nugent lost one daughter to the disease 14 years ago when the child was three, and another who was two when she died in 1962. She has three other children.

"People are praying . . ." Mrs. Nugent said.

Parents 'Rated' To Help Schools

TORONTO (CP) — A test designed for the Scarborough board of education would give students a chance to rate their parents, for the teacher's information, on such things as methods of discipline and financial generosity.

The test was part of a report presented to the board this week on positive ways of dealing with disinterested and problem students.

A secondary school student would be asked to rate his father from "very often" to "never" on such statements as:

"He has outbursts of temper."

"He is critical of me."

"He is financially generous with his family."

"He insists on having the last word in any discussions."

"She makes me feel that she would like me to be a different sort of person."

"She complains about the problems of being a mother."

"When annoyed she is unkind to me."

The introduction to the test recommends that parents be alerted to it and that after the students participate, the results be reviewed with the parents tactfully.

Bruce Whitehouse, the board's senior psychologist, says the test has not yet been used in Toronto.

Hearts, Purses Open Wide For Quints

CHAVARRIA, Mexico (AP) — The four Marias, survivors of quintuplets, await Christmas this year happier and healthier than ever before, thanks to the generosity of many new friends.

Until last year the life of the girls was bleak, their future uncertain. A fantastic outpouring of human kindness has perhaps changed their lives forever.

The girls, who soon will be five years old, are Maria de Jesus, Maria de la Luz, Maria Eelena and Maria Candelaria, the children of Mr. and Mrs. Pablo Ortiz. They live in a cement three-room house near Chavarria with their three brothers and a younger sister.

DELEGED WITH GIFTS

The children almost never had milk to drink, there usually wasn't enough food to go around, and their father's earnings of 817 pesos or $65 a month gave little hope for a better life.

Then an Associated Press story of their plight was published in Canada and the United States last December. Many hearts and purses were opened and family life at the Ortiz home changed.

Rich and poor, healthy and sick, old and young deluged the family with words of kindness, prayer, money and gifts. Hundreds of dolls, toys, clothes, material and other gifts found their way to this small village where five girls were born on a dirt floor by candlelight the night of Feb. 2, 1967—one of the girls died at birth.

The girls' father has made good use of the gifts.

The leaking roof has been replaced by a thick cement slab. An extra room has been added. There's gas for the stove, ending Mrs. Ortiz' daily chore of preparing meals over an open fire outside the house.

"The children each drink a litre of milk a day and I could never afford that," said Ortiz. "So I've bought three cows." There also are three pigs, chickens and turkeys.

There still is no electricity in the house. Drinking water must be hauled from a stream a half mile away.

BURNING TOBACCO FORMS DMN

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two chemists have reported evidence that a potent cancer-causing agent is formed by the burning of tobacco in a popular-brand non-filter cigarette, the American Chemical Society said Wednesday.

Chemists John W. Rhoades and Dr. Donald E. Johnson identified the chemical as dimethylnitrosamine, or DMN. Their findings were reported in the current issue of Chemical and Engineering News, a society publication.

The chemists described their findings as "the first hard evidence" that DMN is formed by the process of burning certain types of tobacco. They said the existence of the chemical into bacco smoke has been debated for some time.

Inuvik Test Site for Gonorrhea Cure

By JEFF CARRUTHERS
Special to the Times

OTTAWA — The world's nearest thing to a gonorrhea vaccine yet devised will be tested in Inuvik, N.W.T., and in Uganda in Africa, federal Health Minister John Munro confirmed Wednesday.

The two sites have high gonorrhea incidence and are relatively isolated.

The vaccine to be tested beginning early in 1972 was developed by Dr. Louis Greenberg and fellow researchers at the Canadian Communicable Disease Centre here several years ago.

A number of tests involving animals and humans have been run and a number of improvements have been made with the killed-virus vaccine during this period.

The development of an effective gonorrhea vaccine has tremendous health potential at a time when gonorrhea and syphilis incidence all over the world is climbing at a frightening rate. Many health experts have concluded that a vaccine is the only real answer today to venereal disease.

Dr. Maurice Leclair, deputy minister of health, said Wednesday he did not know at this time exactly how many persons would be involved in the Greenberg vaccine trials in Inuvik or Uganda. He estimated that at least 1,000 in each trial site would be required to assure statistical validity of the results.

He said the Inuvik portion of the test would start within a few weeks, probably at the beginning of January.

Negotiations are still in progress with Uganda officials and Dr. Leclair said that portion of the trial would be co-ordinated by the World Health Organization.

In both cases, Greenberg vaccine would be used.

In Inuvik persons would be selected from the population for the test. A "placebo" (an ineffective substitute for the vaccine) will likely be given to some participants as a control for the experiment.

U.S. Economic Siege To Quicken—Lewis

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—Stephen Lewis, leader of the Ontario New Democratic Party, said Wednesday night that "the daily economic seige" of Canada by the United States is going to get worse instead of better.

Mr. Lewis told a meeting of the Niagara chapter of the Industrial Accountants of Ontario that 10 years from now Canada will be "fighting for its very existence as an independent nation."

His remarks were prompted by an Ontario government interdepartmental committee report on economic nationalism made public at a news conference at Toronto Wednesday.

He originally intended to speak on women's liberation.

The report showed that in 1969, $20.6 billion or 60 per cent of all money invested in Canada was made by foreign interests: that 81 per cent of all foreign investment in Canada was made by the United States, 10 per cent was British and the remaining nine per cent was made by other countries; and that "Canada is unique in that it is the only country to have rejected economic nationalism in its most moderate forms," Mr. Lewis said.

He said figures reveal there is more foreign investment control in Canada than in all the Western European countries combined.

NO BENEFITS SHOWN

"If we're going to put up with so much foreign investment, then you'd think we should at least benefit from it but the report proves there are no benefits.

"In a 15-nation study of productivity levels in the next 10 years it was found Canada will stand 15th."

Other figures showed that of 150 companies in Canada which enjoy annual sales in excess of $1 billion, 148 have head offices in the U.S., he said.

"Canadians are being bought and are owned with their own money. Ninety-five per cent of all capital investments made by the U.S. originated in Canada whether it came as profits from previous operations or loans from Canadian banks.

"Only five per cent of the investment is new money."

The NDP leader said these figures make a mockery of the idea that foreign investment is good for Canada.

"Canadians seem to have accepted the easy assumption that they can rely on American investment. When a country takes that outlook then it is ready to abandon its nationality."

NDP Chief Sees Steuart as Top Grit

REGINA (CP) — "If you're a betting man," says Premier Allan Blakeney, "then I would say Dave Steuart is a good horse to back."

Although the New Democratic Party leader won't give odds, he figures Mr. Steuart, the 55-year-old acting leader of the Saskatchewan Liberal party, is almost a certain winner in the party leadership race that begins Friday in Saskatoon.

Mr. Steuart, a pint-sized and crusty political veteran, is running against former welfare minister Cy MacDonald and George Leith, a legislature member defeated in the June 23 general election that saw the Liberals swept from power by the NDP.

Whether Mr. Blakeney's suggestion is wishful thinking — hope for a Liberal leader he is familiar with—isn't really known but observers say he'd prefer Mr. Steuart or Mr. MacDonald over Mr. Leith, a relatively unknown factor.

That Mr. Steuart has the inside track is obvious. He was Premier Ross Thatcher's right-hand man during the Liberals' seven years in office.

It was Premier Thatcher's death July 23, exactly a month after their disaster at the polls, that prompted the leadership contest.

Mr. MacDonald a 43-year-old former teacher who projects a young image, is openly soliciting the youth vote while Mr. Leith, 48, offers himself mainly as a "viable alternative" to the other two.

All three have been active campaigning for Saturday night when an estimated 900 constituency representatives cast their ballots.

The campaign was climaxed by a series of six public meetings featuring the three candidates.

From the questions asked, it has been evident the party rank-and-file is worried about the future of the Liberals in Saskatchewan.

A good financial base was necessary if the Liberals were to regain power from the NDP in the next election, possibly in 1975, but Mr. Steurt warned he wouldn't be "an easy leader" if elected.

"If we are to run, we must mount a crusade . . . to tell the people about Liberalism. That's how we will win back this government."

HAS OWN IDEAS

Although he was Premier Thatcher's most devoted lieutenant, he says he won't necessarily follow the Thatcher doctrine. "I've got some ideas of my own."

Mr. MacDonald agrees with Mr. Steuart's assessment of the NDP.

"We must be prepared to change our ideas and approaches. We got the living daylights kicked out us last June."

Mr. Leith, a farmer who pilots his own aircraft, said he felt he had to seek the leadership to give the constituencies a reasonable choice.

He was asked how, without a seat in the legislature, he could be effective as party leader.

Thatcher wasn't an MLA for "eight or nine months after he was elected leader," he replied.

If only one ballot is necessary Saturday night, the new leader will be known by about 4 p.m. CST; about 15 minutes being allowed for voting and a half hour for counting the votes on the stage in full view of the delegates.

If two ballots are necessary, it might be 5 p.m. before the outcome is known.

The party presidency, an unsalaried position, also is open and is being sought by four men.

They are Wilbert McIvor, a farmer and former MLA for Arm River; John Rowand, a Regina businessman; Jim Weber, a Saskatoon life insurance underwriter and Garry Wilson, a Regina lawyer.

UNIFARM ELECTS LEA

EDMONTON (CP) — W. Dobson Lea, 58, of Jarvie, Alta., was re-elected president Wednesday of Unifarm, Alberta's largest farmer organization.

Drug Query Proper

EDMONTON (CP) — There is nothing wrong with an undercover policeman asking a youth if he has any drugs to sell, district court Judge J. S. Cormack said Wednesday.

The judge told high school students that the public makes too much of so-called entrapment of drug traffickers by police.

It might be legally unjustified for a plainclothes policeman to put excessive pressure on a youth to sell him some drugs but there was nothing wrong with a simple request to buy drugs.

"To say that this is entrapment is "to underestimate the intellegence of the person trapped," Judge Cormack told the students visiting the courthouse.

"If a person knows it is not right to sell drugs, then he shouldn't sell them no matter what. He can't be entrapped."

Sales Tax Eyed

EDMONTON (CP) — The possibility of some form of sales tax for Alberta was mentioned by provincial Treasurer Gordon Miniely Tuesday night in a speech to the monthly meeting of the Industrial Accountants of Alberta. He declined to say when such a tax may be imposed but indicated it won't be in his first budget next spring.

Credit Proposal

SASKATOON (CP) — A special credit union for people on welfare or with low incomes was proposed Wednesday night.

Theodore Prefontaine, a member of the Saskatoon Co-op Credit Union, was addressing a meeting of the Unemployment Citizens' Welfare Improvement Council. The union would be started with $1,000 each from existing credit unions and an initial membership fee of $5 per person. It would eventually be operated entirely by members of the group.

Grain Pact Seen

MOOSE JAW (CP) — A new international grains agreement soon was predicted Wednesday at a meeting sponsored by the Palliser Wheat Growers' Association.

Arthur Thompson of Pense, Sask., association president, said he had no qualms about making the prediction and added that the new arrangement would be more realistic and workable than the old one.

Teachers Stay Out

CALGARY (CP) — Teachers and trustees in the Bow Valley school districts remained at an impasse Wednesday as a strike by 613 instructors stretched through its eighth day.

The sides have not talked since negotiations stopped Sunday night and the only recent action has come from taxpayers in two of the seven districts involved. A petition was circulated which opposes the teachers' salary demands and urges use of supervised correspondence courses for the remainder of the year rather than allowing an unfavorable settlement.

Farms Need $300 Million to Avert 'Social Disaster'

WINNIPEG (CP) — The injection of $300 million into the farm economy is needed immediately to avert the social disaster which will result when a predicted 85 per cent of the country's population live in four large cities by the year 2000, Premier Ed Schreyer said Wednesday.

The premier, in a speech to the National Farmers Union annual convention, was critical of national farm policies that have for many years been "unfair and unequitable."

Later, following the banquet which ended the third day of the four-day meeting, NFU President Roy Atkinson said Mr. Schreyer was a "practical politician" who had given an "intellectual expose" of the farm problem.

Mr. Schreyer said the policies have resulted in rising costs of production while the return to farm producers have remained static or in some cases even dropped.

"In cold economic terms this just doesn't make sense and more and more people are realizing that this can't go on forever," the premier said.

"I really believe there is a widespread feeling across this country of uneasiness and dissatisfaction in both rural and urban areas with farm policies."

SOME BARELY EXISTING

Mr. Schreyer said many farm families were existing on less than what they could receive on welfare and "we're painting ourselves into a corner "when a person receives less take-home pay than he would get through social assistance.

Part of the answer lies in a minimum wage policy and a farm support program of the same kind, he said, adding that in most cases provincial governments are powerless to effect the policies needed to correct the inequality.

The United States has recognized the problem of agriculture not having equitable power in the market place and provided support programs, but there has never been anything like them in Canada.

A farm debt of about $6 billion, four times that of 10 years ago, underlines the problem, he said. As well, the average per capita income of Canadians in 1970 was $3,700 compared with $770 for farmers.

Mr. Schreyer said much more was needed in additio to the small farms development program announced by Ottawa Monday.

"This policy may be of help to the older farmers who want to get out of farming but nobody can expect the program to deal with the heart of the problem— low farm income."

But the blame for the unsuccessful programs introduced during the last few years must be shared by governments, the apathetic public, the civil service, agribusiness and the farm organizations themselves who have not been strong enough.

He suggested an immediate injection of $150 million into western agriculture and a similar amount into Eastern Canada.

"I'll bet there are those who will say that I'm baying at the moon, but that amount represents only two-to-three per cent of Canada's total annual budget and in relative terms is not much at all."

NATO Hopes Fade

BRUSSELS (CP) — The foreign ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization opened their annual winter meeting today, with the proposed conference with the Soviets on security and co-operation in Europe at the top of their agenda.

The East-West parley Moscow wants seems unlikely before 1973. The Western powers have made plain they would not start to prepare for a meeting until the new Berlin agreements are firmly nailed down, but Moscow refuses to sign the supplementary Berlin agreements East and West Germany are now working out until West Germany ratifies its 1970 non-aggression pact with the Soviet Union.

The West German parliament is unlikely to complete this before next summer. If preparations for the security conference don't start until then, the conference probably could not begin until the next year.

Authoritative sources said the NATO ministers, in their usual conference communique Friday, would strike an optimistic note on the situation in Germany and the idea ofa conference with the Russians.

Jarring May Renew Peace Talks

UNITED NATIONS (AP) — African and Latin American delegates to the UN General Assembly worked today on resolutions calling for Gunnar Jarring to resume his efforts to negotiate a peace agreement between Israel and the Arabs.

A preliminary African draft requested Secretary-General U Thant to put his special envoy for the Middle East back to work "with a view to encouraging indirect negotiations . . . to bring about the conclusion of a peace treaty."

This draft accepted Egypt's interpretation that the 1967 Security Council resolution outlining principles for a Middle East settlement called for Israeli withdrawal from all territory occupied in the June war, not just some of it as Israel contends.

But the draft leaned toward Israel in calling for a peace treaty, a term Egypt dislikes, and in making no mention of Jarring's go-between efforts in February. During the latter, Egypt accepted—and Israel rejected—the mediator's proposal that Egypt promise to enter into a peace agreement if Israel would promise to withdraw from occupied Egyptian territory.

Quebec Grits Push Language Bill

QUEBEC (CP) — All three opposition parties in the Quebec national assembly Wednesday called for repeal of or changes in a 1969 law guaranteeing Quebec parents a choice of English or French as the language of school instruction for their children.

They took the stand in an education committee discussion of Bill 28, the government's proposal to reduce the 33 Roman Catholic and Protestant, French and English school boards on Montreal Island to 11 "neutral" unified boards.

Education Minister Guy Saint-Pierre said he was determined to have the bill, which passed second reading Tuesday, become law before Christmas.

Jean-Noel Tremblay of the Unite-Quebec party said that before Bill 28 is applied, perhaps in 1975, the government should prepare legislation making French a working language in the province and giving it priority status.

He said that existing legislation on the language of school instruction should be repealed. That legislation, known as Bill 63, was passed two years ago by the Union Nationale government after a heated language and education dispute in the Montreal suburb of St. Leonard.

The Union Nationale changed its name to Unite-Quebec last October.

The Parti Quebecois, meanwhile, held a news conference Wednesday to announce it would introduce an amendment to Bill 28 removing the right of Montreal Island parents to have the freedom to choose their children's language of instruction.

Under its amendment, children already studying in English and chilren whose maternal language is English would be free to attend English-language schools if their parents wished. But future immigrant children would have to attend French schools.

WASTE CITED IN ADVERTISING

OTTAWA (CP) — Clyde McDonald, general manager of the Canadian Daily Newspaper Publishers Association, accused Canada's advertising industry Wednesday of wasting half the $1 billion it spends yearly.

He told a local meeting of the American Marketing Association the Canadian advertising industry has failed to take steps to improve its effectiveness.

"I believe that we need more professionalism in a field which now is so vague, so seat-of-the-pants so filled with half truths and at times the big lie.

Few decision makers in the industry have an understanding of the implications of social research techniques and sometimes they conduct faulty research that draws misleading and dishonest conclusions, he said.

Proper objective research studies would be expensive, he said, "but somebody should do it so we can get some honesty back into the media."

He said that when first asked to study a shift in national advertising from newspapers to broadcasting, he felt that the tide was running towards television.

But, he added, those advertisers who stayed with newspapers grew at a faster rate than those who shifted to television.

In five years, the newspapers share of advertising by banks and financial institutions had fallen to 32 per cent from 63 per cent, but returned to 42 per cent in one year.

The swing was largely due to salesmanship, but also because newspapers are "the most effective of all media," he said.

Independent Papers Dwindle

MONTREAL (CP) — Senator Keith Davey said Wednesday that if the federal government does not do something soon about group takeovers of newspapers, there will be no independently-owned papers left in Canada.

The chairman of the now-disbanded special Senate committee on the mass media said that recent acquisitions by two groups show that the trend to chain control of newspapers remains strong.

"If the government doesn't do something soon, there really would be no point because there will be nothing left to do," he said.

The senator was speaking to students at Dawson College on his impressions of the Canadian media a year after the Senate committee released its report.

The report recommended the creation of a press ownership review board to examine proposed sales and decide whether they should be prevented in terms of community interest.

When his report was released last December, 60 per cent of Canadian dailies were group-controlled, he said.

With the purchase of the Belleville Intelligencer and Cape Breton Post by Thomson Newspapers Ltd. and The Windsor Star and Brantford Expositor by Southam Press Ltd., the figure is now up to 66 per cent.

Turini Displays Full Potential

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

Wednesday night's piano recital by Victoria Symphony guest Ronald Turini was a clear demonstration of the value of this Symphony Society sponsored series.

Hearing the artist in concerto with the orchestra can be thrilling but it is only in recital that one has an opportunity of getting to know him and to appreciate his full potential.

In the case of Turini, playing a fairly long program, the impression already gained of an extremely sensitive and perceptive artist-virtuoso, was heightened.

But there was so much more. His control of the large McPherson Playhouse audience, for instance. This is a control that emanates from his own perfect concentration.

He did not wish the mood of his various groups broken by applause for individual numbers. So he did not interrupt his own thought, merely shifted its focus and his listeners were spell-bound.

Clearly he is a romanticist as well as a poet, bringing to his 19th century music the essential glow, tenderness and sentiment with rare and impeccable taste.

SATIN SMOOTH TOUCH

A satin-smooth legato touch, the total independence of right and left hands and a deep spirituality marked his performance of two Bach-Busoni chorales.

Here, as also in the porcelain charm of the Schubert A major Sonata, one might have wished for a little greater enrichment through a more substantial mezzo forte range.

Turini's pianissimo passages are the clearest, silveriest and most fragile sounds one could possibly create on the keyboard.

His fortes and fortissimos in such as the Chopin F minor Ballade and the Liszt Rhapsodies are big and luscious with never a suspicion of keybedding. But in between there is a strange withholding of depth.

His virtuosic passages are awe-inspiring in their tempi and precision.

He is capable of a glittering shower of sound as in the Liszt Gnomenrigen, of interpretations redolent of the feverish, ailing, passionate Chopin and the sweet-natured Schubert.

So, in the end, one leaves his presence greatly satisfied and with only miniscule reservations.

PNE Will Continue Booking Rock Concerts

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Pacific National Exhibition board of directors Wednesday ratified a recommendation made by its Pacific Coliseum committee that the PNE continue to book rock concerts.

The Coliseum committee recommendations made last month included providing for general admission only, with no reserved seats. The committee also recommended that no floor seats be set up, but that patrons be allowed to sit on the floor.

Damage to Coliseum equipment and electronics gear totalled more than $20,000 last month when rock fans hurled bottles at the stage after a concert was ended early because spectators refused to keep fire lanes clear.

Case Finally Ends

VANCOUVER (CP) — A case involving a charge under the Liquor Act which went through 29 adjournments over two years has finally been concluded. Donald Cominetti, 45, was convicted on a charge of keeping liquor for sale at his residence. A similar charge against his wife Barbara, 43, was dismissed. The trial had been stalled by arguments over an interpretation of language in the Liquor Act and by the sickness of the principles.

Mayor Files Suit

DELTA (CP) — Mayor Dugald James Morrison filed a court action Wednesday against S. C. Brewer of Delta for alleged libel and slander. Morrison seeks damages for statements he claims Brewer made about his election campaign in a radio broadcast Dec. 3. Morrison is seeking re-election in the civic elections.

Talkative Escaper

VANCOUVER (CP) — A prison escape was arrested in the lobby of a radio station where he had hoped to speak on a radio open-line show, claiming he was improperly jailed. Kenneth McKee, a 46-year-old American, was serving a 10-year-sentence for manslaughter when he escaped from Agassiz Mountain prison Sunday night.

Lester Resigns

BURNABY (CP) — Richard Lester, 42, has resigned as chairman of the board of governors of Simon Fraser University, effective Dec. 31.

Lestre, who served on the board since its inception in 1963 and was chairman since 1968, also resigned from membership on the board.

He said he was resigning to pursue graduate studies in education at University of British Columbia "and for this reason alone." He gave up a law practise earlier for the same reason.

Provinces May Get TV Outlets

TORONTO (CP) — The Globe and Mail says the federal government is about to reverse its long-held policy against allowing provinces into the broadcasting field.

The newspaper, in an Ottawa dispatch, says Ottawa, "faced with the demands of some provinces, notably Quebec, Ontario and Alberta, that are staking out claims in the field of tele-communications," is proposing a deal that would allow provincial agencies to own and operate stations for broadcasting educational TV under the regulating power of the Canadian Radio-Television Commission'

The story quotes State Secretary Gerard Pelletier as saying.

"I received the mandate from the cabinet to negotiate along these lines and then report to the cabinet," He termed it a "hypothesis" until negotiations are concluded and the federal cabinet has approved the terms.

In 1969, legislation was introduced in Parliament to create a Canadian education broadcasting agency, but the bill was withdrawn, after protests from the provinces on the grounds that it infringed on their constitutional responsibilities for education.

Last year CRTC licensed the CBC to operate a Toronto station for the Ontario Educational Communications Authority — television Channel 19 — with the costs to be reimbursed by the Ontario government.

Similarly in Alberta, CBC operates a station, CBXFT-TV in Edmonton, in which half the broadcasts are educational TV and the other half French-language general programming.

Timber Sale Area Created

A nine-square mile special timber sale area has been created by the provincial cabinet on Brent Mountain near Summerland, to facilitate a private ski development there.

The ski development, by All Star Holdings Ltd. of Kelowna, received a special use permit from the cabinet in August despite objections from some area residents who want a Class A park on the mountain. The provincial parks branch also has favored a park on a portion of the mountian.

A forests department official said the timber cutting will be for road and T-bar rights of way. He stressed that the size of the sale area doesn't mean all nine square miles will be logged.

SMOKE BAN MISTAKE

FARNHAM, England (UPI) — City Councillor Jennifer Chorley said she has changed her mind about the ban on smoking in council chambers she pushed through eight months ago.

"I was wrong," she said. "Some of the councillors suffer a great deal because they can't smoke — and they get bad-tampered."

Alaska Blacktop Aid, No Way

OTTAWA (CP) — Government officials say there is almost no hope at this time of the United states agreeing to join with Canada in paving the Alaska Highway.

U.S.-Canada talks on the $200 million reconstruction and paving project went on this year at the urging of the U.S. Senate and a report on the talks is to go to President Nixon by the end of the year.

A government official Wednesday said that while the Americans appeared enthusiastic about the project in the spring when the talks began, "they appeared very disinterested when the meetings resumed in the fall."

Without U.S. participation in the 1,500-mile paving job, there is no way Canada will tackle it alone.

Canada believes the U.S. should pay up to 80 per cent of the cost because surveys in recent years have shown them to be the main users of the road.

The highway, running from Dawson Creek, B.C., to the Yukon-Alaska border, was built in the 1940s by the U.S. Army as a Second World War project.

It was turned over to Canada in the 1950s with the stipulation that it would be toll-free.

Cost of keeping the road in any sort of decent condition is running Canada more than $7 million yearly.

Builder Cuts Tower Plan

A zoning bylaw designating the block bounded by Windsor, Goodwin, Currie and Newport as a development area will be introduced at Oak Bay council's Dec. 20 meeting.

Council's zoning committee met Wednesday and decided on the move after hearing municipal engineer-planner Geoffrey White's recommendations on the proposals for the block by developer John Mace.

If approved, the area which is adjacent to Windsor Park would exclude a duplex owned by Brooke Stephenson, 2636 Currie; the Haro and Mount Bader Court Apartments.

TWO TOWERS

Mace, whose proposal to build two nine-storey towers on the site was rejected after a stormy public hearing, has presented revised plans which include two five-storey buildings (one on Goodwin and the other on Newport), a two-storey office building fronting on Currie, underground parking, a service station on the corner of Windsor and Newport and an inner 77 feet-wide courtyard.

At Monday's council meetinc Mace said the plans were presented as a starting point and could be amended after further consultation with council.

In his report White said the two main buildings, both more than 200 feet in length, were also narrower than most apartments, being 48 and 50 feet wide, compared to the average widths of between 60 and 65 feet. He said careful architectural treatment would have to be given them in order to avoid an overcrowding effect.

He suggested the design of the service station be integrated with the other buildings and said a 20-foot landscape strip on the Windsor frontage "would be desirable."

Nothing that the traffic flow during peak hours would be about 40 per cent of that estimated for Mace's original proposal, White said this would increase traffic on Newport by 20 per cent. He recommended that the underground parking lot have a second exit of about 80 feet.

White warned that the width of the courtyard was "pretty minimal" in comparison to the proposed height of the main buildings and also that unless sufficient setbacks were made on Goodwin future development on that street could result in a "canyon effect".

The committee also voted to have a bylaw drawn up that would allow townhouses to be built on the 300 block Foul Bay. Developer John Fitterer has plans to build 10 townhouses on five lots.

At Monday's council meeting Ald. Alan Hoey queried a clause in council's bylaw governing townhouse construction which calls for 20 feet between buildings that have "habitable windows."

Wednesday it was decided to recommend amending the clause so that the width remained 20 feet when windows were involved and 10 feet between walls with no windows.

After discussion of a proposal from John L. Rimmington, 3372 Henderson, that future house building permits require double driveway space, the lands and buildings committee voted against this.

Hoey said that some sites in the municipality would not lend themselves to double driveways and that landscaping should not be cut down in favor of blacktopping.

Ringers Sing Out

Christmas music will be performed by the B.C. Telephone Choir in a Victoria concert Saturday at First United Church.

The Vancouver ensemble is being sponsored in its visit here by Belmont Avenue United Church Choir on behalf of the church organ fund.

Formed 16 years ago, the 65-voice chior is widely known throughout the province, both for its television and radio performance and stage appearances.

It has sung with both the Vancouver and Victoria Symphony Orchestras.

A highly professional and flexible group, it has a wide repertoire that includes many forms of music from show to classical.

The choir's personnel represent almost every category of employee in the company, from operators and installers to engineers, stenographers and managerial people.

Saturday's program will be presented at 7 and 9 p.m.

Hopefuls Scan Oak Bay Centre

Needs for a recreation centre, proper sewage disposal and wage negotiations on a regional scale were the main topics when Oak Bay's five aldermanic candidates spoke to 40 residents at a meeting in the municipal hall Wednesday.

Elmer McEwen said that although he was interested in getting a major recreation centre, he did not believe this a real issue.

Lawrence Mann said he was in favor of an immediate referendum and added that those wanting the centre should raise some funds toward it.

AGAINST REFERENDUM

Douglas McLelland said he was not in favor of a referendum being held until a site was obtained and details of construction and maintenance costs were available.

He said that a further delay of two years, based on an approximate cost of $1.3 million for the centre, would result in extra costs of about $250 a day for rising construction prices and $400 a day if the interest to be paid on borrowed money for the project was considered.

Incumbent Brian Smith said the centre would cost considerably more than $1.3 million.

"We're not sitting on our behinds," he said. "We're doing something. We have estimates, and a design."

He said he was not in favor of putting a referendum to the voters until there was sufficient money in reserve, a site was secured and the referendum had a reasonable chance of being passed.

Incumbent Norman Pimlott said that Oak Bay parents and their children were "being shunned by other municipalities because of the rapid growth of population in their own areas."

He added that if council did not receive an acceptable bid on the Victoria Riding Academy land (monies of this sale are earmarked for funds to build the centre) he was in favor of subdividing the 9.3 acres into seven or eight parcels so that high-quality condominiums could be built there.

SEWAGE

Mann advocated that treatment plants be built in order to stop the dumping of raw sewage into the sea.

Smith replied that sewage disposal was the concern of the Capital Regional Board, adding that when the monitoring of the Macaulay Point outfall was completed and the survey assessed the board would be in a better position to decide whether treatment plants were essential or not.

In order to keep administrative costs under control Smith said it was vital for wage negotiations to be carried out on a regional basis with the school board and the municipalities co-operating as a team.

He said that much of the increase in taxes was a result of accelerating wages.

All the candidates agreed that pressure should be put on the provincial government to adjust the burden of taxes so that property owners should not have to bear the major costs of such services as education and welfare which are the responsibility of all citizens.

The meeting was sponsored by the Oak Bay section of the Association of Women Electors. Moderator was Dr. Carron Jamieson.

Fault Halts Test

EARITH, England (AP) — A fault in the external power supply caused postponement Tuesday of the first test run of Britain's 300 m.p.h.-prototype hover-train. The hover-train, which has no wheels, would be supported and guided by a jet air cushion, and propelled and braked by a linear induction motor. No new test date was set.

Showbiz Paper Breaks Even

TORONTO (CP) — For the first issue of That's Show Business, an eight-page bi-weekly trade paper about the Canadian entertainment world, produced by three women, revenue matched expenses.

"We didn't expect the response to be quite so overwhelming at the beginning," said editor Beverley Slopen.

"We do have newsstand distribution in the major centres and we're also giving it free to different groups—not the same each time. The response has been terrific."

Miiss Slopen was formerlyy an information officer with the Royal Ontario Museum. With publisher Barbara Malcolm, who has been on the board of Toronto Workshop Productions, and managing editor Bette Laderoute, a former Toronto Telegram employee, Miss Slopen works on the paper at whichever home of the three is nearest at the time.

The paper has two silent backers.

Miss Slopen said the paper will have top reviewers, and the search is on for correspondents in such centres as Winnipeg and Halifax to fill out a few corners. However, no one will get rich writing for the paper, Miss Slopen said. The reward is 1½ cents a word when used.

JAPAN OKAYS FONDA TROUPE

TOKYO (Reuter) — The Japanese government reversed an immigration department decision today and allowed American actress Jane Fonda and an accompanying theatre group to give anti-war performances in Japan.

Miss Fonda, 33, and her 15-member group, including Canadian actor Donald Sutherland, arrived at Tokyo airport from Manila Tuesday night, but were refused entry by immigration officials because they held only tourist visas.

The group planned a series of anti-war performances primarily for U.S. troops based in Japan.

But U.S. military authorities had earlier refused them permission to perform at bases in Japan.

VOTE McEWEN

I have lived in the municipality of Oak Bay for 14 years and am raising my family here with you and yours and can assure you the future of this municipality is close to my heart. I have always felt it is primarily a residential area and should remain so, with some reservations with regard to apartment development, etc. I feel all applications will need to be considered on their merit and citizens given ample time to have a voting voice.

In the years ahead our municipality will need to make decisions on the above as well as community recreation and I would like to assure you of my best effort to represent you on council.

Attempt a Pre-Run At Yule Centrepiece

You may think you lack the time to do what is suggested now — make a pre-run of the centrepiece you are mentally designing for your Christmas table.

Since you will be using mostly live material from your garden, you will be able to spare a little of each kind so that you may decide how to arrange the final design for the loveliest effect: and without waste.

Unless you are an arranger with years of experience behind you, it may come as a surprise to discover how few other foliage textures really look well with a spray of long needled pine.

There is something at once elegant and sombre about this species (Pinus ponderosa). It symbolizes long life, which should contain, I suppose, both these characteristics. Three white helleborus flowers (known as Christmas-rose) are superb set into a small hidden glass of water amongst the needles.

More easily used with other types of material are junipers, either upright and spreading kinds like J. squamata meryeri, a fine greyish blue, or the low spreaders of the P. pfitzeriana series with green, bluish or golden more pliable foliage.

★ ★ ★

A branch may be encroaching over a path. Removing it at a point hidden by other branches of the juniper will give you a splendid piece for arranging.

You may like to set it upright in a block of stryafoam to create a forest background for a group of driftwood, shells and rocks.

With garden material you can often use a minimum of red and glitter decorations. It is these which tire the eyes within a few days.

Experiment now with what you grow in your garden. You will find an odd half hour during which you will come up with an imaginative use for just one branch of a conifer evergreen, or one spray of laurel, aucuba or leucothoe with its winter plum red color.

Just glancing through pictures in a flower arrangement book does the trick for the less imaginative. You will always improve on what you see since your material will be "garden fresh" and you are a different person than the original designer.

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

It is an accepted psychological principle that when declarer initiates the attacking of some suit, the defenders, when they obtain the lead, will shy away from playing that suit. After all, if declarer is interested in developing a suit, the defenders are not going to help him.

In today's deal, the appreciation of the above psychology enabled our South declarer to fulfill a slam contract which the defenders could have defeated. Both sides vulnerable.

South deals.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 NT	Pass	4 NT	Pass
6 NT	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Jack of ♠.

North's four-notrump response was a slam invitation which asked South to bid the slam if the latter possessed more than a minimum opening bid. South, having 23 high-card points, accepted the invitation.

When the dummy hit the table after West had opened the spade jack, declarer perceived that he had 11 top tricks: three spades, five diamonds, and three clubs. If the twelfth trick were to be forthcoming, it had to be made in either the heart or club suit.

Declarer realized that the chances of the six outstanding clubs being divided 3-3 were not good (36 per cent); whereas the chance that East was dealt the heart ace was 50 per cent. So declarer correctly decided to attack the heart suit.

Upon winning the opening lead with the board's queen of spades, the deuce of hearts was led off dummy. When East followed with the eight-spot, South put up his king, which West captured with the ace.

As is evident, if West had returned a heart, East's queen would have taken the setting trick. But for all West knew, South might have started with the K-Q-J-9 of hearts return by West would make a winner out of South's nine-spot. So, at trick three, West made the "safe" return of the spade ten.

Declarer won this trick with his king, after which he cashed the king and queen of diamonds. He then entered dummy via the club queen, to take the rest of the diamonds. When it was subsequently revealed on the plays of the king and ace of clubs that each opponent had started with three clubs, declarer's fourth club became his slam-going trick.

Each letter here stands for a diferent digit. It's merely a statement of fact in words, but the corresponding numerical layout is also true as a regular addition:

What does this TENTH represent?

BOOM FEARS GROUNDLESS

HAWTHORNE, Nev. (UPI) — Residents who have been jolted by sonic booms were angered when the earth shook as fighter planes zoomed overhead.

But it turned out that a small earthquake had occurred just as the planes flew overhead.

"They tell me some people were in the street shaking their fists at the airplanes," said Alan Ryal of the University of Nevada Reno seismology laboratory, who confirmed that the planes were blameless.

MONKS SELL TONIC WINE

BUCKFAST ABBEY, England (UPI) — The monks of Buckfast Abbey tried this week for the first time since 1926 to get a liquor licence to sell their own home-made tonic wine to visitors, a spokesman, said.

This time they got it.

The 1926 refusal was based on an objection by a local church.

New Fields of Medicine

Today, thoughtful persons are interested in the new areas of medicine that have to do with improving the quality of life and preventing the heartbreak and suffering associated with children who are born with hereditary diseases or who have not formed properly in the womb.

For example, today more and more sensible people are seeking a genetic counseling service, especially if they know that some hereditary disease exists in the family of the husband or the wife, or worst of all, in the families of both.

I was interested to read in Time magazine (9-13-71) of the big effort being made by Drs. M. Kabach, of Johns Hopkins University, and R. Zeiger, of the National Cancer Institute, with the help of local rabbis and leaders of Jewish organizations, to find the carriers of Tay-Sach's disease. A carrier is a person who, although he shows no signs of the disease himself, can pass it on through his genes to his offspring.

Tay-Sach's is a horrible inherited disease which occurs almost exclusively in the infants of Jewish persons of Eastern European ancestry. It is due to a lack of a certain enzyme needed in the body, and is especially distressing because it begins to show up in an infant 6 months old. A deterioration of the brain, the eyes, and the muscles then occurs and commonly kills the child before his 5th birthday.

In order to avoid bringing children doomed to great suffering into the world, Dr. Kabach and Zeiger have been perfecting an enzyme test which will identify persons who carry a defective gene, but are themselves unaffected by it. At the first "screening" last May, some 1,800 people, most of them young married couples, showed up for the test. This interests me because a few years ago when I chatted with an able professor of genetics he said, "What is sad is that commonly, a couple who much needed genetic counseling came to me only after they had had the grief and sorrow of bringing into the world one or even two defective children."

Another very helpful technique is called transabdominal amniocentesis, in which a long hypedermic needle is passed the anterior (front) abdominal wall of a pregnant woman, through the wall of her womb, and then into the amniotic sac of fluid which surrounds the fetus. On studying the fetal cells for eigher chromosomal or chemical abnormalities, experts can tell if the fetus is defective is some way and also if the fetus is male or female.

This can be extremely important in the case of a disease that affects only males. An example of this would be hemophilia, or the "bleeding disease," which can cause great suffering in boys but which rarely attacks girls. If the parents are told that the fetus is male, they will usually choose not to allow it to go to term. Similarly, if the fetus is Mongoloid, with a number of bodily defects and with an incurable mental retardation, the mother may choose not to carry the child to term.

Also, according to Walter E. Nanz, professor of medical genetics at Indiana University in Indianapolis, half of the total deafness in new-born babies could be prevented by control of hereditary factors. As he said, hereditary factors have always been an important cause of deafness, and one way to eliminate perhaps thousands of cases of severe deafness would be through genetic counseling.

MAN CONVICTED —MANSLAUGHTER

NANAIMO (CP)—A British Columbia Supreme Court jury found Charles Charlemagne Roux, 64, guilty on a reduced charge of manslaughter Tuesday in the beating death of Helen MacAlko.

Roux originally was charged with the non-capital murder of Mrs. MacAlko, who died in hospital Sept. 27, almost a week after a beating she suffered in the mobile home she shared with Roux in Port Alberni.

Mr. Justice A. B. Macfarlane will pass sentence Friday.

Libya Nationalizes U.K. Oil Company

ALGIERS (AP) — The Libyan government has nationalized the assets of British Petroleum Co. in Libya and announced it will withdraw its $1 billion in deposits from British banks.

The measures, reported Tuesday by the Libyan radio and government news agency, were said to be in retaliation for Britain's "complicity" in Iran's occupation of three strategic islands at the mouth of the Persian gulf a week ago.

But London sources said an underlying and more long-standing reason appeared to be Britain's backing for the sale of 200 tanks ordered by the Libyan monarchy before it was overthrown two years ago. The revolutionary government of Col. Muammar Kaddafi rejected a demand that the tanks—if supplied—not be used against Israel.

International oil officials, gathered in Abu Dhai for a conerence, said the nationalization was primarily a political act which is unlikely to have a great effect on the Arab oil countries' relations with other oil companies.

However, the officials said the foreign exchange withdrawal could be the beginning of a move by some Arab oil countries to setup the financing pool they have long talked about. The purpose of the pool would be to make these countries more independent of the major oil companies.

The British government owns 48 per cent of British Petroleum. Libyan oil accounts for about five per cent of BP's imports into Britain, and the company has huge reserves in other parts o the world.

$3 Billion Foreign Aid Bill Passes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives passed Wednesday a $3-billion foreign aid bill bearing $400 million for Israel and none for India, Pakistan and Ecuador — with Senate leaders still saying they will refuse to consider it.

With present spending authority for foreign aid and defence expiring at midnight Wednesday night, House and Senate leaders consulted on putting out a stop-gap interim extention—possibly into next year—but came to no early agreement.

Aid for India and Pakistan was barred as long as they are at war. The ban on $15.5 million slated for Ecuador was voted Wednesday because of that country's seizure of U.S. fishing boats.

Acre 'Not Enough'

The Beacon Hill Park Association is unhappy with the city's plan to reserve only one acre of new parkland in James Bay, president Bernice Packford said today.

The parks committee has recommended that only one acre of the four-acre city-owned land adjacent to Fisherman's Wharf be retained as parkland.

"This is the last unencumbered four acres of waterfront in an area with the greatest population density and the greatest potential growth," she said.

She was answering parks committee chairman Clyde Savage's reply to the association's brief presented to the city in September. Savage was asked to comment on the brief.

Miss Packford said the association is also disappointed that its recommendation for a green belt in James Bay was rejected.

The proposed area bounded by Oswego, Belleview, Montreal and Dallas could be developed over a long period by the three levels of government — the city, the province and the federal government.

Savage's courtesy in answering the association's queries on the city's land use plans is appreciated, she said.

"But some answers were unacceptable to our association, some were ambiguous and some contrary to certain recommendations," she said. "But we are very happy with Savage's recommendation that there is no consideration of Michigan being extended past Beacon Hill Park."

Rebel, Smash, Sabotage

LONDON (AP) — British schoolchildren were urged Thursday to rebel and sabotage their classrooms—to unscrew locks, smash the public address systems, paint blackboards red and grind all the chalk to dust.

The call to mutiny came in a new magazine called Children's Rights. The National Association of Schoolmasters termed it "irresponsible beyond belief" and warned that school mutinies could result in policemen being stationed in classrooms.

A communique in the magazine signed by The Children's Angry Brigade also urged those who do not like school to play hookey.

"Why should you go to a school you don't like?" it asked.

The magazine, aimed at student teachers, was published by a new company called Children's Rights Publications Ltd. Editors said they plan to publish once a month and so far 5,000 copies had been distributed to student teachers at 45 cents a copy.

Pedestrian, Car Collide

A 51-year-old Seattle man is in fair condition in hospital after he was knocked down by a car at Blanshard and Pandora Wednesday at 6:15 p.m.

Frank Noble is at St. Joseph's Hospital with head injuries and a broken hip.

Police said the car was driven by Draksic Drago, 2577 Asquith.

$25,000 Bail

DUNCAN — A Shawnigan Lake couple was released on $25,000 bail earlier this week after being committed to stand trial on a charge of possession of marijuana for the purpose of trafficking.

No date was set for the trial of Lynda Gail Doig, 22, and James Doig, 25, both of Renfrew Road.

The Doig's were charged Oct 20 when 50 to 55 pounds of marijuana was seized.

Alleged Threat Quoted

What was taken to be a police threat was described by a witness Wednesday in the county court fraud trial of horse-owner and trainer Dave Baxter.

Capt. William Gray of Ladner, a retired master mariner who now owns and trains horses, testified he had bitter words with one of the officers investigating the charge, RCMP Sgt. Frank Long.

Gray said Long told him during the investigation: "I've never seen such close-mouthed bastards. You all have something to hide."

The witness said he told the police officer, "There're lots of good people at the race track," and that Long admitted, "I guess there's a few."

Long also told him that if he didn't tell the truth there would be serious consequences, Gray said.

"You can't make up stories . . . be very careful what you say," Gray recalled Long as saying. Gray said he construed it as a threat and "it made me very angry."

SUBSTITUTE CHARGE

Baxter is charged with substituting a horse named Music Melody for another filly named Last Note in the seventh race of Sandown's last day of this summer. Both are three-year-old bays owned by Baxter. Music Melody had won several races; Last Note none.

The horse listed as Last Note placed second in the race, paying $37.30 in the quinella pool with the winner, Miss Jay Note.

In other testimony in the third day of the jury trial Sandown paddock judge Merle Harrop said he had checked and recorded the tattoo number of the horse entered as Last Note.

Harrop, a horseman for 40 years who lives at 8325 West Saanich Road, said it was standard procedure to record the tattoo number when a horse's registration papers were not available at race time.

He said he had left the day's racing program on which the horse's tattoo number was written on a desk in the racing secretary's office. When he returned for the program two days later, he said, the office had been cleaned out and the program and other papers were gone.

He had been asked to retrieve the program by race officials.

Paddock judge George Samuel Hughes of Exhibition Park race track in Vancouver said the registration papers for both Last Note and Music Melody were at the Vancouver track on Aug. 21. He returned them to Baxter three days later.

He said Last Note's tattoo number was X13471, and Music Melody's X8404.

Hughes testified from memory that Last Note had no distinguishing marks, and that Music Melody had a white star on the forehead, white markings on a foreleg and grey hairs in one nostril.

Joseph Barry of Richmond, a securities salesman and sometime owner-trainer, testified he had seen Baxter at Sandown after the seventh race. He said Baxter told him, "We blew our money."

Barry also said Baxter had told him earlier on the ferry from Vancouver that he was hauling two horses for owner Bo Cuppage of Saanich.

Deck 'Stacked' Says Federation

The B.C. Wildlife Federation told the provincial cabinet today it will refuse to present a submission to a pollution control branch inquiry into pollution in the mining industry next year. The federation in its annual brief to the cabinet said the move is based on "a matter of principle" resulting from the way the inquiry is set up.

"The inquiry gives the appearance of soliciting public opinion but in fact the general public is being asked to provide information it does not have."

The federation said the public should be allowed to play a role in discussing the social aspects of pollution control but the inquiry's terms of reference prevent that.

The group suggests the explanation for the technical nature of the inquiry is that it "stacks the deck" in favor of the industry under study.

"Even more likely explanation is that the PCB is anxious — to put it bluntly — to keep the public off their backs."

The brief said the federation refuses to play the role of "instant expert" demanded by the inquiry.

The inquiry is similar to one held last year into forest industry pollution control matters.

The federation also criticized the government for failing to follow the principles of its own Environmental and Land Use Act in its handling of the Libby Dam flooding and relocation of farmers in the area. Inadequate attention is being paid there to the need for new wildlife habitat, the brief said.

Motorists Overcharged By Millions

B.C. motorists may have been overcharged by several million dollars in no-fault accident benefit premiums over the past two years.

This was revealed Wednesday when the provincial automobile insurance board requested car insurance companies to reduce the premium for the compulsory coverage from the current $20 to $22 rate to a rate of not more than $14. The board has told the companies that anything above that would be "excessive".

Premier Bennett said today he is "confident" the insurance companies will go along with the request, but said it was up to the board to decide whether any past overcharges on motorists should be rebated.

The amount of over-charging in the two years since the compulsory no-fault coverage was introduced by the government two years ago is in dispute.

$15 MILION

Brian Rudkin, who runs Wesco Insurance Co. in Vancouver, said today the overcharge on the $20 or $22 premium might amount to $15 million in the two years since the no-fault coverage became compulsory.

But another source connected with the insurance board said there may have been an over-charge of about $1.3 million at the current rates.

The government board estimates the one-year saving if the new rates go into effect next year at $5 million.

Rudkin said his company was the only one to charge less than $14 for the no-fault package since Jan. 1, 1970, when it went into effect.

But the insurance board source said it appears that most companies offset the $20 or $22 rate by a reduction in liability insurance premiums, bringing the net cost to around the lower level.

FREE COVERAGE

In addition, insurance companies had to give the no-fault coverage free for about half of 1970, on average, because the no-fault premium wasn't charged until policies came up for renewal.

The no-fault coverage provides payments for injury and death for persons in automobile accidents, regardless of blame.

The premium is charged on a flat-rated basis, meaning that everyone pays a similar amount regardless of their driving records.

The Canadian Underwriters' Association announced on the weekend that companies affiliated with it are planning a 5.9 per cent increase in liability insurance rates in B.C. next year.

The insurance board circular to insurance companies announcing the request for a reduction was dated Monday of this week. It was signed by J. F. K. English, chairman of the insurance board,

The circular asked whether companies would go along with the reduction or whether formal hearings into the matter would be necessary.

SAME PROBLEM

The insurance board source said any future increases in benefits under the no-fault coverage would create the same problem as was faced at the beginning of the program — the companies would have to offer free service until policy renewals came in.

He stressed that the request to the insurance companies for a reduction was made on the basis of projections about the performance of the plan in 1972 and simple calculations of past over-charges were impossible.

Wesco Insurance Company insures about 10,000 vehicles, Rudkin said, and has made money on it's $13 rate.

CANADIAN DOLLAR ABOVE PAR

Times News Services

MONTREAL — The dollar continued showing strength in relation to the U.S. dollar near the close of money market here.

The U.S. dollar was quoted by the Royal Bank of Canada at 99 31-32 cents Wednesday and at 99 15-16 (Canadian).

Finance Minister Benson freed the Canadian dollar May 31, 1970, and today it was quoted at par with the U.S. dollar on foreign markets.

Postmen Ignored: Report

OTTAWA (CP) — The post office is accused of acting to break the Letter Carriers Union of Canada in a report prepared for the union by Carleton University economist Richard Vanderberg.

The 35-page report, commissioned by the union and released today, says "the post office department has failed to live up to its obligations, both in spirit, and in the legal obligations it agreed to as set forth in . . . the agreement" with the letter carriers.

"For the government to break an agreement is a large step towards the destruction of the system of collective bargaining and industrial relations which has been painstakingly developed in this country."

The report is called "An appraisal of attitudes that are destroying a vital public service."

DON'T CONSULT

RECORD HOLDER in the elderly bridegroom category is 98-year-old Edward Simpson, who leaves the church with his bride, 82-year-old Eva Midwinter Simpson. The couple returned for their honeymoon to the Westlecot Home for the Blind in Swindon, England, where they met nine months ago. Simpson's achievement as the oldest British bridegroom was noted by the Guinness Book of Records.

IRA GUN MAN DOWN IN FRONT OF FAMILY

BELFAST (CP) — A Roman Catholic member of Northern Ireland's part-time defence regiment was murdered in front of his five children Wednesday night in what police described as an "execution" by the Irish Republican Army.

Sean Russell, 32, was watching television with his children when several gunmen burst into his home, asked his name and then shot him, police said.

One officer said "this killing has all the hallmarks of an IRA execution."

Police said one gunman walked up to Russell and asked: "Are you Sean?"

"Yes," said the startled militiaman.

Two shots rang out. Russell fell dead with a bullet in the head. His daughter Geraldine, 10, collapsed crying with a leg wound.

SECOND SLAIN

Russell was the second member of the Ulster Defence Regiment to be murdered in two days.

Tuesday, in Caledon, near the border with the Irish Republic, three armed men burst into the home of Denis Wilson, 31, forced him out of bed and then shot him to death.

Russell was a private in the defence regiment, a group of part-time soldiers generally used in border patrols in Northern Ireland. Between five and 10 per cent of the regiment's members are Catholics.

In Belfast's Royal Victoria Hospital, British Army Maj. Jeremy Snow died of head wounds suffered in a gun battle near Paddy McGurk's bombwrecked bar at the weekend. Fifteen persons were killed in that explosion.

The latest deaths brought the fatality toll to 188 in 28 months of violence sparked by Catholic resistance against the Protestant-based Northern Ireland government.

$99,000 Grant for City In Winter Works—Mayor

The money will come under a local initiatives program — separate from an earlier program under which Victoria was refused funds.

The total cost of seven possible projects is $232,000.

The city will have to pay about $133,000 from its own funds to take advantage of the Ottawa grants.

In a press release, Haddock said five out of seven projects are now approved "and it is anticipated that confirmation of the remaining two will follow shortly."

The projects include replacing acoustical material on the ceiling of the Memorial arena and building a waterfront comfort station, at a cost of $81,000.

Haddock said the approval is "another example, where the taxpayers of the city have benefitted from the improved relations and close co-operation that has been developed with the federal and provincial governments during the past two years."

The city is awaiting the result of money bylaw referenda around the province to cash in on another federal make-work project.

The city was late in applying for financial aid on two larger projects, but Haddock has said he expects the money to come in later. If money bylaws elsewhere are turned down by voters, money will be released for use by the city.

Tax Bill Survives

OTTAWA (CP) — The 707-page government tax bill, the biggest piece of legislation in history, survived its first Commons vote Wednesday after 10 years of preparation.

The vote came when the first use of the 1969 guillotine rule stopped debate at 5:45 p.m. — the end of 32 days of clause-by clause study and an earlier 12 days of second-reading debate.

It took three hours and 26 minutes for MPs to vote on 293 clauses and amendments.

After a day of third-reading debate Friday, the government is expected to poise the guillotine blade again Monday, dropping it the day after to kill Commons debate by Friday, Dec. 17.

In the first of 29 standing votes Wednesday, Opposition leader Robert Stanfield's last request in the debate-to delay imposition of most of the bill was defeated 149 to 54, with Liberals and New Democrats siding against the Conservatives and Social Crediters.

Ottawa to Act on Heroin Crisis

By JEFF CARRUTHERS

Special to the Times

OTTAWA — Recognition of a heroin crisis in Canada is forcing the federal government to take action to stamp out the growing problems of the new heroin user and the increasingly younger people involved with the drug.

Dr. Maurice Leclair, deputy minister in the fereral health department, says the heroin and the related methadone problem are so bad that the government cannot wait until the final report of the LeDain commission before acting.

He said federal Health Minister John Munro and provincial health ministers will grapple with the problem of how to bring together national, provincial and private resources to focus on the problem at the federal-provincial health ministers' meeting in Ottawa Dec. 16-17.

A major topic of discussion then will be the report on a secret meeting held in Ottawa by the health department bringing together some 60 persons, professional and volunteer, associated with the heroin problem.

HEROIN ON WHIM

Dr. William Craig, head of the health department's Drug Abuse Group, describes a new type of heroin user, the member of the "Sunday afternoon experimentation group."

This "controlled user" can take heroin one day and then seemingly not have any need to take it after that, as a heroin addict would, until the whim hits again.

Craig said health officials are particularly concerned about such users and about how long such individuals can remain without being "hooked" on heroin.

The other aspect of particular concern is the recent appearance in Eastern Canada of a "wild fire" heroin problem during the past year or two.

Craig thinks the problem has been imported from the United States.

AGE DROP

The age of heroin addicts and users there is dropping, and the economic and geographic backgrounds are also changing radically.

In Canada generally, the

Living Costs Set New High In November

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Canada's consumer price index soared to a 10-year high of 135.4 in November, up from 134.9 in October.

The chill winds of late autumn brought higher prices for clothing, housing and hockey sticks, Statistics Canada reported today.

Previous peak for the index was 135.0 in August. Last month's 135.4 means that the cost of goods and services worth $10 in 1961 had increased to $13.54.

Although clothing and housing costs were the main components in the November increase, housing and transportation showed the greatest price increases over the 12 months ending with November. Clothing costs showed the lowest increase over the 12 months.

Higher prices for new houses and house repairs and increased property taxes were the main factors in bringing the housing component index to 139.6 from 138.6 in October. There was only a minimal increase in rents.

The clothing index rose to 131.0 from 130.3 mainly as a result of price increases associated with the introduction of new winter lines. Higher prices for men's overcoats and sports shirts, women's winter cloth coats, sweaters, suits and undergarments and boys' parkas and slacks were large factors.

FOOD PRICES STEADY

An increase in costs of personal health care offset scattered reductions for pharmaceuticals, bringing the health and personal care index to 143.8 in November, up from 143.6.

Higher newspaper subscription rates in some cities combined with price increases for ice skates, hockey sticks and camera film brought the recreation and reading index to 136.8 from 136.3.

Indian Troops Ring Dacca

India said today it has a virtual ring of troops around the East Pakistani capital of Dacca and that Indian aircraft are inflicting heavy casualties on fleeing troops.

Indian troops were reported holding their ground in Kashmir on the western front. Heavy fighting is continuing.

A direct bomb hit on a Dacca orphanage killed perhaps hundreds of children and buried their broken bodies under tons of rubble. By mid-morning rescue workers had recovered only 30 bodies but authorities said 350 to 400 orphans were asleep in the brick and concrete building when the bomb struck.

Invading ground troops had closed in to within 20 miles of Dacca after crossing the mighty Meghna River, one of the last major water barriers protecting the city. An Indian spokesman said their planes had sunk a fleet of 100 boats carrying Pakistani troops into East Pakistan.

The Indian air force and navy also bombarded the ports of Karachi and Chittagong in West and East Pakistan today, inflicting heavy damage to shipping. The Indian navy reported a new strike by its warships which it said sank or heavily damaged four Pakistani ships in Karachi harbor.

Pakistani's eastern command in Dacca countered with reports of fierce fighting on most fronts in the east and said "enemy thrusts are still being successfully countered by Pakistani troops."

Pakistan said its forces were fighting "brilliantly" and were giving Indian forces "a good hammering" in East Pakistan.

An army spokesman in Rawalpindi, the West Pakistan capital, denied Canadian forces had captured the strategic town of Jessore, 85 miles southwest of Dacca, and the town of Sylhet near the East Pakistan border with Assam.

When asked about the Indian claim that Sylhet had been captured, he said "that too is a fantastic bloody lie."

But foreign correspondents who visited Jessore Wednesday said it definitely was in Indian hands.

ADVANCES

In the western sector, Pakistani troops had made further advances in Kashmir and in continued fighting in the Lahore and Sailkot sectors inflicted heavy casualties on the Indians, Radio Pakistan said.

Pakistan also said its air force had downed a total of 102 Indian aircraft and in the Chhamb sector of Kashmir knocked out 40 Indian tanks. The Indians claim to have destroyed more than 150 Pakistani tanks in the same area.

Pakistan Dunkirk

Thousands of Pakistani troops, threatened with encirclement by Indian forces, are trying to reach safety in an armada of sampans, barges and river steamers, the commander of India's eastern front reported.

Indian air force jets bombed and strafed the Pakistanis as they fled, making more than 100 sorties during the day, said Lt.-Gen. Jagjit Singh Aurora.

The Indians now have complete mastery of the skies over East Pakistan. The last enemy fighter planes in East Pakistan was shot down, Aurora said.

"The air force had a field day," the general told a press briefing.

LSD Dealer Jailed Seven Years

Ronald S. Porter, 23, was sentenced Wednesday to seven years in prison for conspiracy to traffic in LSD.

Porter, 2852 Inez, pleaded guilty Nov. 30 to the conspiracy charge, an offence involving large quanities of LSD tablets, vials of "pure" LSD and tablet-making machines.

Ostler said a pre-sentence report exposed Porter as a young man in the recent past trafficking substantially in drugs. He noted that the man had a previous conviction for trafficking in marijuana.

The judge said the accused "and those of like persuasion were throwing down a gauntlet to law and decency."

He added that these people were "thumbing their noses" in contempt at parents and society in a conflict which sometimes took on "the aspects of a civil war."

Two other persons were originally charged jointly with Porter for several conspiracy offences but all other charges were dropped when the accused pleaded guilty.

Owen-Flood said Porter intended to get married and adopt a child and was settling down.

He said the accused had purchased the house where he lived and was renovating it. He added that Porter was also taking night school courses.

Teachers Defend Accused

Two documents from two former school teachers of Porter were entered by the defence.

On said the accused was an "interested, capable student" whose science "exhibits were of superior quality." The other noted that Porter was an A and B student during Grades 11 and 12.

An RCMP officer at an earlier appearance that a 24-year-old American was apprehended at the Victoria International Airport last May with a vial containing two grams of "pure" LSD.

The pure LSD could be made into 15,000 "hits" of LSD, the officer said.

The American had Porter's phone number on a card with him when he was caught. James Dale Mitchell, of Albany, Calif., was sentenced to five years in prison.

Mitchell told police that he learned of Porter's drug dealing in San Francisco and paid $50 to another man for his phone number in the fall of 1970.

During the fall a year ago, Mitchell came to Victoria and made a deal with Porter involving 7,000 tabs of LSD.

The RCMP officer said Porter paid $1,000 in Canadian funds with the $700 balance to be paid later.

Porter later sold Mitchell a tablet-making machine he had built for two grams of pure LSD, 5,000 doses of synthetic mescaline and $700 cash.

The Mountie said Porter sold a second tablet-making machine to a United States federal bureau of narcotics agent Oct. 21. The machine was capable of producing 10,000 tablets an hour.

At the time Porter had three other machines near completion.

The U.S. agent paid $500 down for the machine with the balance of $2,000 to follow the next day.

Weigh scales, powdered milk and orange powder was found by police at the accused's address on Inez. A tablet machine was found set up in the basement "with powder being fed into the machine by a funnel."

Police also found other gears and dyes in the search of a basement on Balmoral Oct. 22.

NIMBLE STEEL WORKERS make a rare appearance in Victoria as they work on skelton of the Wilson Centre. Six-storey office building rising on Broughton at Blanshard is scheduled for completion by Feb. 28.

UVic Enrolment Down

Enrolment figures released Wednesday by the University of Victoria show that the number of full-time undergraduates at the university is down 312 from last year, a decrease of 6.3 per cent.

The figures show 4,624 students registered as of Dec. 1, compared with 4,936 a year ago.

The number of part-time students at UVic increased from 655 last year to 827 this year. Likewise the number of graduate students has increased by 10 from last year, when there were 285 graduate students.

This means total enrolment at UVic, counting full-time and part-time undergraduates and graduate students, decreased this year from a 1970 total of 5,876 to 5,746 on Dec. 1, a drop of 2.2 per cent.

The registrar's office is conducting a study to determine why so many students who applied to return to UVic, and were approved, did not actually come back.

New Deal Seen By UVic Head

The new president of the University of Victoria said Wednesday night he plans an extensive overhaul of academic planning and government of the university and hopes to see a new tenure document for UVic within six months.

Farquhar said two "task forces" will be commissioned to study the issues of academic planning and university governance and that the tenure document committee has resumed efforts to overhaul the system of tenure at the university.

FAR-REACHING

"I propose to take some action which could have far-reaching implications for the future of the university," Farquhar said.

He said the task force on academic planning will be charged with "making an intensive study of the academic development of the university . . . to include such areas as the place of graduate studies, the place of research, the role of summer session and of the division of Continuing Education.

"The study group will consider the feasibility of new types of programs and new areas to be explored . . . and all aspects of academic growth and development," he said.

SIX MONTHS

Farquhar said this task force should make a six-month study "culminating in a blueprint for the future of the university."

The group's report would be submitted to the president and would not be binding. The president "will use it as he sees fit — possibly referred to the senate, to the board of governors or other interested groups for action."

FARQUHAR
. . . task forces planned

The group would be composed of members who have "a broad view of academic needs in the University," he said, and added that appointment of a director would be possible.

RIGHTS, DUTIES

The second task force would deal with the issue of government of the university, he said.

This group will deal with "the inter-relationships that exist between senate, board of governors, faculty association, joint faculties, students, etc."

It will examine alternative structures of organization and governance, he said, and will look at the place of the departments, their heads, and their powers and responsibilities. Rights and duties of individuals within the organization would also be considered.

Farquhar said the tenure document committee "is making a fresh start in a complete study of the concept of tenure."

"This should culminate in a new tenure document by the end of six months," he said.

"It is my sincere and optimistic hope that out of these studies will come the kind of knowledge and wisdom that will provide us with a sense of direction and purpose."

TOUGHEST JOB

farquhar said he was chairman of a committee which studied the matter of academic planning at UVic nearly 10 years ago, "and that was one of the toughest jobs I ever undertook."

"I am aware of the enormity of this task," he said. "I believe that the climate is more favorable now than it was at that time."

"With the proper attitudes and with full co-operation I think that we can produce classic reports that could pave the way for an exciting future," he said. "I am convinced that we have the potential to achieve greatness in this university. I think these three studies will provide the guidelines we need for future development."

'Explicit' Sex Scenes Ground Stewardesses

The Stewardesses, a three-dimensional film, was barred from the screens Wednesday afternoon in Victoria and Vancouver by Famous Players Ltd. management.

In Victoria, after a well-attended four-week run at the Capital, the show was cut at 2:25 p.m., 40 minutes after the film began, and senior manager Martin Cave made an on-stage announcement to the 100 patrons that they could collect refunds on the way out.

J. W. Anderson, Victoria provincial court chief prosecutor, and two Victoria police detectives were in the audience but their presence had nothing to do with the sudden cancellation.

PEOPLE ANNOYED

David Gow, regional manager of Famous Players, said company headquarters in Toronto and Astral Films of Canada mutually agreed to withdraw the film because "people were annoyed" with its "explicit sex scenes."

Gow said the appearance of the police in the Capitol was "coincidental" since instructions from Toronto had come around noon.

One of the police present, Staff Sgt. Walter Calwell, said they had attended because of a number of complaints made to the department.

OTHERS OPEN

The film was seized earlier by police in Saskatchewan and Manitoba and obscenity charges are pending against two theatres there.

The film was passed for "adults only" viewing by the B.C. film classification director, with a "completely concerned with sex" warning in newspaper advertisements.

With the disappearance of The Stewardesses in Victoria, a welter of sex-oriented films open today in other theatre.

For instance, at the Coronet, there's Kama Sutra, "photographed where 500 million people use Kama Sutra mystic marriage techniques to improve their love life." On with it is The Ideal Marriage, "an intimate chronicle."

And at the Haida, film viewers are offered The Minx and Aroused, which are heralded as "a blast of desire" and "incredibly imaginative" and which draws a warning from the censor as having "excessive nudity and sex."

Meanwhile, Odeon I is introducing Out of Touch, where the doctor "undresses his patients to discuss their problems." The B.C. censor calls it "a documentary on psychiatric group therapy with swearing, nudity and coarse language."

Public Court Martial Begins For Serviceman on Drug Counts

A 19-year-old serviceman is charged with four counts of trafficking and one of possession of drugs in a standing court martial that began at CFB Esquimalt today.

Pte. Tyler Anthony Weselak of the navigator directional school at Naden is accused of:

- Delivering to Pte. Richard Wilson between Oct. 8 and Oct. 12 a quantity of 3,4-methylenedioxyamphetamine, commonly known as MDA.
- The second charge is that he delivered to Wilson between those dates "a substance held out to be a restricted drug," namely MDA.
- Delivering a quantity of a restricted drug, MDA, to Miss Katherine Anne McDonnell on Oct. 24.
- As in the second charge, this charge is an alternative that he delivered to Miss McDonnell "a substance held out to be a restricted drug," namely MDA.
- The fifth charge is that of being in possession of MDA between Aug. 27 and Oct. 24.

Weselak pleaded not guilty on all counts.

The standing court martial, open to the public, is the first of its kind to be held on the west coast.

Court martial president, Lt.-Col. Clive Rippon of the judge-advocate's office explained today that Weselak was being tried by this means because:

"This is purely a criminal type of offence —not a military type of offence."

He added that in such cases it was more appropriate to have "someone who knows the law" rule on the court martial.

TRAILER TRUCK TANGLES WIRING

A loaded tractor-trailer unit played havoc with overhead wiring, street lights and telephone poles on Government Street Wednesday evening.

City police said the truck, owned by Doman's Transport Ltd. and driven by Raymond Chamberlin of Cobble Hill, was travelling north on Government about 7:45 p.m. The vehicle was loaded with a fork lift.

At Government and Discovery, the high load pulled down numerous overhead wires and two B.C. telephone poles.

Unions Launch Major Drive To Woo Breakaway Members

Several British Columbia unions have launched a drive to bring back "breakaway" members who have joined other unions.

More than 10,000 pamphlets have been distributed to members of the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, Canadian Electrical Workers Union, Canadian Association of Mechanical and Allied Workers and United Metal and Mine Workers.

"The poor performance of these breakaway groups and the need for unity in the difficult bargaining expected in 1972 has led to this campaign," said Tom Gooderham of Vancouver, regional director for the Canadian Labor Congress.

Gooderham is chairman of the B.C. Organizing Committee, composed of representatives of the CLC, B.C. Federation of Labor, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, United Steelworkers, International Association of Machinists and International Brotherhood of Pulp, Sulphite and Paper Mill Workers.

He said fragmentation of unions "serves only the employers' interests. The labor movement needs these workers back in the house of labor and they need to be back in the house of labor."

The biggest of the independent Canadian unions is the Pulp and Paper Workers of Canada, with 6,500 members including mills at Crofton and Harmac on Vancouver Island. They were formerly in the pulp-sulphite union.

MDs' Fee Talks Continue

The president of the B.C. Medical Association said today negotiations are still under way with the provincial government on a new fee schedule for doctors.

Dr. Walter Anderson declined further comment on that issue but said a modified cabinet order relating to doctors' hospital privileges had been accepted in draft form by the association.

He said he did not know whether the draft the doctors had approved has also been accepted by Health Minister Ralph Loffmark.

The original cabinet order, passed in July, gave Loffmark the ultimate authority to grant, restrict or deny a doctor hospital privileges.

After a prolonged protest by doctors the government agreed to modify the order after a series of secret meetings with BCMA representatives.

For the Voter . . . Sky-Pie and Ho-Hum

LOCAL ELECTIONS rarely generate much heat on this favored peninsula, and that's not as it should be. In theory at least, what happens or is likely to happen in our home parishes should be of prime importance to those who inhabit them.

Yet this year as in others when a December trip to the polls is in prospect, the campaigning has been as lukewarm as its reception by the voters it's aimed at.

What should be a vital process of democracy has become scarce more than a casual exercise to be shuffled out of the way before city and municipalities return to business as usual.

As a result, this important matter of choosing those who will conduct the peoples' business has acquired an aura of unreality.

It is customary to blame the voter for this state of affairs. He isn't interested . . . He doesn't really care who governs him . . . Where civic government is concerned, he's apathetic.

I'm by no means sure that such glib criticisms apply. The opinion I've formed is that the voter is less apathetic than just plain bewildered.

He isn't interested in pie-in-the-sky promises. Personality clashes between this candidate or that may entertain him, but they don't provide him with the firm answers that he needs and should be getting from those who would have a part in the levying and spending of his tax money.

All too often, those who avail themselves of the opportunity to lay their intentions on the line seem incapable of coming out flatfooted with firm and unambiguous statements that would provide the voter with the wherewithal on which to base his polling-day decisions.

Platitudes, sky-pie and waffling are poor substitutes for plain speaking. If more candidates could bring themselves to an awareness of that fact, I suspect we'd have fewer apathetic absentees from the polling stations on election day.

Let us consider the case of Lionel Duperry of Ottawa, a cook who seeks to better himself. With this in mind, Duperry hung up his apron after five kitchen years and embarked on an education program aimed at boosting the academic standing needed before the province of Ontario would certify him.

But Duperry has a beef.

"I can see the need for a subject like math," he has declared. "But tell me — how in hell can Shakespeare's poems help me in the kitchen?"

Good question! It points up a perfectly ridiculous situation in which others besides this irked cook find themselves when sufficient distinction isn't made between education and job training. It also indicates the need for a wholesale return to an apprenticeship system that would offer the bored potential dropout an escape-hatch from the classroom into a trade.

May he soon exchange his present double, double, toil and trouble for fire burn and cauldron bubble!

With certification, naturally.

It remains now to explain the disappearance of this column from its accustomed place for over a week.

First, though, a thank-you and a reassurance to many kind readers who remembered my reference to a slight, roving ache, and jumped to the conclusion that all was not well with my innards.

Nothing like that — merely an out-of-season holiday to allow time for an unhurried reassessment of a feature now in its tenth year.

With that taken care of, I've picked up tools on a new working schedule, and with a new agreement with the Times which makes me very happy.

From here on, it'll be three columns a week, to run each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

'Operation Cleanup' Follows Storm's Fury

Greater Victoria residents and the rest of Vancouver Island were mopping up and assessing the damage today after a 30-hour storm that threw just about everything their way.

Snow, torrential rain and later gale-force winds was the order of things Wednesday.

As if that wasn't enough the bad-to-worse progression continued, as the slush froze overnight to turn the roads this morning into one big skating rink.

"Yes, it was quite a storm," weatherman Allen McQuarrie said, noting that it had been a little different from most storms in that it had moved extremely rapidly and covered the entire province.

"It will no doubt be responsible for blizzards on the Prairies tonight," he added.

LONGER STAY

McQuarrie said the snow was mostly melting as it fell but even so the covering in most parts of Greater Victoria was three to six inches.

This stayed around longer than it would have normally he explained, because low night temperatures preceding the storm had cooled the ground considerably.

The main storm went past Victoria about 6 p.m. Wednesday, but in its wake came steadily-rising winds.

In just over three hours, from about 6 p.m. to 9 p.m., the wind readings at the Gonzales station rose from south-south-east 25 m.p.h., with gusts to 33 m.p.h., to south-west 46 m.p.h. and gusts to 65 m.p.h.

But Victoria residents who considered that a rough evening should have changed places with the families of the two keepers at the Sheringham Point lighthouse west of Sooke.

At 8 p.m. Wednesday night the wind there was blowing at a steady 75 m.p.h., with gusts to 85.

TORRENTIAL RAIN

The biggest problem locally as the rain came down in torrents Wednesday afternoon and evening was caused by flooded drains, basements and backed-up septic tanks.

Saanich public works department handled about 250 calls, mostly plugged drains, and the city engineer's department dealt with about 45 calls which a spokesman described as "not especially busy after that kind of heavy rain."

Saanich was a general problem area for motorists crawling cautiously along ice-covered roads this morning, but police in other areas reported a general improvement on the conditions Wednesday.

A Saanich police spokesman said despite sanding and salting operations there were "lots of minor accidents" this morning, with cars waltzing into ditches and into each other.

CREWS OUT

"Interurban is a real trouble spot; we've had lots of calls from there," he added.

B.C. Hydro maintenance crews were out until midnight repairing lines brought down by falling snow-covered branches.

There were power interruptions in the Ardmore-Saanich Road areas, on McTavish Road near the airport and at Brentwood, a spokesman said.

Ladysmith school buses were not running today because of the slippery roads but the town's schools were open for students within walking distance.

Cowichan and Lake Cowichan buses ran as scheduled.

Over 700 loggers who have been idled by the snow are expected to return to work as the weather clears.

MacMillan Bloedel's Chemainus logging division said crews are plowing and they hope for an early return to work.

Crown Zellerback at Nitinat said operations may resume Friday but probably not befor Monday — as long as there is no change in the weather.

The Cowichan logging division of B.C. Forest Products at Caycuse and Western Forest Industries' Gordon River logging operations both said they will return to work when the weather clears.

What lies in store? The weatherman says it will be mostly cloudy with a few showers today, with some clearing possible tonight but with cloud cover still present on Friday.

SHREDDED TAX BILL DEPICTS HOUSE MOOD

The line caught one of Parliament's vivid moments as the government, using a 1969 time-limit rule for the first time, brought an abrupt halt Wednesday night to committee-stage debate on its tax bill.

"As the guillotine falls," Mr. Paproski said, "on behalf of all the taxpayers in Canada, I want to show what I think of what is happening here."

So Mr. Paproski, veins standing out and teeth gritted, gave the four-inch-thick volume the old telephone-book tear, a physical effort to accomplish what Conservative Leader Robert Stanfield had been unable to do parliamentarily.

This was to split the bill, passing those sections such as reductions in basic personal income taxes but putting the rest over for further consideration.

Even the mighty Paproski had trouble with this piece of legislation the Commons hadn't been able to digest after more than two months of chewing.

'Take Your Own Legal Action' Anti-Mill Petitioners Told

Petitioners complaining about a two-shift mill in Langford will have to take their own legal action, Capital Regional District was told Wednesday.

The district's executive director, Dennis Young, said Van-Isle Moulding and Millwork Ltd., 2871 Jacklin, is complying with all local bylaws.

Residents complained to the board about "indiscriminate sounding" of whistles and noise, use of machinery and trucks, including night-time, and air pollution.

Young said the problem stems from two "incompatible land uses" and noted that the industrial and residential zoning, side by side, occurred before the district was responsible for zoning.

"You just can't have a mill and a person trying to sleep alongside each other," he said.

The local works committee agreed to pass along an opinion that the complainants may have a private action for nuisance against the company and should seek their own legal advice.

It was also agreed that a committee of the board try and meet both complainants and the mill to discuss the matter.

In other business, board committees:

- ● Will ask the lands department that if mining claims elapse on 77 acres of crown-owned land adjacent to East Sooke Park, the claims would not be capable of being re-registered;
- ● Recommended delegation of authority to Saanich for certain truck sewer work, including Finnerty Cove, for design and calling of tenders, subject to review and approval by the district;
- ● Recommended award of tenders for almost $250,000 of sewer work in Central Saanich to LaFarge Cement, Ocean Cement, Atlas Asbestos and Norsemen Construction.

WARNING ISSUED ON NATURAL GAS

Oak Bay council's zoning committee was warned Wednesday that the introduction of natural gas into the area could turn municipal streets into "battle areas."

Municipal engineer-planner Geoffrey White said:

"If natural gas becomes popular here the existing lines will not be big enough. The extra work will make absolute battlefields of our streets."

Warning that the additional costs of road repair and maintenance would have to be borne by the taxpayers, White added:

. . . HEROIN

average heroin user's age has dropped to the low 20s, compared to the 35 to 40-year-old heroin stereotype of the "old school."

The federal government admits it doesn't know how many users there are in Canada, though Leclair says his experts' estimate of 6,000 is "conservative." The proportion of users to addicts is similarly unknown.

It is known, however, that heroin is "highly available" in Canada and that the price is dropping.

Most of it comes from France through Montreal — even to the West Coast.

The federal health department meanwhile is considering ways of controlling the growing methadone problem. Methadone is widely used in some cities as a replacement for heroin as part of a treatment for heroin addiction.

But a recently-published Food and Drug Directorate-Canadian Medical Association study has indicated that some 25-30 doctors have been prescribing methadone in a "permissive" fashion and a larger number have been inappropriately prescribing methadone out of ignorance to persons claiming to be heroin addicts. The report urged the methadone be used only under controlled conditions, perferably in a clinic.

Health Minister John Munro Wednesday night told reporters he will discuss possible disciplinary action with provincial health ministers.

LEGAL AID PLANNED

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister John Turner said Wednesday he will submit to the cabinet in the next few days recommendations for a national legal aid system.

He added in a commons reply to Jack Marshall (PC—Humber-St. George's-St. Barbe) that he has consulted all the provinces.

In percentage terms, prices in general rose four-tenths of one per cent in November and 3.9 per cent over the 12 months ending with November.

The Economic Council of Canada has said price increases should average no more than two per cent a year if reasonable price stability is to be attained.

The 12-month percentage increases for components of the price index were: Food 4.2; housing 4.7; clothing 2.0; transportation 4.1; health and personal care 2.1; recreation and reading 2.3; tobacco and alcohol 2.6.

The index is based on a survey of more than 300 consumer goods and services which bulk large in the spending of urban families living on low to moderate income.

Motorists Overcharged By Millions

B.C. motorists may have been overcharged by several million dollars in no-fault accident benefit premiums over the past two years.

This was revealed Wednesday when the provincial automobile insurance board requested car insurance companies to reduce the premium for the compulsory coverage from the current $20 to $22 rate to a rate of not more than $14. The board has told the companies that anything above that would be "excessive".

Premier Bennett said today he is "confident" the insurance companies will go along with the request, but said it was up to the board to decide whether any past overcharges on motorists should be rebated.

The amount of over-charging in the two years since the compulsory no-fault coverage was introduced by the government two years ago is in dispute.

$15 MILLION

Brian Rudkin, who runs Wesco Insurance Co. in Vancouver, said today the overcharge on the $20 or $22 premium might amount to $15 million in the two years since the no-fault coverage became compulsory.

But another source connected with the insurance board said there may have been an over-charge of about $1.3 million at the current rates.

The government board estimates the one-year saving if the new rates go into effect next year at $5 million.

Rudkin said his company was the only one to charge less than $14 for the no-fault package since Jan. 1, 1970, when it went into effect.

But the insurance board source said it appears that most companies offset the $20 or $22 rate by a reduction in liability insurance premiums, bringing the net cost to around the lower level.

In addition, insurance companies had to give the no-fault coverage free for about half of 1970, on average, because the no-fault premium wasn't charged until policies came up for renewal.

The Canadian Underwriters' Association announced on the weekend that companies affiliated with it are planning a 5.9 per cent increase in liability insurance rates in B.C. next year.

SAME PROBLEM

The insurance board circular to insurance companies announcing the request for a reduction was dated Monday of this week. It was signed by J. F. K. English, chairman of the insurance board.

The circular asked whether companies would go along with the reduction or whether formal hearings into the matter would be necessary.

The insurance board source said any future increases in benefits under the no-fault coverage would create the same problem as was faced at the beginning of the program — the companies would have to offer free service until policy renewals came in.

He stressed that the request to the insurance companies for a reduction was made on the basis of projections about the performance of the plan in 1972 and simple calculations of past over-charges were impossible.

Wesco Insurance Company insures about 10,000 vehicles, Rudkin said, and has made money on its $13 rate.

Rudkin said other companies have increased liability rates in the past two years in spite of the much-discussed $9 offset which the no-fault coverage was to bring.

His calculation of the overcharge was based on a figure of about one million vehicles being charged about $7 or so too much for two years.

CANADIAN DOLLAR ABOVE PAR

Times News Services

MONTREAL — The dollar continued showing strength in relation to the U.S. dollar near the close of money market here.

The U.S. dollar was quoted by the Royal Bank of Canada at 99 31-32 cents Wednesday and at 99 15-16 (Canadian).

Finance Minister Benson freed the Canadian dollar May 31, 1970, and today it was quoted at par with the U.S. dollar on foreign markets.

Postmen Ignored: Report

OTTAWA (CP) — The post office is accused of acting to break the Letter Carriers Union of Canada in a report prepared for the union by Carleton University economist Richard Vanderberg.

The 35-page report, commissioned by the union and released today, says "the post office department has failed to live up to its obligations, both in spirit, and in the legal obligations it agreed to as set forth in . . . the agreement" with the letter carriers.

"For the government to break an agreement is a large step towards the destruction of the system of collective bargaining and industrial relations which has been painstakingly developed in this country."

The report is called "an appraisal of attitudes that are destroying a vital public service."

DON'T CONSULT

RECORD HOLDER in the elderly bridegroom category is 98-year-old Edward Simpson, who leaves the church with his bride, 82-year-old Eva Midwinter Simpson. The couple returned for their honeymoon to the Westlecot Home for the Blind in Swindon, England, where they met nine months ago. Simpson's achievement as the oldest British bridegroom, was noted by the Guinness Book of Records.

IRA GUNS MAN DOWN IN FRONT OF FAMILY

BELFAST (CP) — A Roman Catholic member of Northern Ireland's part-time defence regiment was murdered in front of his five children Wednesday night in what police described as an "execution" by the Irish Republican Army.

Sean Russell, 32, was watching television with his children when several gunmen burst into his home, asked his name and then shot him, police said.

One officer said "this killing has all the hallmarks of an IRA execution."

Police said one gunman walked up to Russell and asked: "Are you Sean?"

"Yes," said the startled militiaman.

Two shots rang out. Russell fell dead with a bullet in the head. His daughter Geraldine, 10, collapsed crying with a leg wound.

SECOND SLAIN

Russell was the second member of the Ulster Defence Regiment to be murdered in two days.

Tuesday, in Caledon, near the border with the Irish Republic, three armed men burst into the home of Denis Wilson, 31, forced him out of bed and then shot him to death.

Russell was a private in the defence regiment, a group of part-time soldiers generally used in border patrols in Northern Ireland. Between five and 10 per cent of the regiment's members are Catholics.

In Belfast's Royal Victoria Hospital, British Army Maj. Jeremy Snow died of head wounds suffered in a gun battle near Paddy McGurk's bombwrecked bar at the weekend. Fifteen persons were killed in that explosion.

The latest deaths brought the fatality toll to 188 in 28 months of violence sparked by Catholic resistance against the Protestant-based Northern Ireland government.

$99,000 Grant for City In Winter Works—Mayor

The money will come under a local initiatives program — separate from an earlier program under which Victoria was refused funds.

The total cost of seven possible projects is $232,000.

The city will have to pay about $133,000 from its own funds to take advantage of the Ottawa grants.

In a press release, Haddock said five out of seven projects are now approved "and it is anticipated that confirmation of the remaining two will follow shortly."

The projects include replacing acoustical material on the ceiling of the Memorial arena and building a waterfront comfort station, at a cost of $81,000.

Haddock said the approval is "another example where the taxpayers of the city have benefitted from the improved relations and close co-operation that has been developed with the federal and provincial governments during the past two years."

The city is awaiting the result of money bylaw referenda around the province to cash in on another federal make-work project.

The city was late in applying for financial aid on two larger projects, but Haddock has said he expects the money to come in later. If money bylaws elsewhere are turned down by voters, money will be released for use by the city.

Tax Bill Survives

OTTAWA (CP) — The 707-page government tax bill, the biggest piece of legislation in history, survived its first Commons vote Wednesday after 10 years of preparation.

The vote came when the first use of the 1969 guillotine rule stopped debate at 5:45 p.m. — the end of 32 days of clause-by clause study and an earlier 12 days of second-reading debate.

It took three hours and 26 minutes for MPs to vote on 293 clauses and amendments.

After a day of third-reading debate Friday, the government is expected to poise the guillotine blade again Monday, dropping it the day after to kill Commons debate by Friday, Dec. 17.

In the first of 29 standing votes Wednesday, Opposition leader Robert Stanfield's last request in the debate to delay imposition of most of the bill was defeated 149 to 54, with Liberals and New Democrats siding against the Conservatives and Social Crediters.

Ottawa to Act on Heroin Crisis

By JEFF CARRUTHERS

Special to the Times

OTTAWA — Recognition of a heroin crisis in Canada is forcing the federal government to take action to stamp out the growing problems of the new heroin user and the increasingly younger people involved with the drug.

Dr. Maurice Leclair, deputy minister in the federal health department, says the heroin and the related methadone problem are so bad that the government cannot wait until the final report of the LeDain commission before acting.

He said federal Health Minister John Munro and provincial health ministers will grapple with the problem of how to bring together national, provincial and private resources to focus on the problem at the federal-provincial health ministers' meeting in Ottawa Dec. 16-17.

A major topic of discussion then will be the report on a secret meeting held in Ottawa by the health department bringing together some 60 persons, professional and volunteer, associated with the heroin problem.

HEROIN ON WHIM

Dr. William Craig, head of the health department's Drug Abuse Group, describes a new type of heroin user, the member of the "Sunday afternoon experimentation group."

This "controlled user" can take heroin one day and then seemingly not have any need to take it after that, as a heroin addict would, until the whim hits again.

Craig said health officials are particularly concerned about such users and about how long such individuals can remain without being "hooked" on heroin.

The other aspect of particular concern is the recent appearance in Eastern Canada of a "wild fire" heroin problem during the past year or two.

Craig thinks the problem has been imported from the United States.

AGE DROP

The age of heroin addicts and users there is dropping, and the economic and geographic backgrounds are also changing radically.

In Canada, generally, the

Living Costs Set New High In November

Times News Services

OTTAWA — Canada's consumer price index soared to a record high of 135.4 in November, up from 134.9 in October and 130.3 in November 1970.

The chill winds of late autumn brought higher prices for clothing, housing and hockey sticks, Statistics Canada reported today.

Previous peak for the index was 135.0 in August. Last month's 135.4 means that the cost of goods and services worth $10 in 1961 had increased to $13.54.

Although clothing and housing costs were the main components in the November increase, housing and transportation showed the greatest price increases over the 12 months ending with November. Clothing costs showed the lowest increase over the 12 months.

Transportation costs declined in November while food prices remained the same. All other major components of the index rose.

Higher prices for new houses and house repairs and increased property taxes were the main factors in bringing the housing component index to 139.6 from 138.6 in October. There was only a minimal increase in rents.

The clothing index rose to 131.0 from 130.3 mainly as a result of price increases associated with the introduction of new winter lines. Higher prices for men's overcoats and sports shirts, women's winter cloth coats, sweaters, suits and undergarments and boys' parkas and slacks were large factors.

An increase in costs of personal health care offset scattered reductions for pharmaceuticals, bringing the health and personal care index to 143.8 in November, up from 143.6.

Higher newspaper subscription rates in some cities combined with price increases for ice skates, hockey sticks and camera film brought the recreation and reading index to 136.8 from 136.3.

Indian Troops Ring Dacca

Times News Services

India said today it has a virtual ring of troops around the East Pakistani capital of Dacca and that Indian aircraft are inflicting heavy casualties on fleeing troops.

Indian troops were reported holding their ground in Kashmir on the western front. Heavy fighting is continuing.

A direct bomb hit on a Dacca orphanage killed perhaps hundreds of children and buried their broken bodies under tons of rubble. By mid-morning rescue workers had recovered only 30 bodies but authorities said 350 to 400 orphans were asleep in the brick and concrete building when the bomb struck.

Invading ground troops had closed in to within 20 miles of Dacca after crossing the mighty Meghna River, one of the last major water barriers protecting the city. An Indian spokesman said their planes had sunk a fleet of 100 boats carrying Pakistani troops into East Pakistan.

The Indian air force and navy also bombarded the ports of Karachi and Chittagong in West and East Pakistan today, inflicting heavy damage to shipping. The Indian navy reported a new strike by its warships which it said sank or heavily damaged four Pakistani ships in Karachi harbor.

Pakistan's eastern command in Dacca countered with reports of fierce fighting on most fronts in the east and said "enemy thrusts are still being successfully countered by Pakistani troops."

Pakistan said its forces were fighting "brilliantly" and were giving Indian forces "a good hammering" in East Pakistan.

An army spokesman in Rawalpindi, the West Pakistan capital, denied Indian forces had captured the strategic town of Jessore, 85 miles southwest of Dacca, and the town of Sylhet near the East Pakistan border with Assam.

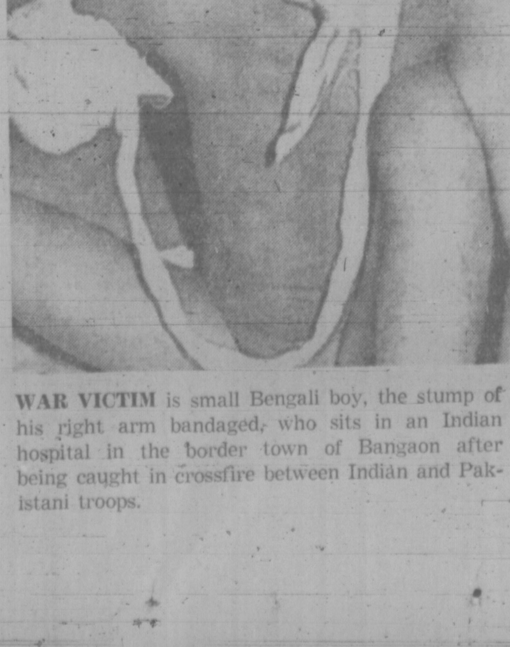
When asked about the Indian claim that Sylhet had been captured, he said "that too is a fantastic bloody lie."

But foreign correspondents who visited Jessore Wednesday said it definitely was in Indian hands.

ADVANCES

In the western sector, Pakistani troops had made further advances in Kashmir and in continued fighting in the Lahore and Sailkot sectors inflicted heavy casualties on the Indians, Radio Pakistan said.

Pakistan also said its air force had downed a total of 102 Indian aircraft and in the Chhamb sector of Kashmir knocked out 40 Indian tanks. The Indians claim to have destroyed more than 150 Pakistani tanks in the same area.



WAR VICTIM is small Bengali boy, the stump of his right arm bandaged, who sits in an Indian hospital in the border town of Bangaon after being caught in crossfire between Indian and Pakistani troops.

'Dunkerque' Operation Under Way

Thousands of Pakistani troops, threatened with encirclement by Indian forces, are trying to reach safety in an armada of sampans, barges and river steamers, the commander of India's eastern front reported.

Indian air force jets bombed and strafed the Pakistanis as they fled, making more than 100 sorties during the day, said Lt.-Gen. Jagjit Singh Aurora.

The Indians now have complete mastery of the skies over East Pakistan. The last enemy fighter planes in East Pakistan was shot down, Aurora said.

MAN CONVICTED —MANSLAUGHTER

NANAIMO (CP)—A British Columbia Supreme Court jury found Charles Charlemagne Roux, 64, guilty on a reduced charge of manslaughter Tuesday in the beating death of Helen MacAlko.

Roux originally was charged with the non-capital murder of Mrs. MacAlko, who died in hospital Sept. 27, almost a week after a beating she suffered in the mobile home she shared with Roux in Port Alberni.

Mr. Justice A. B. Macfarlane will pass sentence Friday.

Libya Nationalizes U.K. Oil Company

ALGIERS (AP) — The Libyan government has nationalized the assets of British Petroleum Co. in Libya and announced it will withdraw its $1 billion in deposits from British banks.

The measures, reported Tuesday by the Libyan radio and government news agency, were said to be in retaliation for Britain's "complicity" in Iran's occupation of three strategic islands at the mouth of the Persian gulf a week ago.

But London sources said an underlying and more long-standing reason appeared to be Britain's backing for the sale of 200 tanks ordered by the Libyan monarchy before it was overthrown two years ago. The revolutionary government of Col. Muammar Kaddafi rejected a demand that the tanks—if supplied—not be used against Israel.

International oil officials, gathered in Abu Dhal for a conerence, said the nationalization was primarily a political act which is unlikely to have a great effect on the Arab oil countries' relations with other oil companies.

However, the officials said the foreign exchange withdrawal could be the beginning of a move by some Arab oil countries to setup the financing pool they have long talked about. The purpose of the pool would be to make these countries more independent of the major oil companies.

The British government owns 48 per cent of British Petroleum. Libyan oil accounts for about five per cent of BP's imports into Britain, and the company has huge reserves in other parts o the world.

$3 Billion Foreign Aid Bill Passes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House of Representatives passed Wednesday a $3-billion foreign aid bill bearing $400 million for Israel and none for India, Pakistan and Ecuador — with Senate leaders still saying they will refuse to consider it.

With present spending authority for foreign aid and defence expiring at midnight Wednesday night, House and Senate leaders consulted on putting out a stop-gap interim extention—possibly into next year—but came to no early agreement.

Aid for India and Pakistan was barred as long as they are at war. The ban on $15.5 million slated for Ecuador was voted Wednesday because of that country's seizure of U.S. fishing boats.
